SUSPENDED FROM COMMONS FOR RUNNING OFF WITH MACE

LONDON, July 17—(AP)—A member of parliament ran off with the mace, a most sacred symbol of parliamentary authority that rests on a table below the speaker's chair, during the session of the house of commons this afternoon. Diong so he created a scene without precedent in the history of the mother of parliaments since Cromwell declared "Take away that bauble." and mace was removed.

The miscreant was John Beckett, laborite. His action, which he accompanied with the words, "It's a damned disgrace" was in protest against suspension of a colleague, Fenner Brockway, which when moved by Premier MacDonald had been carried by an almost unanimous vote.

Brockway had overstepped his bounds by trying to make a speech on India during question time.

Beckett did not get very far with his trophy. An attendant tackled him as he reached the door of the house and returned the mace to the sergeant-at-arms, its official custodian, who, with the speaker, was the only man who remained unmoved in a chamber seething with excitement.

All eyes then were turned on the speaker to see what action he would take in this unheard of emergency. He rose to the occasion, as the house always expects its speakers to do, gravely pronouncing the time-honored formula, "I name the honorable member for Peckham for disorderly conduct."

Whereupon the suspension of Beckett was moved by Premier MacDonald and carried.

"Gentlemen, you represent the state of New York which has just killed two innocent men. I swear to God they were innocent."

He was seated in the chair at 11:16 o'clock and was dead six minutes later.

WHISKEY A PROBLEM IN SETTLEMENT OF ESTATE

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—What a law-abiding attorney is to do when an estate he is settling up includes 1,300 cases of imported Scotch whiskey is a question that puzzles Murray Hulbert, former president of the board of aldermen.

Mr. Hulbert is handling the estate of a man who imported the whiskey in 1921 under permit. Government regulations provide for the sale of whiskey to drug stores in pints, but this liquor is in "fifths" and to rebottle it would be expensive.

Mr. Hulbert appealed to Senator Royal S. Copeland, who suggested that Hospital Commissioner Greef of New might need some whiskey for hospitals. It is legal to sell liquor to hospitals in "fifths," but Mr. Greef says New York has already bought its supply. So there the matter stands.

Country Going Wild On Endurance Tests

Field Includes Talking, Rocking Chair, Dancing, Bicyling, Sitting On Flagpoles and Roofs.

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)— There used to be occasional pie eating contests and that sort of simple thing, but it was airplanes that got the country really endurance conscious—and now see what's happened.

After seeing what a hub-bub in the public prints was caused by a few airplane endurance flights, grown up people began sitting on flagpoles, dancing till their feet wore out, talking till everybody else'ears wore out, galloping back and forth in rocking chairs, sitting on roofs.

And then children got the fever, most of them since the refuelling endurance flights of Jackson and O'Brien and the Hunter brothers. Now every tree is a beanstack for Jack to climb to endurance fame, every bicycle a chariot to ride to glory. Even an implement of the playground has been brought into service by two little Marjorie Daws who set out for a "woman's" endurance record.

A few instances of how the boys and girls of the land are glorifying patient fortitude, which is what the dictionary calls endurance, follow:

In Camden, N. J., 13 boys are perched in trees in which they hope to stay for "weeks and weeks." All have ground crews who refuel the leafy larders of the contestants and act as contact men with press and public. Some have chosen trees near stores and arranged to get their food for nothing because of the crowds of potential customers their antics bring to the vicinity.

Nick Getty, 14, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., unfortunately chose a neighbor's tree to do his sitting in and the neighbor started removal proceedings after Nick had been up almost 70 hours. Nick was saved from a forced landing by men who cut a limb from another tree, held it up for him to climb on to, and carried him triumphant to a new arboreal perch.

Jersey is just full of bicycle riders as well as tree sitters, half a dozen towns boasting their crews of endurance riders who keep the wheels turning 24 hours a day by pedalling in six hour relays.

Out in Chicago the children are even more versatile. Not only are there bicycle riders and tree sitters, but two little girls mounted a seesaw and teetered away for seven hours before police interfered. Chicago has had one crackup in the tree sitting business, a platform having collapsed under two sets of brothers, pouring one complete set and half the other set unharmed but crestfallen to the ground.

More than a score of boys in Kansas City climbed trees when 14-year-old Jack Richards set the fashion there, but Jack finally came down in deference to the pleas of the other boys' mothers.

In Fort Worth, Tex., Oscar Fox crashed today from his tree perch because he fell asleep. He broke two ribs.

Joseph Donnelly of Stamford, Conn. to prevent a similar accident, had himself handcuffed to somebody's tree today so he couldn't fall, but police unhandcuffed him and ruled that if he must sit in trees the trees should be in his owny ard. There aren't any trees in Joe's yard.

One of the few adults left in the endurance racket besides the aviators is "Shipwreck" Kelly, who has been sitting on flagpoles in general for years and on one in Atlantic City in particular for 26 days.

CHARGES AGAINST THE SEAMANSHIP OF CAPTAIN

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP)—Federal investigation into the marine disaster of June 10 in Massachusetts bay culminated today in official charges against the seamanship of a ship captain involved and recommendations for changes in navigation rules designed to prevent a recurrence of the danger.

In the accident considered the steamer Fairfax collided with the tanker Pinthis and 49 lives were lost when the tanker's gasoline cargo caught fire.

Captain Archie H. Brooks, master of the Fairfax, a coastwise liner operating between Baltimore and Boston, bore the brunt of the blame placed by government inspectors who conducted the inquiry, and will have to defend himself before an official board. He was charged with reckless navigation, violation of pilot rules, unskilfulness and negligence.

NATURAL GAS EXPLOSION KILLED 12 MEN IN TUNNEL

CAMP MITCHELL, Cal., July 17—(AP)—Twelve men were killed and two injured today in an explosion of natural gas in the east drift of the Mitchell ravine shaft, a unit of the San Francisco Hetch-Hetchy water project, 40 mile southeast of San Francisco.

Twenty-one others were trapped in the far end of the tunnel but fought through gas fumes and foul aid to the hoist and were rescued.

This was the second fatal gas explosion on the water system project within two months. The other killed seven and seriously injured one.

Tunneling has extended 1,200 feet from the bottom of the 819 foot Mitchell ravine shaft. The tunnel is to connect with the Calaveras tunnel of the Spring Valley section of the project, where the explosion last month occurred.

Labor Leader Tells Of Communism Menace

Matthew Woll Asserts That the A. F. of L. Has Been Kept Alert By Soviet Activities.

NEW YORK, July 17—Expressing belief that Russian trade representatives in this country participated in communist propaganda, Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, today said soviet activities had become more subtle and dangerous.

Woll was the fourth witness before a special house committee investigating communist activities. The American Federation of Labor, he said, had successfully coped with communism within its ranks, but was kept constantly alert by soviet activities.

The government, he declared should set up an agency to deal with all revolutionary activities, particularly those in the schools and among Negroes.

The committee heard Police Inspector John A. Lyons of the New York radical bureau, describe strikes led by communists. He told of slayings and injuries to workmen and of sabotage he attributed to radicals.

William Van Valkenbergh, detective assigned to communists, disclosed that the Workers' Communist party was incorporated under New York state laws. Both membership and activities of the communists, he said, have increased since 1920. Justice Mitchell May of the New York supreme court discussed a decision in which he held that an employer had a right to refuse to employ a communist.

Woll declared soviet representatives sent here on temporary passports to work with the Amtorg Trading company, official soviet trading agency, are here to spread the Moscow doctrine as well as to do business.

"The communists," Woll said, "are just as truly at war with the United States as if they wore alien uniforms and carried arms." He added that the soviet government aimed to destroy all other governments and form them into a federation of nations to be ruled from Moscow.

The late Samuel Gompers was credited by Woll with having laid the basis for the fight against communism.

Woll read a report from the Chicago office which said that communists were making great inroads among the Negroes. Inter-racial dances were given, he said; white girls could be seen dancing with Negroes, Japanese, Chinese and Mexicans.

During Woll's testimony, Representative Nelson of Maine revealed that the committee was informed the communists had been unsuccessful in spreading their theories in the army and navy.

The committee plans to investigate a communist camp at Wingdale, N. Y., and hear representatives of the Amtorg Trading company Tuesday. It will leave late Thursday for Detroit to hold hearings there.

FACTORIES HAVE PLANS TO PREVENT UNEMPLOYMENT

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17—(AP)—A report submitted by Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins to Governor Roosevelt's committee on stabilization of industry for the prevention of unemployment shows that 292 state factories and business firms have adopted some definite plan to prevent unemployment.

These firms and factories employ two-thirds of the workers covered in a state-wide canvass. In addition, 306 said they had no definite plan but described some means they were using to avoid the laying off of workers during the present industrial depression.

Four of the most popular plans mentioned and the number of firms following them were as follows:

Part time operations (127); manufacturing for stock (66); sales forecast or forward planning (59), transfer of employes (43).

Seventy-three firms were following more than one plan.

SENATE OBSTRUCTIONISTS WOULD MUTILATE TREATY

Foes of the London Pact Have Stacked Up Seven Reservations to Be Voted Upon Before Balloting On the Resolution of Ratification—Proponents of the Treaty Have Decided to Exhaust Discussions By Night Sessions—As a Final Resort the Leaders Will Employ the Cloture Rule —Senator Watson Is In Possession of Cloture Petition Signed By Twice As Many As the Necessary 16 Names.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP)— Exasperated by the refusal of the London treaty opponents to agree to limit debate beginning next week, senate leaders decided today to try to exhaust discussions by night sessions and as a final resort to employ the cloture rule shutting off talk.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, leader of the opposition, rejected a proposal to limit debate beginning next Thursday and called for a fight "without quarter."

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, who sought the agreement, answered by drawing from his pocket a petition to invoke the colture rule. It was quickly signed by twice as many as the necessary 16 names.

It was withheld tonight, however, as leaders sought either to exhaust debate or to reach an agreement. Another attempt will be made tomorrow looking to limitation of debate.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, gave notice at adjournment that he would move to keep the senate in session tomorrow night if the agreement was not forthcoming. An earlier plan to hold a session tonight was abandoned after a series of conferences.

Meanwhile, Senator Johnson and Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, carried on the opposition debate today, consuming the six hours. It was the second successive day Senator McKellar has spoken for three hours at a stretch.

The treaty foes also stacked up a total of seven reservations to be voted upon before balloting on the resolution of ratification.

Sure of a wide margin of votes for the treaty, the advocates plainly showed their irritation at the steady flow of words from the small but spirited band of foes. However, there was some doubt whether there were enough votes to adopt the cloture rule which requires a two-thirds majority.

Many of the treaty proponents are opposed in principle to the cloture rule, which restricts debate to one hour for each member.

Making his first extended attack upon the treaty itself, Johnson said the contention that the treaty provided for a limitation of armament was "fictitious."

Meanwhile, the state department in response to queries of newspaper men, issued a statement pointing out that the Washington treaty of 1922 was ratified within much less time than the London pact has required already.

"It is already 86 days since this treaty was signed in London," it said. "The Washington naval treaty only occupied 52 days between the date of signature and the consent to ratification by the senate.

"This treaty was before the foreign relations committee for 53 days while the Washington treaty was before the foreign relations committee only 17 days. To date this treaty has been debated before the senate throughout 49 1-2 hours of session The Washington treaty was debated for only eight hours of session."

Senator Watson accused the opposition today of "killing time." Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, an opponent of the pact, disputed this. Watson replied that yesterday one senator spoke "for the express purpose of killing time until another senator can return to the city." Robinson did not challenge this.

Pointing out that the debate was nearing the close of the second week Watson said if the agreement to limit discussion after next Tuesday were entered into it would still leave the opponents three full days for discussion in addition to the time they already have consumed. But Johnson would not listen.

"I know of no other way to fight for my country except to die," shouted the Californian in reply to the threat of cloture. "This great majority here can do just exactly as it pleases. I will protect what rights I have as best I can. Put on your cloture. The only time we use it is in some foreign adventure or misadventure. I make no agreement. I go on as best I can."

Johnson submitted one of the reservations offered today. He proposed to reserve right for the United States to build all 18 eight-inch gun cruisers allowed under the treaty within the life of the pact. Under the agreement, three of the cruisers could not be completed until after the treaty expires. Some could be completed the day following expiration of the treaty.

Senator McKellar offered a new batch of reservations. He proposed that if any signatory nation violates the Kellogg peace pact, the naval treaty shall become inoperative. Another reservation would force any nation going to war in violation of the Kellogg pact to distribute $1,000,000,000 among the other nations. He also proposed that nations agree to limit the number of merchantmen which might be convertible into ships of war.

Senator Hale, republican, Maine, chairman of the naval committee, also notified the senate he would propose a reseration stipulating that the American navy reserve its previous policy of right to build ships without regard to categories within the tonnage limitations.

AGREEMENT REACHED IN ANTHRACITE WAGE SCALE

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—The New York World says it understands sub-committees of the United Mine Workers of America and the anthracite operators have reached a tentative new wage agreement to supersede the one expiring August 31.

A statement was issued at the close of today's conferences saying "no definite conclusion was arrived at," but rumors of a tentative agreement began to circulate immediately thereafter. It is understood, the World says, that in the new agreement, which will run until April 1, 1936, the present wage scale stands for the time being and that there is some sort of caluse covering the readjustment of wages from year to year. The agreement also is said to provide for a modified check-off system governing the collection of union dues by employers.

James Coy, a former circus supernumerary who acts as theatrical critic for the police department He told of one scene in which Faith Bacon danced with no covering but two ostrich feather fans and another in which Jimmy Savo changed some of the clothing on Miss Kay Carroll, who is not a relative of the producer. Miss Carroll, Savo and Miss Bacon are the other three held with Carroll.

Bail of $500 each was immediately furnished and the defendants were freed pending trial, date for which has not yet been set.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING SCHEDULED FOR FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 17.—Involved politicians and plain taxpayers alike appeared to be "warming" up to a high pitch today in preparation for the special town meeting Friday night. The meeting is called by the selectmen, on the strength of a petition presented to them, to rescind all action taken at a meeting May 1 to have an audit of all town books and to have the auditor selected by a committee of three, and to start with a new slate. This would provide for an examination of the finances of the town to be done by a committee of nine members, named in the warning of the meeting and not including any of the members of the original committee of three. The warning further provides for a renewal of the $10,000 appropriation to have the work done.

Dr. George E. Wilcox, prime mover for an audit of the town books, first member of the special committee to select an auditor pursuant to the May 1 vote and president of the Taxpayers' Protective association, has requested the support of the association to refuse to rescind the action of May 1, Friday night. The association will make an effort to have the vote on the rescinding clause taken by check-list and ballot.

The contreversy between the president of the T. P. A., and the town selectmen who refused to sign a contract with Walter S. Musgrave, auditor, as drawn up by Dr. Wilcox and his committee has precipitated charges and counter-charges that have stirred the townspeople into a diversity of opinion.

First Selectman William A. Buck issued a statement today in which he charged that Dr. Wilcox and his committee had rejected a number of offers from qualified accountants to make the audit of the books at costs much lower and even one-half of that involved if the contract was let to Musgrave. Selectman Buck says on the subject, "I presume it is the first time in the history of the town that a committee appointed to get a job done and to spend only such part of an appropriation as was necessary, proceeded to spend it all and then had the temerity to defy the people of the town of Windham and brazenly tell them that it was Musgrave or nothing."

In reply to a charge by Attorney William A. Arnold, made at a taxpayers' meeting earlier in the week, that the town could not borrow any more money from the local banks and was forced to borrow out of town at a high rate of interest, the first selectman makes full denial that such is the fact and states that within the past few weeks money was borrowed at the lowest rate of interest the town has ever paid, whether through bonds or otherwise. The rate of interest he states was 4 1-4 per cent, in contrast to the 5 per cent or 6 per cent which has been paid hitherto.

Probably the outstanding note in the attack of Dr. Wilcox and his committee against the selectmen for their refusal to sign the Musgrave contract is that the Windham political powers are attempting to "stall" any audit or examination of the town books, at least until after the elections in October. To this the selectmen reply that they welcome an audit, but one made at a cost consistent with the best interests of the taxpayers.

Arrangements have been made with Colonel Earl C. Popp of Hartford to fly over this city in the near future and make an emergency landing, providing him with information to be given all aviators who fly over this section. Colonel Popp will also map out an area which is to be properly marked by the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The area is intended to cover a distance of about 15 miles surrounding Willimantic. All towns in this area will be marked on the roofs with huge arrows in a circle, pointing to this city and indicating the number of miles. In the city there already exists a large sign painted on the roof of the New Haven railroad freight shed. Colonel Popp has found eastern Connecticut poorly equipped to assist aviators.

DANIELSON

TOWN SCHOOL COMMITTEE COMES IN FOR CRITICISM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 17—Killingly's town school committee, or a part of it, at least, was under fire today, and the barrage was being directed by persons interested in getting contracts to transport pupils of the town's schools they attend from the districts where they happen to live.

The present situation arises from the fact that the school committee has not asked for bids for transportation contracts this year, as they have done in years gone by, but impliedly have renewed, or will renew, agreements with those who had the transportation work during the last year in Killingly.

That has made some of those who would like to bid for some of the runs hot under the collar. Competition in the public service car business is mighty keen in Danielson, and also in other parts of the town of Killingly. Some of these public service car operators are saying right out loud that they feel they have not been justly dealt with in being denied permission to bid for school transportation work. They say further that they are willing to bid below, on some runs, the prices the town paid those who had the contracts last year, and thereby save the town considerable money. They further insist that as residents and taxpayers of the town they should at least be given a chance to bid whether or not they prove to be successful bidders.

The matter was being more or less generally discussed among voters about town today, but was not a subject of really widespread knowledge. To be perfectly frank about the matter, the whole affair is a battle between public service car operators for a share of the town's school transportation business, and as business goes, the average citizen will admit that's fair enough.

This afternoon it was said by a member of the town school committee that no contracts for pupils' transportation had been offered to bidders this year. It was further stated that the transportation agents during the past school year did such a perfectly good job that it was deemed well within good practice to renew the agreements then existing, without bidding by competition.

Last year, the latest town report shows, the town of Killingly paid $8.050 for the transportation of pupils from one district to another and one school to another in this town of large area. It has been demonstrated that this transportation is a better arrangement all around than maintaining district schools. Those transported attended better schools, and the elimination of minor schools more than offsets the transportation costs.

However, this whole proposition simmers down to letting those who would like to do the transportation work bid for the job. If those who have not been offered an opportunity to bid really mean what they say when they say they will do the work for less than it was done last year, the average citizen is instantly interested.

The incipient storm over school transportation matters has resulted in bringing forth some other angles of criticism against the school committee, who unfortunately happen to come under the glare of publicity in the midst of a very peaceful summer season. Any citizen has a right to criticize, of course. This particular thing has to do with the purchase of school supplies. Admittedly, some wholesale houses regularly quote somewhat slightly lower prices for a year's supplies for the schools than might be obtained from a local dealer. Again, however, the plea is, from the local people who would like to have that business, let us bid. Here again the average citizen will recognize the attitude of the school committee in their earnest endeavor to save the town money, but they also are inquiring whether it is wise to forget about citizens who do business here, who earn their living here, who own property here and who pay taxes here, putting revenue in the town treasury without very serious consideration and careful comparison of prices.

The trade at home slogan, the complaining citizens hold, should apply to expenditure of money for the schools as well as to other things.

OBITUARY.

Joseph Poudrette.

During last night, at 10 o'clock, the death of Joseph Poudrette occurred at his home in Wauregan, where he had been a resident for the past 35 years. Mr. Poudrette, who was 80 years of age, was a native of Canada. He was a widower. Until a few days ago he was in his normal good health. A recent shock forecast his approaching end. Mr. Poudrette leaves four children, Mrs. David LaRose and Amadee Poudrette of Wauregan, Mrs. John Jarvis of Plainfield and Joseph Poudrette of Danielson.

An illustration of what a wonderful improvement the new state highway cable fences are over the old all-wooden type was to be noted just below the new bridge at Central Village today. A big truck that went off the concrete highway for some reason and hit the comparatively soft shoulder of the road careened over against the fence, back of which there was a considerable drop, and came to a halt, leaning over at an acute angle. A long row of posts were sagged out of position, but the fence did not give way. It was like catching the big machine in a net and holding it there. The old type fence most certainly would have broken down and the truck turned over, not to mention the flying top rails that have inflicted such cruel injuries on so many persons in years gone by.

Radox Brings Foot Comfort To America

Nothing Like It Ever Sold by Druggists Before

CORNS — CALLOUSES — BURNING FEET

Now you can buy Radox in America at any up to date drug store. They are selling dozens of packages a day.

Three or 4 baths according to directions and your corns and callouses are gone, your tired burning aching feet are changed to strong vigorous ones and bear this in mind—

If Radox doesn't do as advertised—money back.

Getting a corn out needs only a few Radox footbaths. In the last few years millions of packets of Radox have been sold to corn sufferers. Here is a typical letter:—

"My wife had a very bad corn for several years on the ball of the foot, and four small ones on the toes, also hard skin which was very painful. After a few soakings in a Radox footbath the hard skin began to peel off, and the corns came right out after a week. It is a pleasure for her to walk now." E. S.

1st November, 1929.

Radox contains four different Salts. One banishes odor, one is antiseptic, one softens the water, and one releases oxygen which carries the softening salts right to the roots of corns which are thus loosened so that they can be lifted out bodily. Only Radox contains this fourfold combination.

Danielson contemplates with interest the building of a concrete highway over the Franklin street crossing, from Main and Franklin streets to South Killingly, because the arrangement likely will result in 24-hour crossing service at this dangerous point. The way the stage is set it would be quite impossible without excessive expense to eliminate that particular crossing, but if it becomes part of a trunk line highway, that will be something else again.

That elusive animal reported by Robert Cudworth as having been seen on Broad street, near the home of Mrs. Eva Bassett by Robert Cudworth, last Saturday morning, was again reported today as having been seen near a laundry on Center street last night. All aside from joking, Mr. Cudworth did see such an animal, very different from anything known hereabouts, and if anyone else happens to see it, a public favor would be done by having nerve enough to get it, somehow.

Announcement was made today that the local courts, and that means all the adjacent territory, of the Canado-American association has arranged a field meet for Sunday, July 27, at Babcock's grove, on the eastern borders of the town of Plainfield. Attendance is expected from about every New England state. Various games have been arranged for the event.

In local Union St. John Baptist circles the affair is looked at askance, but without comment. The inference is that the Canado-American association and the Union St. John Baptist are not on too friendly terms, as organizations.

The background to their failure to agree may be left out of the picture. It may be mentioned, however, that certain controversies of a religious nature that have occurred in Catholic circles in Rhode Island have a very great bearing on the situation, and that the Union is standing aloof.

Clifton Kimball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Kimball of East Franklin street, has joined the contingent of Danielson boys at Camp Woodstock, the Tri-County "Y" camp at Black pond.

Danielson's business section had much the same appearance this afternoon as it does Sundays, stores being closed for the second Thursday half-holiday.

Careless boys are reported as riding bicycles and using roller skates on freshly laid concrete sidewalks, marring them permanently unless repairs are made.

Members of the Danielson Rotary club left here early this afternoon to spend the remainder of the day with the boys that are staying at Camp Woodstock. The Rotarians are much interested in the camp.

Mrs. Nathan Blumenthal and children are spending a vacation of several weeks at Ocean beach.

A truck load of young trout was sent into this section today by the state fish and game commission for the re-stocking operations that will continue through the remainder of the summer.

Several hundred of the employes of Powdrell and Alexander are expected to leave here on Saturday for their annual outing at Rocky Point. The trip will be made in motor coaches.

Delightful weather was the lot of the Men's club of the Methodist Episcopal church this evening for the outing for themselves and guests on the shores of Alexander's lake.

King George Jacques continues to feel the effects of an injury he suffered some time since while he was at work at East Killingly, and he is getting about no more than is necessary for the time being.

PUTNAM

PROSPECTING FOR SITE FOR POSTOFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 17.—The federal government is in the market for a site on which to erect the proposed Putnam postoffice. Through the treasury department, the United States government is appealing to public-spirited property owners for an acceptable tract of land. If such citizens cannot be found within the city, the government will purchase a suitable site from the person submitting the lowest acceptable proposal which will be opened at the treasury building in Washington on Aug. 13. Preferring a corner lot, made up of 25,500 feet with 160 or more feet on one of the more important thoroughfares, the department seeks to obtain a site centrally located.

The government, in its calls for proposals, specifies that it is willing to pay a fair price for any acceptable site, but if prices are set too high, condemnation proceedings will be resorted to.

MYSTERY IN DISAPPEARANCE OF ROBERT E. LOWE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 17.—At a late hour tonight no word as to the whereabouts of Robert E. Lowe, 56, South Woodstock farmer and dairyman, missing for two days, had been received by his mother and sister in South Woodstock, with whom he makes his home. Lieut Ross V. Urquhart, commandant at the Danielson barracks of state police, said this afternoon that rumors and conversations, concerning the mysterious disappearance of Lowe, had come to his attention, but the department had received no authoritative request to aid in the search for him.

Close friends and relatives of the missing man this morning admitted his disappearance was sudden and mysterious. He makes his home with his mother and a sister and both are carefully guarding any details concerning his failure to appear at his farm duties Tuesday. When the disappearance of Lowe became an admitted fact today, his sudden disappearance from Woodstock, occurring some years ago, was brought to mind. He appeared at his old home in South Woodstock after an absence of 20 years.

What motive prompted him to dispose of his large herd of cows and employ a veterinarian to shoot off all of his horses is unknown. This occurred a short time ago. Lowe, when last seen on Tuesday, was in fine spirits and mentioned no plans, whatever he might have had, to anyone. Lowe is a well-known and respected citizen of Woodstock. One son, Roland Lowe, is at present attending a summer camp.

For Soldier's Burial

World war veterans, members of the Albert J. Breault post, V. F. W., who soldiered in France with Rosario Lacroix, 39, who died at the Day Kimball hospital this morning, were today formulating plans to accord the well known ex-service man a soldier's burial. Mr. Lacroix succumbed early today after suffering a heart attack early this week. Born in Putnam, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lacroix, the young man after obtaining his education in local schools worked for a few years in Putnam and vicinity. At the outbreak of the World war, Mr. Lacroix enlisted with the A. E. F., and served overseas. Returning to Putnam following his discharge at the close of the war, Mr. Lacroix entered the employ of several of the city's department stores. He was widely known in Putnam and had a large following of friends who regretted the news of his sudden death today. His parents and one sister are dead. Only distant relatives survive him.

Putnam members of the state bar association have received notice, that the annual summer luncheon of the association will be held this year at the Griswold, Eastern Point, at Groton, on July 31. The get-together of the barristers this year will be featured by a golf tourney to be played in the afternoon after the business session. Eighteen holes will be played on the Griswold links. Many of the local bar members, including State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, are planning to attend.

The presence of abandoned trolley rails on several of the streets in Putnam has been the means of injecting additional dangers into the municipal thoroughfares. Since the discontinuance of electric service by the Connecticut company, the rails have become worn and slippery and many times have nearly caused serious automobile mishaps, especially on Providence street, where the forked switch still remains. Putnam, through its city council, has asked for removal of the no longer used rails. The public utilities organization pleads poverty, and seeks an extension of time in clearing the remaining bits of the old trolley car operating apparatus.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward, magistrate of the town court of Killingly, and a resident of Danielson, who has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for the past week, was reported as slightly improved today.

Putnam Airport

The group of citizens sponsoring the proposed Putnam airport are going forward with plans for an incorporation of the proposition, it was learned authoritatively today. It is understood that it is the object of the group to obtain the approval of the secretary of state for the incorporation of the concern with capital stock of $50,000.

At a meeting of the suburban committees of the Day Kimball hospital nurses' home drive, which was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. A. A. Vonsiatsky in Thompson, the proceeds of several benefit events held during the past week were added to the general fund, which served to enhance it by several dollars. Also at this meeting, a discussion of plans for the numerous benefit events scheduled for the coming week took place. Mrs. Vonsiatsky was hostess at a luncheon which preceded the meeting.

It was noted today that iron workers have begun the construction of a steel overhead bridge at French's crossing in Plainfield, which will, when completed, eliminate the dangerous grade crossing and unite the recently completed stretch of highway at this point. Concrete abutments upon which the large beams rest were erected this spring.

The engagement of Miss Ruby Alice Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Payne, former residents of this city and now of Pawtucket, to Philip Bellamy, son of Mr. and Mrs John C. Bellamy of Pawtucket, was announced recently. Miss Payne is a graduate of Putnam high school, class of 1926.

JEWETT CITY

OLDEST MASON IN WORLD, L. M. LOGEE, HAPPY AT 104

John H. Tracy, Fred L. Kanahan, Walter A. Field and Everett H. Hiscox, representatives from Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., W. A. Field, master, were at Charlton, Mass. Wednesday, where at the Massachusetts Masonic home they were guests of Leprelet M. Logee. Their brother Logee, who is 104, is the oldest Mason in the world. He was raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, in Mt. Vernon lodge, in Jewet City, in 1872, by the late Frederick H. Fanning, its first master. In 1871, the local lodge was given its charter and was a daughter of Somerset of Norwich.

The visitors found Mr. Logee in excellent health, tall and straight, and as he greeted his guests, could not have been rated as a year over 80. As he declared that the first hundred years was the hardest, he said he was able to eat and digest whatever was dictated by a hearty appetite. When asked by Mr. Tracy, "How do you do it?" he replied that he was "a great lover of red pepper, strong vinegar and mustard, and smoked the blackest pipe he could get hold of." Adding, "I haven't an ache nor a pain, sleep well, eat well and enjoy the visits of many friends." Among the medals, souvenirs and Masonic awards which he had to show, upon the wall, in an oak frame, is the original certificate of membership in Mt. Vernon, bearing the signatures of Frederick H. Fanning, master; William G. Duce, senior warden; Daniel K. Prior, junior warden; John H. Lee, secretary.

With more than usual interest, the visitors listened to stories and incidents told by Mr. Logee, the facts of which were clear in his mind and which had to do with occurrences in the early years of the nineteenth century. Added pleasure was afforded the Connecticut visitors when they were conducted throughout the many apartments of the splendid home.

Engine No. 1 and Chemical No. 1 responded to a call for a blaze off Brown avenue shortly before noon Thursday. The fire was in a combination chicken coop and rabbit hutch, situated some distances from the residential sections of the avenue. A chemical line from the big truck did the job, with no loss reported. Chickens were flying around in considerable excitement, with the firemen believing that they must be of a specially warm breed, to set the coop afire, as there was no evidence that the rabbits had done anything of the sort.

Girls' Team Undaunted

In the game Wednesday evening between Our Gang and the Rayon Girls' club, the boys were the victors, and by a score of such proportions that the figures are withheld by agreement of the dual management. Miss Estelle Ethier occupied the mound for the girls. Captain Teresa Shovey proposes to cause Our Gang to sit up and take notice at a return game to be played on the Ashland grounds this (Friday) evening. It is expected that Miss Ethier will pitch.

Our Gang defeated the Tigers Thursday afternoon, 7 to 6. The Tigers' pitcher walked seven men. Both teams got right down to business, but the losers were unable to hold up the seventh inning rally and was nosed out by Our Gang. Thursday's game was chalked up as the third victory of Our Gang over the Tigers. Some of the finest playing on the Ashland diamond is said to be by the junior teams.

THE FAIRFAX FINDING

Following an exhaustive investigation of the collision of the liner Fairfax and the tanker Pinthis last month off the Massachusetts coast in a dense fog, which caused the sinking of the latter and the loss of 40 lives, Captain Brooks of the Fairfax is accused of reckless navigating. Whether he was actually guilty remains to be determined, but the charge is in keeping with certain testimony which was offered concerning the speed of the passenger ship through the fog.

There will be no chance for the officers of the Pinthis to be heard. They all lost their lives. Captain Brooks will have an opportunity to defend his navigation. What his penalty will be, if he is found guilty, is perhaps of less consequence than the steps that will be taken to prevent a repetition of such a disaster. Though the outcome of the trial is expected to have its influence upon other navigators by causing them to exert greater care and to err on the side of safety if any errors are going to be committed, it is also apparent that the disaster has disclosed conditions which should otherwise be guarded against.

There has been but one lane of traffic for ships going in both directions from Boston to Cape Cod canal. Had there been two, one for the ships leaving Boston and one for those headed for Boston or further up the coast, it seems probable that the two ships which did collide would not have been in a position for such an accident to happen. The disaster has demonstrated the need of establishing such lanes. That action is called for in the interest of safety.

It is unfortunate that such disasters seem to be necessary in order to direct attention to the manner in which ships are being operated and the conditions which give encouragement to such affairs. Yet it seems to be the case that either they are not thought of in advance or little or no attention is paid to them. Many marine accidents of a serious character have been the means of instituting reforms, and yet there seem to be plenty of additional opportunities for eliminating serious hazards. The regret is that they cannot be met without such great sacrifices of life.

PRIMARY EXPENDITURES

At the present time the senate committee headed by Senator Nye is wrestling with primary campaign expenditures. It has been delving into the expenditures made by Mrs. McCormick in Illinois, where she secured the nomination for senator, and it has succeeded in showing that she spent somewhere in the neighborhood of a third of a million to get it.

Mrs. McCormick is making the claim that she was forced to spend a large amount of money because her opponent was well entrenched by being in office. She claims that the money was spent legitimately and that it was not an unreasonable outlay.

That is, of course, her side of the story. It sounds logical enough. She has probably spent campaign funds in no different manner than other candidates for United States senator have, and it is known that the senate has no control over primaries. On the other hand, it is known that the senate has been the means of keeping certain elected senators from taking their seats. It has gone directly against the expressed will of the people. It has not disclosed that the large sums spent in other campaigns or elections were illegally used, but the senate has acted because of excessive expenditures, and in the case of Senator Newberry the amount spent was less than that spent by Mrs. McCormick.

What is going to be done in Mrs. McCormick's case? That is not known, though it doesn't appear but what the senate can exercise the same authority that it has used on previous occasions, whether it is considered justified or not, to keep her from a seat in that body. All it needs to do is to judge her expenditures by those which others have made, consider them excessive, and exclude her in case she is elected. It would be high handed but that is what it has done repeatedly. There is the precedent for it. It isn't always consistent but it might insist that it must treat all alike and therefore, inasmuch as Newberry, Smith and Vare have been denied their seats, it would have to deal with Mrs. McCormick in the same way.

The senate seems to be a law unto itself under such circumstances, although it is unjust to the senator-elect and to those who elected them. Every case of the kind, however, discloses how little improvement was provided by the senatorial primary.

IN THE WHEAT FIELDS

It would be a great thing if producers in any line could go on piling up a surplus over and above what can be disposed of at a good price and have the government take that surplus, or a good part of it, off their hands.

The idea has been put into operation on a small scale for the relief of the wheat growers. It hasn't been used as yet for the benefit of the woolen or cotton manufacturers. They are cutting down on production or shutting up their mills, but out in the wheat fields there is a demand that the government extend its already large purchases of wheat by 25,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels. They want this done so as to insure better prices for wheat and take the surplus off the hands of those who have produced far in excess of the demands.

The demands for additional purchases on the part of the government are coming in anticipation of election. Candidates for office are doing their best to make certain that the wheat growers will vote and vote right. If they can get the administration to help out it will be fine, but the administration isn't to be led into unsound stunts. It has indicated that the appeals for the purchasing of more wheat must be passed upon by the farm board, and it is known that the farm board is alive to its responsibilities and unwilling to provide more funds for the wheat fields than are justified. It is quite natural that the farm board should desire some cooperation on the part of the wheat raisers for a curtailment of wheat production which is responsible for the surplus and low prices.

While Kansas is asking to have the government buy more of its wheat, and while Kansas has been getting first-hand advice from the farm board officials, there is a suggestion offered by the agricultural department of the Michigan state college that the wheat raisers of Kansas use their low-price wheat for feeding and make a saving over the price paid for corn until the situation improves.

The farm board has been telling the wheat raisers that they should reduce their wheat acreage and raise something else. From Michigan comes the advice to make a different use of their wheat. The need in the wheat fields seems to be to get away from the one-track mind.

SUPERINTENDENT AT MERIDEN

As head of the Meriden School for Boys, Roy L. McLaughlin of Rhode Island has been chosen. Death stepped in to make it impossible for the superintendent previously selected to direct that institution, but from qualifications and success accomplished in his present location there are reasons for believing that a wise selection has been made.

Conditions may not be the same in Rhode Island's school for boys as in this state. From the administration which has been given by Superintendent McLaughlin at the Sockanosset school in Rhode Island, quite a contrast is evidenced, even though the latter is a smaller institution.

What makes a good impression is the fact that the Rhode Island school authorities have reluctantly accepted his resignation. They do not relish his departure, but are unwilling to stand in the way of his advancement, from selfish motives.

When the Rhode Island public welfare board in accepting his resignation writes: "Your loyalty, cooperation and general good management of the institution entrusted to your care has been noted and appreciated by this commission and we feel it a distinct loss to have you go, a loss not only to us as a commission, but personally as well," there seems good and sufficient ground for believing that Connecticut has made a good selection and that an efficient administration under the new superintendent can be anticipated.

There can be no mistaking the fact that great responsibility rests in getting the right person for the head of such an institution. At Meriden the need of good management has been clearly shown and if Mr. McLaughlin has been able to give it to the satisfaction of the state to the east we are disposed to believe that his work in Connecticut will be equally successful. He comes with good recommendations.

BEETLE-KILLING STARLINGS

Among the birds which favor this part of the country the starling is a comparatively newcomer and it cannot be said that it is eagerly desired. It is a big eater, consuming much that is thrown out for other birds, and it is a noisy bird without having any song. Except for the interest in the large numbers of them which flock together there is no great partiality displayed for the starling.

Perhaps, though, there is a possibility that it may prove a blessing in disguise. While it is said to be an enemy of the English sparrow, it has later been discovered by a New Jersey gardener that there is something about the Japanese beetle that appeals to the hard-to-appease appetite of the starling. He has succeeded in baiting them to his garden by scattering bread about and when they discovered the Japanese beetles in plentiful number they lost no time in making an attack on that pest which, though it did not clear his grounds of them, gave indication that another method of fighting the pest and another reason for tolerating the starling had been discovered at one and the same time.

To find some use for a bird which has been regarded as almost if not quite undesirable brings some satisfaction. Birds are extremely valuable in ridding the fields of bugs and insects, but just now there is much stress being placed upon the battling of the Japanese beetles and it may be that through a liking for that kind of bug and the persistence with which the starling tackles the job of eradication that it will cause some of its shortcomings to be overlooked.

We have the starlings and many consider them a nuisance. If one nuisance can eliminate another, the possibility is that between the Japanese beetle and the starling the latter will be regarded as the lesser of the two evils. But it will only be so if the starling proves his worth as a beetle-killer.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Something is always the matter; either it is too hot, or too cold, or too wet or too dry.

The cost of prohibition to the nation is set at $957,000,000, and that doesn't include what has been paid to the bootleggers and blind pigs.

With the Kansas senators asking the government to buy more wheat they might advance the idea to the public of buying a bushel, quite the same as the south tried a while ago the idea of buy a bale of cotton.

OLD-FASHIONED NEW YEARS

It's a lot of money to spend on just one night's lark, but it'll be worth every hard-earned penny of it!"

Young Paul Mathor grinned happily, looked at his thin little bank book again, and then sighed in huge content.

"I can spend twenty-five. That leaves me enough to go on, if I don't get the set of books until the next month; my dad would think I was crazy, not to mention my esteemed employer; but with a wonderful girl like Ruth Carter, well, a man can't ask her to do things in a cheap way."

For a month Paul had scrimped and cut on every possible expense. He was going to ask Ruth Carter, the most beautiful golden red-head he had ever seen, to a real, bang-up New Year celebration! They would go to the Edgemore hotel, to dine and dance in the best possible style; a wonderful orchestra, the best of food, taxicab both ways, even a beautiful corsage for Ruth.

For six months now they had gone to everything together. Ruth wasn't only lovely to look at. Paul had long ago discovered that she had a fine, keen brain; and she had confessed to him one night that she made many of the frocks which he so admired. Paul's adoration of her increased as he learned more about her. She loved outdoor sports as much as he did. Often she had quietly suggested cheaper seats when he bought theatre tickets.

Well, she knew to a penny what his salary was. Paul chuckled.

He wanted to have just one date with her which would be worthy of her, the kind of thing other men would give her.

Ruth was delighted when he told her what he had planned.

"Lovely! I'd rather dance at the Edgemore than any place in town."

A week before Christmas Ruth sat in her little bedroom looking over her dresses with a sober face. Her slippers were really shabby; scuffed with much dancing. One could contrive a frock for the office or a little hat without much money if one had clever fingers and time enough. But evening slippers and an evening coat . . . that was a different story. She could manage a new dress, but the coat would cut into her slender bank balance with most appalling figures. If she received a few Christmas checks she could do it.

But the morning after Christmas she found the situation unchanged. In fact, worse. For bills were coming in fast, and she had received several lovely gifts, instead of the checks on which she had counted. And no one had given her evening slippers.

In spite of her worry she had to laugh.

"Too bad I can't sell some lingerie and buy a coat," she mourned. She sighed as she figured busily.

"It's terrible; I'll be spending much more than I have any business to, if I get the rose velvet coat with the white collar; but it's so beautiful, I must have it. Paul. I wonder what he'll think of it?"

Her eyes shone and her heart gave an excited little jump. She knew perfectly what Paul's reaction to that coat would be.

"He thinks I have everything, that I always look lovely; he doesn't dream of how I have to contrive sometimes," she thought wistfully.

Saturday afternoon she shopped again. And that evening, as she dressed to go out with Paul, she sat before her mirror, her face very sober. So much money to spend for one evening. Both for her and Paul.

For a long moment Ruth sat silent. Then she said abruptly:

"I won't do it. It's silly. We can have such fun some other way. We both love skating. I'm going to do it."

Paul looked at her with his heart in his eyes. His handsome face was almost radiant. What a girl she was! To suggest a lark like that; skating, then a midnight Dutch supper . . they could use his old car, too. He cleared his throat: "What do I think? Listen closely, sweetheart . . . . I'm going to tell you, right now."

On New Year's eve Paul and Ruth skimmed over the ice, blood tingling, hearts beating high and fast with that wonderful tempo of youth and love. Under her white wooly mittens Ruth felt the magic circle of her new ring. She was adorable in white fluffy cap and sweater. Chimes started to ring, far across the ice.

Paul bent his head, drawing her close to him.

"Perfect," he said, "our old-fashioned New Year's."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 17—It is hard to say how many senators may have participated in framing the strategy for the formal opening of the debate of the London naval treaty in special session of the senate.

Clearly the selection of Sen. Claude Swanson of Virginia to fire the opening gun in behalf of the pact was no matter of chance.

He is too heavy political artillery to be set off haphazardly.

Senator Swanson is ranking democratic member of the two senatorial committees concerned with the naval pact question, foreign relations and naval. If the democrats should come into power in the senate during his service, Swanson would become chairman of one committee or the other—and probably would select foreign relations. That, despite the fact that a leading naval center, Norfolk, is in his state.

Swanson also is a veteran with a consistent record of favoring naval expansion. He always has been classed as a "big navy man." He doubtless is the most experienced member of the naval committee, either republican or democratic, in naval matters.

Little Partisanship

And the Swanson pro-treaty speech was something of a master-piece among the many discussions of the subject the Bystander has heard or read.

It was carefully prepared and very dispassionate in tone. It was touched very lightly with political partisanship. It even spoke kindly of various "admirals" with opposing treaty views.

Joe Robinson, democratic leader, member of the delegation that negotiated the treaty, and a member of both the foreign relations and naval committees although Swanson's junior on both, might have seemed the logical man to lead off for democratic supporters of the treaty.

Since democratic votes were necessary to ratify, it was obvious strategy for the administration management in the senate to leave the honor of opening the ball to the democrats.

But why might the democrats have hit on Swanson rather than Robinson for the job?

Party Lines Broken

There are fascinating aspects of political star-gazing in that question. Could matters relating to the presidential election of 1932 have had a part in it all?

Was it all carefully worked out so as to take the naval pact out of party politics, to make a non-partisan matter of this pet Hoover project to such an extent that neither party could get any exclusive campaign thunder out of it two years from now?

Clearly a treaty to be made effective by such joint republican and democratic support as was behind the London pact could not be much of a campaign issue.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Egret Is No Coward

Be slow to judge, lest you may make
That which may prove a grave mistake.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Egret the Great White Heron had been shot. One wing had been injured so that he could not fly. It had been done by a two-legged killer with a terrible gun. He couldn't bear to see anything so beautiful live, so he tried to kill Egret, just because he was so unusual and so lovely. He had been frightened away before he could shoot again by the approach of Farmer Brown's Boy. The hunter had taken to a boat and had rowed across the Big River.

Now, of course, Egret didn't know who had shot him. He simply knew that it was one of those two-legged creatures. And when presently Farmer Brown's Boy discovered him, Egret blamed him for all that had happened. He thought it was Farmer Brown's Boy who had shot him with that terrible gun.

Like all members of the Heron family, Egret has a long and very sharp bill. He has a bill that no one cares to be struck with. When he saw Farmer Brown's Boy approaching, Egret drew back his head and prepared to fight. "I'll aim for one of his eyes," thought Egret.

Now, Farmer Brown's Boy saw that Egret was prepared to fight. He knew just how dangerous that bill was. It wouldn't do to let Egret strike him with that. No, sir, it wouldn't do at all. What could he do to avoid it?

"I wish I had my coat here," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "If I had my coat it would be easy to capture Egret. I have to have something to throw over his head."

Farmer Brown's Boy thought for a minute or two and then grinned, as he began to pull his shirt off. He would throw that shirt over Egret's head and then would be able to seize him and hold onto that long bill. Of course, Egret didn't know what Farmer Brown's Boy was planning to do. He looked as fierce as he knew how and as Farmer Brown's Boy drew near he struck once like a flash. Farmer Brown's Boy dodged and then tossed his shirt over Egret's head. How Egret tried and tried to shake it off. He twisted and turned and he flapped his one good wing, but it was all in vain. In spite of his struggles, Farmer Brown's Boy soon had him in his arms.

"It's all right," said Farmer Brown's Boy soothingly. "It's all right, old fellow. I'm not going to hurt you. I'm going to try to save you. I presume you think that I am the cause of all your trouble. But I'm not."

Egret is no coward. Had it not been for that shirt which covered his head and, therefore, made it impossible for him to use that great bill of his, he would have fought as long as he had breath. But when he realized how helpless he was, he stopped struggling. That was the wise thing to do. There was nothing to be gained by struggling helplessly.

Farmer Brown's Boy took great care not to hurt that injured wing as he gathered Egret in his arms. He kept the shirt over Egret's head until he got a good grasp of that long bill with one hand. Then he shook the shirt loose, so that it would not smother the big white bird.

"We're all right now old fellow," said he. "We'll head for home now. We'll see what we can do for that wing when we get there and then we'll make you as comfortable as we can. But you'll have to be a prisoner for a while. You'll have to be a prisoner until you can use that wing."

Trench Mouth—Vincent's Disease

By Oliver T. Osborne, M. D.
New Haven.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

This is a disease caused by two closely allied forms of bacteria, a bacillus and a spirochete, which attack principally the gums and tonsils. It was long known as Vincent's disease, having been described by him in 1896. For many years it was not of frequent occurence, but during the World war it attacked the soldiers in large numbers, especially those who were in close relationship to each other in the trenches. Since this time it has been frequently termed "trench mouth." Many of the soldiers returning to this country brought with them this mouth infection, and as it is very contagious it has been largely spread, through them and other carriers of these germs. It rapidly spreads in families, and is acquired by close contact with anyone who has the disease. Dentists have learned that they must be very particular in the sterilization of their instruments and of their hands, as many persons have the disease who are not aware of it, it often occurring in a very mild form.

Anyone who discovers that he has trench mouth must be treated by a dentist or physician until cultures taken from the mouth show the absence of the causative germs. One having the disease should not use an ordinarily bristle toothbrush which becomes infected and perpetuates the disease. He should use some method of cleaning his teeth whereby the cleaning substance is never used but once. A rubber toothbrush which can be boiled or sterilized and after each cleaning of the teeth is satisfactory.

One having the infection must remember that spoons, forks, drinking glasses, etc., can all become contaminated, and must be properly sterilized. Kissing must be abolished. He must be very careful that his hands do not become contaminated as he may touch something that is soon handled by someone else. The disease, especially when it attacks the gums, is difficult to cure, and readily recurs in pockets between the teeth. Freedom from the disease can only be decided by repeated cultures being taken and found negative.

The disease can become very serious and even fatal. It can cause a streptococcic infection of the whole body, and may cause a gangrenous condition to occur in the mouth or in some other part of the body. It may even reach the lungs and cause a very dangerous inflammation. When the disease is acute it may cause fever and swelling of the glands in the neck, loosening of the teeth, fetid breath, and even ulceration down into the bones of the jaw. Smoking, instead of killing the germs seems to aid in continuing the infection.

Anyone who has sore gums or inflamed tonsils should seek his dentist or his physician for a diagnosis of the cause of the condition, and every dentist and every physician should remember the possibility of these germs being present in the mouth of every patient.

Bogota

Bogota, capital of Colombia, which may be incorporated in a federal district similar to the District of Colombia, is the subject of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"As the crow flies, Bogota is not as remote from the Caribbean coast as Columbus, Ohio, is from the Atlantic seaboard," says the bulletin. "But until the airplane came Bogota was one of the out-of-the-way places of the Western Hemisphere, seldom visited by the average traveler.

"Until recently it took a week to reach the city by boat and rail. Today seaplanes plying between the Caribbean coast and the capital make the trip in as many hours as it formerly took days. The boat and railroad trip is nearly 850 miles; the air route covers about half that mileage.

"If the traveler has plenty of time and prefers the old route he sails up the Magdalena to the head of navigation of the lower river. A railroad coach then is boarded for a trip around a series of rapids at the upper end of which a small boat waits to transport passengers and freight to Girardot, the 'port' of Bogota. A railroad connects Girardot with the capital city.

"Bogota is a city of about 185,000 people, perched a mile and a half above sea level, on a sloping plateau in the Andres. It is only 300 miles north of the Equator, but the city's climate is cool and comfortable. On the plateau the torrid breezes from the Andes Valleys meet the chilly blasts from the snow-capped peaks above.

"A handsome railroad station gives the land traveler a splendid first impression of the capital while throughout the city one comes upon fine government, school and business buildings.

"Plazas and parks many of which are ornamented with statues and flowering gardens, dot the city. One of the principal plazas is named for Bolivar and a bronze equestrian statue of the famous liberator is mounted on a granite pedestal in the center.

"When the Spaniards arrived in Bogota in the sixteenth century the Chibcha Indians held sway. The natives fled and to-day there is little evidence of their occupation of the city's site. Spain released her hold on Colombia more than a century ago, but Spanish customs are indelibly marked upon the city and its people. Spanish is spoken; Spanish architecture predominates and many families are proud of their pure Spanish blood.

"Some streets are so narrow that even the two-story buildings flanking them form small canyons. Nevertheless they accomodate street cars.

"Fine educational institutions have earned for Bogota the title, 'The Athens of South America.' Travelers cannot ride many city blocks without passing schools or colleges. There also is a university, botanical garden, naval observatory, library and museum.

"Fertile lands in adjacent valleys produce tropical fruits and vegetables while the mountains offer products of cooler zones. Along market aisles are huge piles of bananas, and hampers of avocados, limes, potatoes, prickly pears, cherries and pinapples.

"Coffee is a major product of the Bogota region. Cotton and woolen cloth are manufactured in the capital, flour is milled and all sorts of leather goods, including shoes, are made."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The James Swan Company, Seymour

The James Swan company of Seymour, was incorporated in 1895 by the late James Swan, who had purchased in 1877 the plant originally started on the same grounds in 1856 by the Douglas Manufacturing company.

He had been superintendent for them for a number of years so that the making of carpenters' tools had been in the Swan family close to three quarters of a century.

From a small beginning the business has grown so that now over one hundred kinds of carpenters' tools are manufactured, including all styles of augers, auger bits, chisels, gauges, draw knives, screw drivers, bung borers, boring machines, gimlets, etc.

They have recently brought out a bit for use with an electric drill as well as other bits for use in the electrical trade.

Many of the mechanics have been with the company for a long term of years, which accounts for the fact that the class of goods manufactured are of the highest class and which have taken many prizes at the world's expositions.

The stamp of the trade-mark upon a tool is a guarantee which no user can afford to overlook. A New York office is maintained at No. 28 Warren street, and from this point the goods are exported all over the world.

The present officers of the company are: William B. Swan, president and treasurer; John Swan, assistant treasurer; J. Albert Tocher, secretary.

Rundown?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

YOUR "run-down" child may be playing host to vitality-sapping worms which rob her of nourishment and poison her with their secretions. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

LEGION'S MEMBERSHIP IN STATE GROWN TO 12,003

The American Legion, department of Connecticut, this week for the fifth successive time, surpassed its previous year's membership, setting a new high record of 12,003 members, with half of the year yet ahead of it. Each year since 1925 the organization has shown a substantial gain, until now it is by far the largest veteran organization in Connecticut.

With the department convention just around the corner, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, July 24, 25 and 26, to be exact, at Bridgeport, a last minute effort on the part of the veterans inside the organization brought the figure from 11,221, the membership on Dec. 31, 1929, to the present mark of 12,003, an increase of 762.

When it is realized that the Legion unlike most veteran and fraternal organizations, does not have an overlapping membership, but renews all of its membership for each calendar year the record becomes more impressive. In keeping with its greater strength the department is planning an even larger convention than last year, and it is confidently expected that several thousand Legionnaires and their families will take part at the business sessions and reunions that share the time of the Bridgeport gathering.

Six new posts will appear in the convention hall and in the parade which winds up the convention on Saturday. In order of their foundation this past winter they are Woodbridge, New Haven Railroad post, Collinsville, Burlington, Rocky Hill and New London Women's post. This last post fills a need that has existed in New London for some time. A large number of yeomanettes, women who served in the United States navy and marine corps during the war, are residents of the area immediately adjacent to the Whaling City. This group followed in the footsteps of the Jane A. Delano post of Waterford, an organization of former nurses and yeomanettes, and took steps to perfect a post devoted exclusively to feminine membership. It is the confident expectation of Legion officials that the next group, the Cecelia A. Sweeney post, will follow the older Hartford organization and attain a similar membership approaching the 100 mark.

MORTON AND GRANT TIE FOR MEDAL IN QUALIFYING ROUND OF INVITATION

After Bobby Grant's 75 had withstood the assaults of the entire field of over 100 golfers in the annual invitation tournament of the Norwich Golf club Thursday, Dave Morton, local club champion, came striding through the gathering shadows of the late summer afternoon to post his card of 75 beside that of Grant's to share the medalist honors with the youthful Hartford sensation. Grant posted his score early in the afternoon to take the lead from Max Kaesche of Ridgewood, N. J., defending champion, who had shot a 76 earlier in the day. As the players came in it looked as though Grant's 75 would carry away the medal and Morton was the only one out who was conceded a chance of beating the Hartford boy.

Then came the report that Morton was at the 13th hole and was only three over par. Par golf on the last five holes would give the local ace the medal by one stroke. He clicked off a par on the 590-yard 14th, got his par three on the short 15th and corralled a par five on the 16th. At the 17th he dropped a stroke to par and found himself needing a birdie three on the home hole to capture the medal and a par four to tie.

His tee shot split the fairway a good 250 yards and his iron shot to the green was hole high but about 20 feet to the right of the pin. Morton made a brilliant attempt, going straight for the cup, but within a foot of the hole the ball swerved out of line and came to rest six inches away. It was an easy four for the tying score. Morton shot consistent golf, having par golf to the sixth, where he went one over. He had a par five on the long seven and lost another stroke on the eighth, but hit par on the ninth for an outgoing score of 38, two over par. On the incoming nine he lost a stroke on the 11th and one on the 17th, to make him two over perfect figures.

Shot Nice Golf

Grant, with the exception of the long seventh, where he took an eight, three over par, shot nice golf, getting a birdie two on the short second. He was out in 38, the same as Morton. On the incoming nine, Grant knocked off seven par holes in succession, only to lose a stroke on the 17th and another on the 18th.

The cards:

Par Out	4	3	4	4	4	4	5	4	4	—36
Morton—Out	4	3	4	4	4	5	5	5	4	—38
Grant—Out	4	2	4	3	5	4	8	4	4	—38
Par In	4	3	4	4	5	3	5	3	4	—35-36—71
Morton—In	4	4	4	4	5	5	4	4	4	—37-38—75
Grant—In	4	3	4	4	5	3	5	4	5	—37-38—75

Max Kaesche, one of the favorites to win the medal, hit a little tough going on the first nine, getting a 40, but on the incoming nine he clicked off a 36 to finish five over par for the round. Next in lineup was Frank Welch, former member of the Norwich club but now of Forest Hills, N. J., who had a 77 a position he held alone. Tied with 78's were Louis Stoner of Hartford and Dow Ahern of Willimantic. Ahern, who was given a good chance to land the medal, fell below his two practice rounds of the day before to take a 39-39—78. Stoner got off to a bad start on the first hole when he lost his tee shot in the rough in the gully. He took a five on the hole.

Match Play Starting

The championship flight includes those with scores of 84 or better and match play starts this (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock. In the first round matches the two medalists are in opposite halves of the bracket, Grant meeting Johnny Sayles, local boy, and Morton meeting G. J. Callahan of Springfield, Mass. Max Kaesche, who is defending the cup, clashes with Noble C. Miller, a local member, and will meet stern competition, as Miller is an exceptionally fine match player.

The match play starts at 8 o'clock this morning with the sixth flight taking the lead. The committee in charge is insistent the matches go according to schedule and those players who are not ready to go at the time will be defaulted.

High scores were the general rule in Thursday's play, due in a large part to the fast greens, which were also very tricky and it was only those with a delicate touch that scored well on them.

In the evening there was a banquet at the Norwich Inn which was attended by practically the entire field. There was a general good time with the two medalists coming in for plenty of attention.

The qualifying scores were:

Bobby Grant, Wethersfield, 38-37—75
Dave Morton, Norwich, 38-37—75
Max B. Kaesche, Ridgewood, N. J., 40-36—76

TOLLAND MEETING FAVORS $5,000,000 FOR DIRT ROADS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, July 17—About 300 delegates from all the towns in Tolland county as well as a number of towns in Windham and New London county attended a Tolland county meeting of the Connecticut Rural Road Improvements association held at Hawley armory here tonight. The association which has for its slogan "Get Connecticut out of the Mud" went on record tonight as favoring a $5,000,000 annual appropriation over a period of ten or 15 years for the improvement of country roads.

Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry, secretary of state and executive committeeman for Tolland, presided over the meeting and was one of the speakers. Other speakers were Louis G. Tolles of Southington, president of the state association and Albert T. Marsh, of New Britain, U. S. deputy marshal. An entertainment program of songs, dances, monologues etc. was given by members of the actors' summer colony who volunteered their services in the interests of the movement.

The purpose of tonight's meeting was to instruct the Tolland county delegates how to organize auxiliary associations in the towns of the county. The state association by-laws and constitution were presented as models in this work. It is understood that Leonard Healy of Woodstock and Merton H. Bartlett of Jewett City committeemen for Windham and New London counties respectively are planning similar organization work in their counties. During the meeting about 60 of those present enrolled in the state association and over 250 of the radiator emblems of the association were distributed. An effort was made by the chairman and the other speakers to clarify the stand of the association on the matter of rural roads and roads in rural communities. It was pointed out that the program includes all rural roads irrespective of whether they are within city limits, as many of them are, or in rural communities. In its program the association makes acknowledgement of the splendid state highway and state aid road system in Connecticut. As a special inducement for organization in Tolland county Dr. Higgins tonight offered a prize for the town securing the largest enrollment in the state association and another prize for the town gaining the largest membership in its local auxiliary. These prizes are to be based on proportionate population and final returns must be in by September 1.

The officers of the state association are: Louis G. Tolles, Southington, president; Robert C. Mitchell, Southport, vice president; Charles D. Kilburne, Litchfield, secretary; Berkeley J Florian, Plantsville, treasurer; county chairmen, Albert T. Marsh, New Britain, Hartford county; J. Edward Couer, Southbury, New Haven county; William E. Templeton, Kent, Litchfield county; Iverson T. Fanton, Westport, Fairfield county; Dr. William L. Higgins, South Coventry, Tolland county; Leonard Healy, Woodstock, Windham county; John N Miller, Clinton, Middlesex county; Merton H. Bartlett, Jewett City, New London county. Representing the state grange are J. Arthur Sherwood of Bridgeport and Minner Ives of South Meriden.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—*Mrs. W. CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria have him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drugstore; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

SINGER WINS LIGHTWEIGHT CROWN BY KAYOING MANDELL IN FIRST

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, July 17.— (AP)—A furious chunk of bone and muscle in the person of eager, young Al Singer swept over Sammy Mandell tonight and smashed the veteran champion of the lightweights loose from his title in less than a round.

A flaming youth who could not be denied by the craft and guile of the 135 pound ruler for the past four years. Singer swept over the champion with the suddenness of a bolt from the calm sky, crashed him to the floor three times, and then finished him with a stunning right to the jaw. The round lasted one minute and 46 seconds.

Singer had been conceded far better than an even chance to beat down the king whose reign went back to 1926 and a victory over the ring-worn Rocky Kansas. Ringsiders were giving odds as the battle started that the tanned, vicious youngster would whip Mandell somewhere along the 15-round championship route.

But not even Singer's rabid rooters from the Bronx, and least of all the 35,000 who gathered under the warm summer sky, foresaw the blazing action that was ahead.

Singer, keyed to such a nervous pitch that he trembled in his corner, danced, glowered, and all but pushed the referee apart in his eagerness, turned loose an amazing display of punching prowess before Mandell had any time to mount his defenses and prepare for the devastating attack.

He wasted no time, danced, feinted, and finally set the champion for the first decisive blow of the duel, a left hook that caught Sammy on the chin and dumped him into the slag in the center of the ring for a count of two.

Mandell must have been hurt or was contemptuous of the youngster's slugging power, for he bounced right to his feet. Instead of waiting, feinting for another opening, Singer flew at the champion, baring his teeth in a snarl as he tore in, winging both hands from the sides.

The next few moments were the longest of the bout that Mandell spent on his feet. He reeled backward, overwhelmed by the lithe kid's searing onslaught and rocked from one side of the ring to the other as Singer drove his punches to the head. Mandell's hands sank to his sides, his mouth drooped, and he collapsed across the lower ropes on his own side of the ring.

Blood seeped from the champion's eyes and mouth as he hung half out of the ring, a pitiful caricature of the calm, finely conditioned athlete who had entered the battle pit so confidently less than two minutes before. He pulled himself up as Referee Arthur Donovan brought his arm down with the stroke of seven and climbed wearily to his feet.

But he had no defense to offer against the charge of a vicious young man gone completely wild.

Singer swept in with a left hook that snapped Mandell's head back between his shoulders and floored him for the third time, this one for four.

There was nothing left of the champion but his courage as he stumbled to his feet for the last time, his back to the ropes across from where he took the second knock down, his knees already sagging as Singer hurled himself in again. A left and right set Mandell flying into the sagging ropes and as the titleholder bounced off Young Al nailed him full on the chin with a right.

That shot ended the battle. Mandell collapsed as though he were coming apart, thudded to the canvas on his back, and heard nothing until the count of eight. There he made his last bid to carry on but his muscles were cotton strands, his legs part of some other being. He twisted half over on his face but slumped back and was stretched stiff and cold at the count of ten.

To the 25,000 fans the battle was eminently satisfactory. Violently they cheered the new title holder—a sleek, colorful kid who still shades the voting age and has less than three years of professional experience—for bringing the title Benny Leonard last held for New York back to the metropolis.

Some boos mingled in the ovation, for the faithful what with the epidemic of fouls and other things, are becoming chronically suspicious. Singer was a 3 to 1 favorite entering the ring, odds that seemed entirely unjustified in view of the ability and craft of the clever Mandell. The champion, however, was believed to have been greatly weakened by the ordeal of weight-making, a problem that had bothered him in each of his three title defenses since gaining the crown in 1926.

Singer brings to the 135-pound throne seat speed, a husky punch, boxing ability and youth that seems destined to rule for a long time. His record was nothing to compare with that of Mandell, the champion, who crushed Jimmy McLarnin, the Celt, with a beautiful display of boxing ability at the Polo Grounds here two years ago. Since then Mandell defeated Tony Canzoneri in a title test but lost two overweight matches to McLarnin and took solid beatings in both.

Singer has been carefully nursed. He fought Canzoneri a draw but was knocked out by a featherweight, Ignacio Fernandez, in three rounds, though he later defeated the Filipino. He lost a decision to Kid Chocolate and neglected to fight Jackie Kid Berg for the right to meet Mandell.

The knockout apparently wrote the final line to the record of Mandell's career. Before this match he indicated he would retire if Singer beat him before the $200,000 worth of customers who settled in the ball yard tonight.

Mandell's struggle to make the weight brought him to the scales at 134 1-2 pounds. Singer, a natural lightweight with no poundage problems, scaled 133 1-2.

The latest lightweight sensation from South America, Justo Suarez of Buenos Aires, punched out a 10-round victory over the veteran button-hole worker of Brooklyn, Joe Glick, in the semi-final contest, fought after the main go. Suarez, a hard, two-fisted puncher, floored Glick for a count of nine in the second round and knocked the veteran to his knees in the tenth. The Argentine had all the better of the milling but lacked the experience to put away his tough opponent. Suarez weighed 138 and Glick 138 1-2.

Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as the flyweight champion, swarmed over Ernie Peters of Chicago, who had a four round advantage at 116 1-2, and won an eight round decision in the preliminary before the main event.

ATHLETICS POUND THOMAS HARD TO BEAT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 17—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics took a lead of three and one-half games over the Washington club today by defeating Chicago 12 to 8, as Cleveland won over Washington.

Al Thomas started for the Sox and pitched well until the sixth when the A's nicked him for three runs. Again in the seventh they scored five more markers and Thomas was relieved by Walsh.

Mahaffey was the first Philadelphia pitcher but he stayed only two innings giving way to Rommel who continued on until the ninth when Grove was rushed in to halt a White Sox rally which had already produced five runs.

ALTHOUGH OUTHIT GIANTS TRIM CARDINALS, 12 TO 9

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—Threatened with a drop into fourth place, the Giants rose and smote the St. Louis Cardinals pitching today for 25 solid hits and a 12 to 9 victory to make their position safe for a while.

The Cardinals also did some heavy hitting, getting 20 blows off four New York pitchers, but they were not so effective. St. Louis barely missed equalling the National league record for having men left on bases. They had 17 runners stranded.

Clarence Mitchell, who started for the Giants, got credit for the victory over his former mates although Heving, Fitzsimmons and finally Hubbell were called upon for duty as the Cards rallied later in the game and scored four runs in the ninth.

CUBS CUT ROBINS' MARGIN BY TAKING 13-INNING TILT

BROOKLYN, July 17—(AP)—In a 13-inning struggle of the baseball titans today, the Chicago Cubs gained a 6 to 3 triumph over Brooklyn's league leading Robins to cut their margin to two games. Dazzy Vance, appearing in the unaccustomed role of relief pitcher, was the victim of Chicago's final three run rally.

The Cubs took an early three run lead off Ray Phelps, two of the tallies coming in the third when Hartnett's Texas leaguer along the right field foul line got away for a triple. Phelps started Brooklyn off with a home run in the fifth. Teachout was driven from the mound in the eighth after Finn's homer, Herman's triple and Bressler's single had tied the score.

Bush pitched fine relief ball, allowing only three hits in the last 5 2-3 innings. Vance appeared in the ninth, relieving Dudley, and did well until the thirteenth. With one out, Blair scratched a single, English's line drive through the box caromed off second base for a hit and Cuyler bounced a line drive off Hendrick's glove for a third hit which brought in the deciding run. Stephenson made the fourth single which brought English and Cuyler home.

THERMOS TEAM HAS HEAVY HITTERS

Nine of the 12 men on the Thermos Bottle team, leaders of the City league, are clubbing for an average of .300 or better according to figures compiled last Friday night with the finish of the fourth week of play in the circuit. Every one of the regulars is in the select class, two sub pitchers and a utility outfielder sticking under the .300 mark.

Despite the fact that 32 hitters in the loop topped the .300 mark in the first 16 games of play there has been very little long distance hitting to date. But four men, Normandin, N. Lemieux, Nap. Liberty and Yerrington have hit for the circuit and each player has but one smash to his credit. No player in the league has hit more than one three bagger and Jimmy Mullins, Thermos gardner sets the pace for doubles, with four.

The leading scorer to date is Lloyd Jarvis, Citizen outfielder. Lloyd has counted 8 runs despite the fact that he has batted but 12 times.

Pepin and De Celles, part time employes of the Ideal staff, top the hitters in the league with averages of .667 and .600 respectively. Neither, however, has played in more than two games. Yerrington, Italian third sacker, has the best full time average. He has played in each of the Italian club's four games and boasts of .583.

The officials averages up to and including the game of July 11 are as follows:

HUDLIN BESTS JONES IN HURLING DUEL, NATS LOSE

CLEVELAND, O., July 17—(AP)—Willis Hudlin and the veteran Sam Jones staged a sharp pitching duel today as the Cleveland Indians defeated Washington 4 to 3 in the third game of their series.

The Indian moundsman allowed seven hits and Jones eight.

The biggest kick of the game was Eddie Morgan who drove in three of the four runs, the first two in the opening inning with his seventeenth homer of the season just after Porter had doubled.

MANAGER MOLLEUR HAS A FEW THINGS TO SAY

Sports Editor:—In reply to the write up in Thursday's paper I wish to state that the manager of the J. B. Martin team was quite right in stating that I have gone out to obtain a hurler for Sunday's game. I have obtained the services of one of the leading pitchers in the Greater Boston Twilight league, who will, no doubt, have the Indian sign on the J. B. Martin team. As for, lucky breaks—well, all one has to do is ask nine out of ten fans who attended last Sunday's game and they will tell one that the Martins certainly were lucky— in fact, the sensational stops made by Liberty and Cimmikoski were nothing less than lucky stabs and finding the ball in their gloves. We admit that they are good ball players but undoubtedly, they played over their heads on Sunday.

My team did make a pretty poor job of base running but the assistance of the tenth man on the Martin's did most certainly help them.

Next Sunday I will have the full strength of my team on the field. This will make quite a difference in our hitting power and fielding. For Mr. Linder, the great I feel sorry since I feel that he will not last the full game. My parting advice to the manager of the J. B. Martin is to re-enforce his own pitching staff because he will undoubtedly need it.

RODERICK MOLLEUR,
Manager.

JOHNNY KOP FIGHTS AT WESTERLY THIS EVENING

Johnny Kop, local battler, makes another start in the ring tonight when he meets Julio Rossi of Westerly in a six round semi-final to the Pete Lucci-Vernon Cormier bout at the St. Michael's arena at Westerly. Kop has not been boxing since he broke a small bone in his hand early in the spring but is now in good shape and expects to take Rossi in short time.

Snooks Lacey of Norwich meets the Mystic Terror in the opening four rounder.

THERMOS TAKES LOOSE GAME FROM ITALIANS

Seven official errors and nearly twice as many slipups, which will never show in the league records, were made by the Italian Young Men's club in their game with the league leading Thermos Bottlers at the campus last night. The contest was the most loosely played of the current season and was won by the Hasteditmen 17 to 3.

With the exception of two or three of the Italians, every man on the losing club was guilty of some slipup. The Thermos played good ball behind some nice mound work by Nickerson and the outcome of the affair was never in doubt. They went to work in the opening frame and scored five counters, enough to put the game on the proverbial ice. With the exception of the third and sixth the winners counted at least once in every inning.

Lefty Lucier worked the Italian hill and yielded a total of 15 hits, loosening up when he found that his club did not have a chance.

Normandin, Thermos second baseman, was the "big shot" of the game. He collected three hits in four attempts and handled five chances without a slip. Kampf, in center for the Italians, made four nice putouts and had one assist. The score:

Tonight's Game.

The Polish Citizens and Royals, two of the bitterest rivals in the City league, come together in the Twilight game at the campus tonight. They met a week ago and the Cits, behind some wonderful pitching by Johnny Greene, won out, 6 to 0. Anxious to wipe out the week old mark, the Psnek clan is banking everything on a win this evening and in all probability will start its star, Tommy Simcox. Simmy worked against the Ideals Wednesday but is confident that with only a two day rest he can set back the Cits. Tommy, it will be remembered, is the only hurler in the circuit who stopped the league leading Thermos Bottle club.

Johnny Greene without doubt will work on the Citizen hill and his supporters are confident that he will turn in an exhibition equally as good as that of last week.

RICE BLANKS TEXTILERS WITH THREE SCATTERED HITS

"Dicky" Rice, star hurler of the Robertson Paper Box Co. pitched his team to victory Thursday evening at the Gair diamond at Uncasville by shutting out the Textilers, 1 to 0. He allowed only three scattered hits in the seven innings. Ski was on the mound for the Textilers and the Boxmakers, touched him for six hits, one of them a two-bagger by Templey. The winning run was put across in the sixth by Walt Tisky, who got to first on a base on balls and then stole second and third and Rice, next batter, bunted the ball and the Textile catcher threw wild to first, resulting in the winning run.

FOUR OF THE PENN STATE PLAYERS IN TOURNEY

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 17—(AP)—The "Pennsylvania menace" hanging over the Griswold trophy had assumed tremendous proportions today after the second round of match play in the Women's Invitation golf tournament at the Shennecossett Country club here.

Four stars from the Quaker state, including the medalist and two former winners, were safely installed in the quarter finals and equally spaced in the pairings so that they need not face one another until the semi-finals if they all win in the next round.

Miss Frances Williams, of Allentown, Pa., eastern champion and medalist, won her second decisive victory in today's round, eliminating Mrs. E. F. Shay of Point Judith, R. I., 7 and 5.

Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Penn., defender of the Griswold cup, had little trouble disposing of Mrs. R. N. Barlow, of Philadelphia, winner of the initial tournament in 1919, by a margin of 5 and 4.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, former American and British champion, and winner here in 1927 and 1928, eliminated a home town rival, Mrs. Helen Payson Corson, 6 and 4.

Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, defeated Miss Jane McCullough, 6 and 4, in another all-Philadelphia match.

Miss Jane Broadwell of Springfield, Mass., had to shoot better than average golf to beat 15-year-old Dorothy Jamin of Haworth, N. J., one up, in an extra hole match.

Mrs. Hazel P. Martelle of Hartford won handily from Mrs. A. W. Rodney of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 5 and 3, and Mrs. J. B. Kirby of Branford had to go to the 18th green to win a nip and tuck duel with Mrs. Roderick Pirrie of Bronxville, N. Y., one up.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs made a walkaway of her match with Miss Jean Poindexter of Hartford, 5 and 4. Miss Poindexter was a slight favorite over her opponent and the decisive victory for Mrs. Briggs came as something of a surprise.

Hyde And Wiley Lose

WATERBURY, July 17. — (AP) — Francis Smith of Waterbury, and Tom Wilbur of Bridgeport, won the state men's doubles tennis championship here today by defeating Hobey Hyde and Lee Wiley, of Hartford, in the finals, 5-7, 6-1, 0-6, 6-4, 7-5. Hyde and Wiley eliminated the New Haven team of Morse and Robinson earlier in the day in the last semi-final match, [illegible].

ROTARIANS BREAK UP GAME WITH 11-RUN RALLY

Staging a batting rally in the fifth inning which netted eleven runs, the Rotary broke up a perfectly good ball game with the Duwells Thursday night winning 13 to 4. Previous to this inning, the two teams had battled on practically even terms with the Rotary leading 2 to 1.

The break of the game came in a peculiar manner. With Caron on first base, and Deschamps batting, the latter swung at a pitched ball and missed. Kos, catching for the Duwells failed to hold the ball and it bounded out of his glove again striking the bat and rolling out into the infield. The question arose as to whether the ball was dead or not and whether Caron who was on first should be allowed to advance to second or not. Umpire Burke ruled that Caron could advance and that the ball was in play. There was quite an argument following this decision, but the Duwells finally agreed to go on. From this point, the East Siders went to pieces completely, the Rotary garnering seven straight hits among which was a home run clout by Dickenman. Fifteen men stepped up to the plate in this hectic frame. The story of the game might be told in this one inning as that which happened in the other frames had little to do with the final result.

Zavistoski led the hitters with a home run, a double and two singles out of four trips to the plate, while O'Neil was close behind with three hits out of four.

Tonight's Game.

Tonight at the Duwell Field, the Elks meet the Italian Young Men's club in the Junior league. These two teams played earlier in the season but the game resulted in a protest on the part of the Italian club over a question of misinterpretation of the rules by Umpire Matthews. At a meeting of the executive board of the league, it was decided to play the game over and tonight was selected as the date.

The Elks are out to keep their slate clean and have groomed their star twirler, Fuller for the occasion. Fuller pitched a no-hit game a short time ago and is considered one of the leading twirlers of the circuit. Connell and Angelone will be the probable battery for the I. Y. M. C.

Game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. sharp.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The market was liberally supplied with most native produce this morning and the housewife can find good buys in almost any line of native stock of excellent quality fresh from the gardens.

Green and wax beans were slightly improved from their weak market of the last few days. Supplies have decreased somewhat and a better demand prevails for fancy stock. Beets and cabbage continue difficult of disposal. Carrots and spinach were selling well. Native cucumbers, tomatoes and sweet corn are increasing in offerings and with a lower tendency.

Red raspberries were moderately offered and finding ready sales. Black caps were scarce. Blueberries are coming in quite freely.

Shipped in potatoes were firmer, though local prices were mostly unchanged. The general market is advanced.

Poultry continue weak. An active demand prevails in native eggs with decreased offerings.

STATE HEALTH BOARD GIVES VACATION ADVICE

Is vacation necessary? The man who brags that he hasn't had a vacation for years is, more than likely, laying up for himself a nice long vacation that will be forced upon him at a time least convenient for him to take it, and under circumstances not conducive to his enjoyment, says the state board of health in its weekly letter.

Time has gone by when the stern puritan element in our nature discouraged participation in pleasurable activities. We now take a more sane view of such matters and are right in thinking that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Those of us who are health-minded are firmly convinced that our day must be distributed between work, rest and recreation, exercise being combined with either the first or the last.

But this is not enough. We need each year a short period of complete change from our daily schedule—a change of scenery, a change of associates, freedom from business cares (and this includes household duties), a chance to do the things nearest to our heart without thought of the round of the clock; in other words a chance to re-create to recharge ourselves with new life and enthusiasm because we have slackened that tension for awhile.

What sort of vacation? Since a vacation is to restore us to normal after a year of crowded activities whether in business or home, the type of vacation chosen should give the greatest change. Those whose life has been most active should seek a restful spot away from the busy centers, while the busy housewife might find more relief from a shore resort with varied amusements—the extreme from household cares. One of studious nature should lay books aside and mingle with people—social intercourse changes one's viewpoint and gives one a different outlook on life.

The vacation should be the one best suited to the individual, aimed to restore jaded nerves, strengthen inactive muscles, relax tense muscles, and broaden and refresh one's outlook. Outdoor life is the best as there is virtue in sunlight and stimulation in fresh air.

WINDHAM FEDERAL OFFICER RAIDS BELL-KANEEN PLACES AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 17.—Federal Officer Harry W. Avery, of Windham, assisted by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Dennis Murphy, conducted two successful raids here late this afternoon. Besides having actual sales against the proprietors, the raiders found evidence of the nature of the business being conducted. Those arrested were Edward Bell, 97 Green street and John Kaneen, proprietor of a meat market at 806 Bank street. Both were locked up, but later released upon furnishing a surety on their respective bonds of $1,000. Bell will be presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran Saturday morning at 9.30 o'clock and Kaneen will be presented in court next Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Officer Avery came to New London about 4:30 o'clock with the warrants for the arrest of Bell and Kaneen. After securing assistance at New London police headquarters the officer went to Bell's place, where two patrons were in the main store. As soon as the officers entered, Bell seized a pint bottle which had been in his pocket and attempted to destroy its contents by pouring it into the sink. He was only partially successful for the raiders seized him and secured a part of the contents of the bottle. A glass, alleged to have contained whiskey, was knocked on the floor and destroyed.

The raiding force then went to the Bank street market, which is one of the oldest established markets in the city. Kaneen was in charge and a search of the premises revealed four bottles of whiskey, which were seized as additional evidence against him, for Kaneen, who, it is claimed, has been doing a profitable business by his side line, sold to a stool pigeon employed by the prohibition agent, as was the case with Bell although the latter stoutly denies that he sold to a stranger. Bell has been arrested several times on the same charge, but not by federal agents. Kaneen has not been arrested before on a charge of violation of the liquor law.

A Pearl street resident employed as a painter, was arrested this afternoon, charged with intoxication and will be presented in the police court tomorrow. The man has been on a protracted spree and in order to bring about his sobriety he was arrested.

Thousands Seek The Beach

There has been a larger number of visitors to Ocean Beach since Saturday than in any other five days this season. Particularly was this the case Sunday and today. With the mercury hovering about the 86 mark this afternoon thousands of men, women and children, in automobiles and trolley cars, sought the shore to enjoy either the bathing or the cooling breeze. Throughout the evening the crowds remained in large numbers.

John White, employed by the Bruce Electrical company, Bank street, tonight made complaint to the police because of his automobile having been damaged, apparently through sheer maliciousness. The automobile was parked in the yard of the customs house and when White went there to drive to his home, he discovered that a stone had smashed one of the windows.

Mrs. Daniel C. McKeon, 41 Montauk avenue, reported to the police tonight that an attempt was made last night by a crook to enter her home. The police are making an investigation.

Ahearn Known To Many

Roy Ahearn, 26, of Waterbury, head of the Red Wing Flying circus, who was instantly killed at Peterboro, N. J. yesterday when the tiny monoplane in which he was attempting a stunt flight, displaying an outside loop, crashed 4,000 feet to the ground, was well known in New London. A year ago Ahearn was at the aviation field in Groton for two weeks and during that period he piloted planes with hundreds of men and women eager for air trips over the harbor, city and Long Island and Fishers Island sounds.

Thomas A. Edison, nationally-known electrical inventor, arrived in New London this afternoon and boarded the steamer for Fishers Island, where he joined Mrs. Edison, who is visiting friends at the shore resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Miner, Post Hill place, are making a brief visit at Northfield, Mass. They are making the trip by automobile.

The marriage of Miss Miriam Elizabeth Addis, daughter of Edward M. Addis, Wallingford, and Edward N. Wooding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Wooding, also of Wallingford, will take place in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Wallingford, Aug. 2. Miss Addis is a graduate from Connecticut College for Women.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gadbois, 113 Truman street, are spending the summer at Tyler lake, West Goshen.

An automobile owned by Ludwig Sieck, U. S. coast guard, residing at 322 Huntington street, was stolen early today. The Ford sedan was driven to Huntington street at 2 o'clock and parked for the night. When Sieck arose about 5 o'clock he discovered that the auto had been stolen and reported that fact to the police. The auto carries Connecticut registration N—3077.

MRS. SPEIRS' PETITIONS ARE FILED FOR RECORD

Four petitions nominating Mrs. Emily C. Speirs as a candidate for member of the city council were filed for record at the office of the city clerk today, the petitions having been circulated by Mrs. Cora E. Lewis, Mrs. Annie O'Brien, Mrs. Almira F. Lovell and May F. Collins. The petitions are the first to be circulated, as the elections do not take place until the middle of September. Mrs. Speirs has before been a candidate for the office she now seeks, but was defeated. She has already made it known that she will accept the nomination.

Miss Florence Delaney, a maid employed at Ocean Beach, sustained painful cuts last night when she fell on a broken bottle. Miss Delaney had purchased a bottle of near-beer and was on her way to her home. At the corner of Neptune and Park avenues she stumbled and fell, the bottle dropped and was smashed on the sidewalk. In falling, Miss Delaney landed on the bottle, sustaining lacerations of the wrist and chest. She was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital by Patrolman George Goldberg and after her wounds were dressed she went to her home.

A quit claim deed was filed at the office of the city clerk today transferring title in the realty corner of Woodbridge and Division streets, formerly owned by the city and at one time occupied by the Standard Brass & Tube company, from Jacob Copane, Newburgh, N. Y., to Louis Lupchansky of this city, and Morris Levine, of Newburgh.

The New London Home Owner's association has caused a bond to be filed for record at the office of the city clerk, the association having agreed to sell to Gilman E. and Edna G. Lougee a building lot on Norwood avenue.

Lawyers Sue For Fees

Attorneys George Curtis Morgan and Clayton B. Smith have brought suit for $350 damages against Mary Albano, Truman street; the action is returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas. It is alleged in the writ that the defendant refuses to pay the attorneys for legal services rendered.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the right to drive to Christian Meyers and William J. Hoffmeister, both of the submarine base.

Roch Deptula

The funeral of Roch Deptula, of East Lyme, formerly of New London, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at the Polish National church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

An Honest Finder

Eli Levinson, proprietor of a store at 81 Blinman street, reported to the police this forenoon that he had found in front of his place of business a pocketbook containing $3.45 and a postal money order made payable to Mrs. H. M. Kuehm. A short time later Mrs. Kuehm went to police headquarters to report her loss and was informed of the finding of the purse and its contents.

CRIPPLED PENCIL VENDERS PROVE IMPERTINENT

The police were given annoyance today because of complaints against a pair of cripples who were given permission by Acting Manager Carey Congdon to sell lead pencils on the streets, abusing men and women who refused to purchase their stock. The cripples, one with but one arm and the other minus a part of both legs, visited stores in the business district and whenever the pencils were not purchased the store employes, men or women, were given a flow of shocking abuse. Both men were rounded up, their peddling was ordered stopped and the charity seekers were ordered to leave the city.

The condition of Police Sergeant Frank Howard, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis last night at Lawrence Memorial hospital was reported today to be favorable.

Sinclair Grimstad. William Gambles was best man and Miss Leola A Randolph, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

YANTIC GRAIN COMPANY LEASES LOCAL BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 17.—The Yantic Grain company, Norwich, has leased from Battista Bottinelli, the building 19 Reed street for a term of one year, dating from last Wednesday and for the annual rental of $900. The lease was filed for record today at the office of the city clerk. The business of the grain company in New London has increased so much in recent months that the company decided to secure a warehouse here so that its product would not have to be hauled from Norwich to this city.

STEVENS GAY DECEIVER, BUT FRIENDS GET HIM FREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 17. — Walter Stevens, New York Negro, charged with passing worthless checks, was in the police court this morning, but he escaped a penalty, although there was no doubt as to his guilt. Friends of Stevens paid merchants whatever amount they were fleeced by the issuance of the worthless paper. The merchants victimized by Stevens number a dozen or more and the number of checks he issued was about fifteen. The checks were drawn for amounts ranging from $2 to $29 and purported to be drawn against the accounts of Stevens and "Helen L. Stewart" on the New London City National bank. Stevens nor the woman did not have accounts at the bank.

Stevens was employed by a Golden street sign painter in 1928 and in July of that year he negotiated the checks, then lighting out for New York. He returned here a week ago and when he parked his Hudson automobile on Bank street, near the Shalett Dyeing & Cleaning company, an employe of the company recognized Stevens and reported the Negro's presence in the car to his employer. Shalett made complaint to Patrolman Henry Sylvia. Stevens was arrested and when the officer was using a telephone to summon a police car, the Negro bolted and attempted to enter his car and drive away. Stevens got into the machine but Sylvia leaped to the running board and covering the Negro with his revolver caused the check-passer to stop the car. He was then locked up.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

RIGHT THINKING ESSENTIAL TO GOOD FARMING

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

If the sole, or if even the main and controlling purpose of any man is to "make money," then he is 17 separate and distinct kinds of idiot if he sets out to do it by farming.

He may, of course, do it. Nothing is impossible. But the chances are "agin' him." So vastly and voluminously against him that he'd have more likelihood of winning wealth by hunting for needles in a haystack and selling what he found for a cent a paper.

Perhaps this isn't quite right. It certainly doesn't seem quite right to me. But neither do earthquakes and tornadoes and volcanoes and tuberculosis and bunions and some thousands of other things which combine to make the universe what it is.

But what may happen to seem right to me,—or to you,—isn't the last word. When our opinions collide with solid facts, it isn't the facts which give way.

A billy-goat butting Gibraltar might be an amusing sight, but hardly one deserving of imitation by reasonable beings. Similarly, when our opinions come up, whack, against a solid Gibraltar of a fact, we're more likely to get somewhere by revising our opinions than by attempting to abolish the cliff.

We've got to take facts as we find them and make either the best or the worst of them, as our dispositions turn us. And one of the exceedingly hard and stubborn facts of life is that farm production is not a money-making business. It never has been. It is not now. There is no evident reason to expect it ever will be.

And it doesn't make the slightest difference whether we think this unjust or not. We're pretty short-sighted critters, the wisest of us. We can't see the end from the beginning; we can't even see beyond our own noses, the most of us. We think we know what we want, but we aren't any of us sure what we really need, i. e. what is good for us.

Robertson, the famous English preacher, once said: "Heaven is for those who have failed on earth." If this be true, farmers will find plenty of company in the pastures of the blest.

But,

Is failure to make money quite and always synonymous with absolute failure?

I don't think so. Do you?

We've talked about and around this general subject a good many times. The more we talk about it, the firmer becomes the conviction of this particular scribe that a real farmer seldom takes up farming for the sake of making money. He goes into it just as a duck takes to water, because he is born that way. He is so constituted that he actually likes to see the soil roll off the mould-board of his plow. He gloats over the green sturdiness of his growing crops. He prides himself on knowing some of the tricks of Old Step-mother Nature, and of being able either to dodge her occasionally or to make her pull his apple-cart for him, semi-occasionally. He finds a subtle but potent pleasure in the feeling that he is owner, in fee simple, of a portion of the earth from its core up to the unexplored height of its atmosphere. He makes few deposits in any bank of discount, but many in the bank of experience and some in the big safe of knowledge. When he is on his farm he is a king whose right there is none to dispute; when he is off it he is a fish out of water.

The other day we talked about T. D. Campbell of Montana and his machine-worked ranch of nobody knows just how many hundred thousand acres. Mr. Campbell doesn't try to raise big crops of wheat to the acre. He doesn't even try to raise unusually good wheat. His only idea is to raise wheat a little cheaper, per bushel, than others do, so that he can get a cent or two greater profit, per bushel. This he reports that he can do by using machinery. It makes no difference to him whether he produces five or 35 bushels to the acre, so long as the per bushel cost is kept down. It makes no difference what the quality of the wheat is, so long as it will pass muster in the market.

Mr. Campbell calls himself a farmer. I don't. I call him a miner and a profiteer. Mining and profiteering are both more likely ways to make money than straight, honest farming. Probably it is true, as he claims, that he is making more profit than most of his wheat-growing neighbors. In the meanwhile he's skinning his farm, discounting its future, doing his greedy worst to pillage its immemorially stored-up fertility; exploiting it, not improving it.

Yet that is what practically all the economists and agricultural experts seem to consider "successful farming." They have practically ceased considering the sort of farming which makes better farms and lay all their stress on the sort which promises to make most money. Naturally, they are all agog over the machine idea.

One Wisconsin farm paper tells of a man who last year raised 220 acres of corn, as many of grains, and gathered a sizable hay crop, without any help, hired or from his family. He did it by using machinery, and reports a greater net profit than when he used horses and at least two hired men. The Wisconsin editor draws from this the lesson that, "It is the low-cost producers of crops and livestock who will survive."

Somehow, just to "survive" doesn't strike me as a very high ambition. Biologists now agree that the famous phrase, "survival of the fittest," doesn't necessarily mean survival of the most deserving. It is rather the toughest and the luckiest who pull through; those who can stand hard knocks best and who happen into the most favorable environment.

Really living while one lives is rather more worth while than just "surviving" for its own sake.

A helpful correspondent who sends me the story of the Wisconsin man, admits that he sees how one man, with tractor, combine, etc., could raise and harvest wheat, rye, etc., but asks if it is really possible to do the same with Indian corn.

Oh, yes, there are machines not only to plant and cultivate corn, but others to cut it, husk it, shell the grain, and shred the stalks into highly nutritious cattle forage. There is nothing inherently improbable in the tale of one man, with machines, taking care of 500 acres of corn and wheat and hay. He must have had considerable capital to buy the machines, and rather unusual mechanical ability to manage and care for them all, but it could be done.

I was once told of a farmer right in little Connecticut who, irritated with the high cost and low efficiency of farm labor, used to do all his haying single-handed. Mowing by machine is simple. To gather the dried hay, he bought a loader which took it from the swath, so that all he had to do was to drive back and forth across the meadow, distributing the hay on his rigging as the machine delivered it. The rigging was so constructed, with stout hinges on one side, that the whole load could be tipped over into the low bay at one motion.—Of course, this required that it should be a "gravity barn," i. e., one in which everything was thrown down and nothing had to be pitched up. But it was possible, and it was done.

There is no doubt that practically all the operations of farming can be done, after a fashion, by machinery. They can also be thus done faster and easier than by hand. Probably, in many cases, they can be done more cheaply in terms of wages.

Per contra, in very many cases the machines don't do as good and thorough work. You can't expect a contraption of steel and wood to think. And, if you'll pardon me for repeating the same old thing over and over, right thinking is quite as essential to really good farming as hard labor.

To really good farming, we say. The assumption of the machinists seems to be that good farming consists in saving a cent a bushel in the cost of production, regardless of the effect on the quality of the crop or the farm. They don't care how poor the yield may be, nor how low the quality, nor how rapidly the farm may deteriorate, if only they get that extra cent per bushel.

You and I will hardly agree with that idea. Our conception of good farming is that which conserves and increases the fertility of the soil, tends to the production of constantly larger crops, makes for steadily improving quality,—in a word, combines to build up and promote, rather than to loot and waste.

Perhaps we're in a minority about this. Perhaps our ideas are old-fashioned. Perhaps some very hard-headed and practical people may think we're not only behind the times but a little visionary.

Perhaps we're fated to see all the small farms disappear, merged into huge estates; perhaps we're going to see hoes and pitchforks relegated to museums of antiques; perhaps we've all got to turn into mechanics and electricians and oilers; stranger things have happened. The world will probably continue to roll over once a day and to spin around the sun once a year.

But I can't help thinking that this country will miss its farmers when they've all been supplanted by mechanical robots. It won't be the same without its millions upon millions of farm homes and farm families.

Who'll supply the fresh blood to pep up the cities, when there are no farmhouses to draw from?

THE FARMER.

GOSHEN

Farmers are making the most of the bright sunshine this week and are pushing the haying along to the limit. One farmer was seen doing faster work drying hay on a recent day when he hitched the hay tedder on back of his truck.

A very sweet wild flower now is the wild sumac.

Blueberries and the high huckleberries are scarce this year, but low huckleberries give promise of a better crop.

The text developed by Rev. Howard Bushnell Sunday was taken from Ps.: "One thing have I asked of the Lord that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life and that I may inquire in His temple." The choir sang. Miss Ruth Beebe, a teacher in Athens, Ga., who is spending the summer at the home of her parents in Norwich, Conn., gave a very interesting account of her work among the Negroes. Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Lee & Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

Brains!
Cause of our progress and source of our gains;
Helping the forces of nature to shape
Man—from the clay of the anthropid ape.
Brains—that from misty beginnings of time
  Lived as the spirit that quickens the clod,
Lifting us evermore out of the slime
  Further from animal, nearer to God.

Brains!
Framer of destinies, breaker of chains;
Brains that have ceaselessly fashioned and wrought
Miracles vaster than alchemist sought,
Leading men onward and making them free,
  Hitching realities fast to a star;
Patiently sculpturing What Ought To Be,
  Out of the granite of Things As They Are!

Brains!
Conquering mountains and oceans and plains,
Fount of the dreams that go ever before
Deserts that blossom and cities that roar;
Brains that have dauntlessly battled with Fate
  Taming her fury, however she strove,
Making of Man a collossus elate,
  Armed with the mightiest thunders of Jove!

Brains!
Wealth that endures when all other wealth wanes;
Touchstone of fortune in which men may trust
When all material treasusers are dust.
Brains that have moulded us out of the brute
  Taught us that beauty and joy are on earth,
Who will evalue them? Who will compute
  Just what a thing that is priceless is worth?

A policeman in Mexico City found Fidel Zamudio in the street suffering from catalepsy. Supposing him to be dead, he carried Zamudio to the Juarez clinic, where careless medical students prepared to dissect him. When one of them stuck a knife into the washed, shaved and naked body of Zamudio he sat up and protested vigorously.

BULLS HELD BALANCE OF POWER IN SESSION OF STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—The stock market fooled some of the experts today by going still higher. In many quarters. A general technical reaction, based on the advances of the last ten days, had been expected; instead, the bulls were able to hold the balance of power, staging a late demonstration in the industrials.

Advances in that group, as well as in numerous specialties, were offset to a large extent by the easier tone of the utilities and the market's price index showed a net gain of less than a point. The stronger stocks in the more favored sections rose one to five points, with scattering advances of larger extent, but most of the light and power company shares met mild pressure.

Prices were again irregular at the opening, and again they were moving higher by noon. The early afternoon dealings saw a period of uncertainty in which some of the leaders dipped about a point, but the last half hour brought strong support to the pool favorites, including the amusement shares.

Such issues as American Can, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, Johns Manville, and Vanadium rose 3 to 5 net, while Loew's, Fox and Warner Brothers advanced a point or so. Wrigley was particularly strong, running up more than 5 points to a new high.

Among the less active shares, Vulcan Detinning rallied 15. National Cash Register shot up 11 in what looked like a run in of the short interest.

Commodities were irregular, influenced almost entirely by the weather. Wheat fluctuated about a cent in both directions and closed half a cent lower on forecasts of lower temperatures in the northwest. Corn moved more narrowly, easing on the day. Cotton advanced on reports of continued dry weather in the western and central belts, reacted slightly and then firmed, finishing 4 to 12 points higher.

Wall street derived a little encouragement from one or two optimistic statements by prominent industrial leaders. Most of the published earnings reports compared unfavorably with a year ago, while the department of labor's unemployment figures revealed a drop of 1.8 per cent in June. News from the oil industry continued favorable, for the agreement of the Texas operators to reduce output brings those fields in line with the restrictions adopted by California and Oklahoma flush pool producers.

Brokers' loans advanced for the first time in six weeks. The gain of $40,000,000 following the $893,000,000 shrinkage from June 3 to last week, was in line with Wall street's estimates. Although the market advanced during the period covered by the report, the volume of trading has been small and some of the buying has been in the forme of short covering.

Money continued easy, call loans holding at 2 per cent while rates on short term time accommodations were lowered a shade. The weekly federal reserve statement showed a decrease of $23,000,000 in the system's holdings of bills and securities and of $23,000,000 in discounts.

In general, there was nothing in the business situation to indicate a change. The Annalist announced that according to its index, activity in June had declined to approximately the lowest level in six months, and that on the basis of the movement of commercial paper rates the expected upturn might come "almost any time in the last half of 1930 or the first quarter of 1931."

"In business itself," added the publication, "there are not many indications of an immediate upturn. Construction contracts showed marked improvement in June, but the gain was largely the result of exceptional items which may or may not recur. Otherwise present indications are that expectations of an upturn prior to September or October are likely to be disappointed."

A few of the pivotal industrial stocks moved very slowly. U. S. Steel touched a new high on the recovery but was up only 5-8 on the day. General Electric closed unchanged and General Motors was off an eighth. Consolidated Gas rose more than a point coincident with unconfirmed reports that its subsidiary, New York Edison, was planning a hook-up with Niagara Hudson for an interchange of power.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly lower, featured by breaks in Brazil and Spain.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP)—Treasury receipts for July 15 were $54,915,387.44; expenditures $58,515,611.12; balance $215,743,043.40.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—The more active curb stocks generally closed a point or so higher today, ending a session of narrow fluctuations. The relative lack of strength in the utility division was a feature of the day, for these issues have usually been leaders. Total sales were 512,700 shares.

American Gas and Electric closed up four points, but the more active utilities failed to make headway. Electric Bond and Share was off 3-8 at the finish, having sagged a full point earlier. Some of the gas stocks were firmer. Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line, Lone Star and American Utilities and General closed up a point or so.

Cities Service closed up 3-4. Gulf Oil gained more than 2, but the petroleum group generally failed to make much response to the new agreement of Texan producers to cut production.

A few of the industrial specialties were in good demand. Great Lakes Dredging new rose about 4 points on announcement of the $2 annual dividend basis. Ford, Ltd., was a strong spot, rising more than 2 points. Among the comparatively inactive issues, Aluminum company rose 8 and Royal Typewriter nearly 10. Fox Theatres A, was in fair demand, along with the Fox Film on the big board.

In the investing holding and investment trust company shares, Goldman Sachs rallied more than 2 points, and Shenandoah gained a point Transamerica closed fractionally higher. United Founders again lost a fraction. General Capital gained five points in a few sales.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—The listed bond market had another quiet session today, traveling forward at a slow pace, with the movement in many instances hardly perceptible. Trading was dull and the reluctance of investors to augment their buying was ascribed in some quarters to the expectation that firmer money rates are in the offing although most bond men feel that easy credit conditions will prevail throughout the summer.

There were few recessions among the railroad group which held firm, with substantial gains recorded by some of the most active issues. The sustained strength of equity issues on the big board influenced trading in stock privilege issues and closing prices were generally higher, particularly in railroad issues. A few foreign issues showed strength while the rest of the group remained quiet and steady.

Atchison 4 1-2s (California-Arizona division) were active at a new 1930 high. New York Central 4s gained nearly a point to establish a year's peak price. Missouri Pacific issues and Pennsylvania 4 1-2s and 4s were higher. Canadian National 5s, St. Paul 5s and Southern Railway 6s eased, the latter losing 1 1-2 points.

Roc. Island convertible 4 1-2s profited to the extent of 1-2 point under heavy accumulation and other rail bonds with stock privilege features held firm. Among other convertibles, the 1 1-4 rise of the American Telephone 4 1-2, was outstanding. International Telephone 4 1-2s held steady.

Western European governments were firm. Bonds of British Dominions were active, Canadian 4 1-2s reached a new high for the year and Australian 5s, held firm.

United States governments continued dull and moved irregularly downward.

New offerings expected tomorrow include $3,750,000 Chicago South Park Commissioners 4 per cent improvement bonds. Several utility bond issues are expected within a few days to raise more than $100,000,000. They include $17,000 Pacific Power and Light 5s, $40,000,000 Texas Power and Light company, and $50,000,000 Pacific Gas and Electric company 5 1-2s.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 17—(AP)—Enlarging receipts of wheat here and at other primary centers, together with greater skepticism shown as to crop damage reports, finally over burdened wheat prices today.

After an unusually numerous succession of advances and setbacks in quotations, the market ruled lower in the late dealings despite an authoritative, unofficial summary suggesting that the spring wheat harvest in the four principal states would be 19,000,000 bushels less than the government's July forecast. Primary receipts of wheat in the United States today, including 303 cars at Chicago, totaled 3,886,000 bushels against 2,386,000 bushels a week ago.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady, 1-4a3-4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 5-8c down, oats 1-4c off to 1-8c up, and provisions varying from 42c decline to 15c advance.

For the most part, provisions were firmer, responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP)—June sales by General Motors dealers to consumers, totaled 97,318 cars, Alfred P. Sloan, president, announced today compared with 131,817 in May and 134,437 in June last year. Sales by General Motors manufacturing divisions to dealers in the United States in June totaled 87,595 cars, compared with 136,169 in May and 163,704 in June last year. Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments were 97,440 cars in June, against 147,483 in May and 200,754 in June, 1929.

The report of the federal reserve bank of New York on the movement of gold during the period from July 10 to 16, inclusive, showed imports of $6,331,000 and exports of $4,000,000. The imports consisted of $5,224,000 from Brazil, $1,000,000 from Uruguay and $107,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries. The metal exported was shipped to France. There was no net change in gold earmarked for foreign account.

More than 75 per cent of the eligible employes of the General Electric company, have voted to participate in the new General Electric employes' unemployment plan, Gerard Swope, president, announced today. In proposing the plan, under which the money will be raised by equal contributions from the employes and the company, it was stated that the plan would become effective upon an affirmative vote of 60 per cent of those eligible at each works.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Numbered Men!" Convicts. Lost souls who no longer even have a name. Men who march in long quiet lines behind bars that shut them forever from the freedom of God's great outdoors. Men who have long ago thrown away hope and love from their hearts. Men whose sole emotion is one of sullen despair. Come to the Palace theatre and see these "Numbered Men," pallid faced crooks, leering murderers, the scum and scrapings of the gutters thrown into imprisonment along with other men of finer principles who have also found themselves behind the bars. "Numbered Men" opens at the Palace tomorrow, and it is without question, the finest prison picture yet filmed. Fresh from the studios of Warner Brothers it comes to this Warner theatre to bring to Palace patrons a kind of entertainment which a few years ago would have been undreamed of.

"Numbered Men," is a film in which the director has spared no pains to make amazing. And what a cast it has. Conrad Nagel, the nonchalant, yet bitter counterfeiter; Raymond Hackett, victim of a notorious frame-up; beautiful Bernice Claire who waits outside the walls for a man she loves more than life itself; Ralph Ince in the part of the black-hearted King Callahan, bursting his way through steel and stone to a freedom that meant only death.

Today for the last times the Palace presents a superlative double-feature program. It includes that drama of the sinister underworld and society, "Good Intentions," starring Edmund Lowe, Marguerite Churchill and others, and that spicy, breezy tuneful saga of Tin Pan Alley, "Children of Pleasure," with Helen Johnson in the leading role.

ONE IN N. L. HOSPITAL AND ONE UNDER ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 17.—As a result of a three-cornered automobile collision tonight with a drunken driver directly responsible for the crash, Mortimer Jeffers, colored, 53 Belden street, employed by the Connecticut Power Co., is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from a probable fractured skull and internal injuries, and Lemuel Payne, also colored, employed by Connecticut college, is locked up at police headquarters charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Payne will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

Payne was driving his roadster, with Jeffers as a passenger, south on Ocean avenue at 9 o'clock. When opposite the hospital, Payne's car collided with an automobile that was parked alongside the highway. The colliding car caromed off the motionless car and, in doing so, hit the rear of a car also proceeding south and driven by Michael Longo, of 76 Washington street, Norwich. Longo's car was headed across the highway and came to a stop with the forward end at right angles with the curb. Payne's automobile continued across the highway and crashed against a telephone pole on the hospital grounds, the impact of the collision producing the injuries for which Jeffers is now a patient in the hospital. The car was wrecked and was towed to a garage.

Miss Olga Longo, also of 76 Washington street, Norwich, who was a passenger in the auto operated by her brother, sustained bruises and contusions about the right side but after being examined by a physician at the hospital and nothing serious being found, she was allowed to go home.

GUN CREWS OF 192ND CONTEST FOR EFFICIENCY

Competition in communication work and between gun crews to determine efficiency, the annual track meet and the packing of heavy equipment for shipment home comprised the main activities of the 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., at Niantic Thursday.

The annual regimental dinner was held Thursday night at the mess hall with the officers of the 43rd division aviation as guests.

Today (Friday) will be Governor's day and the regiment will be reviewed by Acting Governor Ernest E. Rogers. Saturday morning the camp will break and the various batteries will return to their respective cities.

The 43rd division aviation at the Groton airport continued record machine gun target practice at the Stone ranch in East Lyme Thursday and also continued puff target observation practice and aerial photography.

A group of about 25 officers of the 192nd Field Artillery encamped at Niantic were taken up for airplane rides Wednesday afternoon.

LEGION DISTRICT MEETING HAS VISIT FROM COMMANDER CANDIDATE

Commander Edward Newmarket of Rockville, who is a candidate for the office of department commander of the state, was among the guests at the joint meeting of the auxiliaries and posts of the fifth district of the American Legion (New London county) held Thursday evening at Ponemah hall, Taftville, as guests of Peter Gallan post of the village. This was the final meeting previous to the state convention, which will be held at Bridgeport, July 24, 25 and 26. There was a representative gathering in attendance.

Other prominent officials present, besides Commander Newmarket, were First District Commander Elmer Dickenson of Hartford, First District Adjutant Miss Margerie Cormack, Past District Commander Eugene Zimmerman of Eagleville, Department Adjutant William Murray of Hartford. Guests of the Woman's auxiliary were Mrs. Mazie Potter of Putnam, who is La Archiveste of the department, and Mrs. Rich, president of the Oxford unit of Oxford, Mass.

In an interesting address by Commander Newmarket, who was endeavoring to enlist the support of the New London county delegates for his candidacy, he outlined his policies. His remarks created a most favorable impression upon the gathering.

A pleasing part of the meeting, especially for the New London visitors, came in the presentation of the permanent charter to the Cecelia M. Sweeney post, No. 124, a newly formed women's post of New London. Department Adjutant William Murray of Hartford had the honor of making the presentation. The charter was received by the post president, Miss Alice M. Harrington, who did so with appropriate remarks.

Reports were given by the Boston convention committee on rates and routes, and action will be taken later on this matter. A committee was appointed to present resolutions and a bill fold to John P. Corcoran of this city in recognition of his services in connection with ex-service men at local hospitals.

After the meeting a luncheon was served and dancing was enjoyed.

The next meeting of the district will be held at Groton on Aug. 21.

FURNITURE TRUCK IN MARSH NEAR TRAIL'S CORNERS

A large furniture truck, operated by Harry Sulham of 77 Liberty street, New Bedford, Mass., crashed into a fence on the north side of the Groton-Mystic highway, about 100 feet east of Trail's corners, Groton, at 2:15 o'clock Thursday morning, and came to a stop resting on its side in the marsh near the roadside. Neither Sulham nor his helper, Harold Weeks, also of New Bedford, was injured.

The truck was filled with furniture some of which was upset and damaged. A grand piano was on top of the heap.

The accident occurred when the brake on the right front wheel of the truck locked, causing the truck to swerve from the road, ripping up six sections of the guard fence before it came to a dead stop and toppled over. The truck was proceeding from Mystic toward Groton when the accident happened.

The truck, owned by William H. Fabio of New Bedford, was not seriously damaged, but it was impossible to free it from the marsh until about 10 o'clock Thursday morning, when a wrecker from Groton freed it. Since the truck had not gone completely over on its side, ropes were attached to it strung across the road, and attached to posts on the other side, in an effort to keep the vehicle from tipping over completely. As a result, all automobile traffic using the Groton-Mystic highway had to be rerouted through the South road, Poquonoc Bridge.

State Troopers James Dygert and Arthur Kathe of the Groton barracks of the state police investigated the accident, which was called unavoidable. The driver was not held.

MOSQUITO EXTERMINATION TALK IN STONINGTON

STONINGTON, July 17—Professors Botford and Brigham of the state experimental station at New Haven gave an illustrated lecture in the town hall tonight on the elimination of the mosquito pest in which they gave the advice that the place to begin was on the salt marsh mosquito and follow up the work inland.

Mrs. Anne Dodge who introduced the speakers said that the meeting was not called to form plans and to spend money but to hear the message of the speakers and take it back to their various groups.

Selectmen John Fribbance and Joseph Vargas were present as were also members of the Westerly chamber of commerce and representatives of Misquamicut fire district, Frank E. Suillivan, Harry R. Melder, Frank G. Ahern, Thomas Terry and Karl Brucker.

AVERY REUNION IS TO HAVE SPECIAL FEATURE

Sixty members of the Avery Memorial association are expected to attend the annual meeting which will he held today (Friday) at the Poquonoc Bridge Baptist church, beginning at noon.

Vice President Cyrus Avery of Poquonoc Bridge will preside and officers will be elected. Flowers will be placed upon the church platform in memory of Mrs. Frank Hallock of Cromwell, Mrs. Mary Chapman of Ellington and Mrs. Latham Avery of Groton Long Point, members of the association who have died during the past year.

Luncheon will be served in the parlors of the church at 1 o'clock. Members of the Avery family will be present from Boston, Norwich, Mystic, Stonington, Westerly, Saybrook, Groton, Eastern Point and Maine, Iowa and Florida.

Supreme Court Judge Christopher L. Avery of Eastern Point will be the toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Mrs. Robert Johnston, mayor of the city of Humbolt, Iowa, and Principal H. A. Tirrell of the Norwich Free academy. Vocal music will be furnished by Mrs. Ira Avery of Groton.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Johnston, a member of the Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century, in which every member of the association honors their ancestors, will place a bronze marker at the grave of Captain James Avery, of whom she is a lineal descendant, in the old Morgan-Avery burying ground opposite the church.

In this old cemetery set apart on the sunny side of a ledge, an eighth of a mile back from the Boston Post road, by the first settlers of these families, lie side by side James Morgan and Captain James Avery, long life friends and neighbors, from whose families descends John Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller.

The Morgan homestead, which was taken down some time since, stood just east of this burying ground, where rest many of James Morgan's descendants, bearing honored names.

The house that Captain James Avery built at Groton in 1656 was occupied by eight successive generations of Averys. It was often called "The Hive of the Averys," and never passed out of the possession of a member of the family. The Avery Memorial association was incorporated by the Connecticut legislature and has built a beautiful granite and bronze memorial on the site of the Hive.

Samuel Avery, the youngest son of Captain James Avery, and John D. Rockefeller's lineal ancestor, lived and spent a greater part of his life in this old house. He lies with his wife, Susanna Palius, in the Morgan-Avery burying ground which has recently been restored by descendants of these families, ably assisted by John D. Rockefeller.

Twenty-five per cent of car drivers are women, estimates the California Automobile association.

BARBERS ARE EXCUSED FROM WRITTEN EXAMINATION

Connecticut barbers do not have to take a written examination from the hairdressers' commission in order to obtain a license from that commission, according to an oral opinion given the barbers' commission by Assistant Attorney General Raymond A. Johnson. The opinion settles a spirited controversy between Mrs. Mary B. Holmes, head of the hairdressers' commission, and Joseph Arena, of the barbers' commission, which has raged for several weeks.

Recently when the hairdressers' commission was conducting examinations at the state capitol, Mr. Arena appeared with a Bristol barber who desired a license but who did not think it necessary to take a written examination. Mrs. Holmes contended that a barber, practicing the art for three years, would not have to take a practical test but could not be excused from a written examination. Mr. Arena took his complaint to Judge Johnson who advises that under the provisions of section 11 of chapter 303 of the public acts of 1927, it is not necessary for a barber holding a license under the provisions of chapter 153 of the general statutes to take a written examination before the hairdressers' commisison in order to obtain a license.

Judge Johnson holds that the payment of the required fee, plus a practical demonstration to the commissioner, is all that is necessary to qualify for the license. There are scores of barbers in the state who believe themselves qualified for a license for hairdressing, but who did not desire to take a written examination before the women's commission, who will be interested in the opinion.

DECRIES RULE OF THREE FOR MOTOR ACCIDENTS

A superstition found to be widespread among Connecticut motor vehicle operators is that any slight accident or misadventure is the first of a series of three. Many operators believe that participation in one accident means that they will have to undergo two more before beginning a new period free of mishaps.

The records of operators on file with the department of motor vehicles are not in accord with this superstition. Very few operators are involved in a series of three accidents within a short time. When this does happen, it is usually found that the operator is of the reckless type to whom no rules apply, whether of superstition or of good driving.

Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel said in an article read from WTIC, the Travelers station, Thursday afternoon as part of a program in the interests of highway safety, that if a person who believes in the "rule of three" will strive for a proper mental attitude after the first accident, there need be no second or third. "After the first accident," he added, "the driver should become increasingly careful in operating and profit by the teachings of experience in the first misadventure. The argument for a second and third accident seems to rest entirely in the breaking down of the nervous force, and the operator, for the time being, may be less able to operate safely."

"A correct attitude toward driving, the commissioner believes, should induce the thought as to whether the operator, by reason of his accident, is temporarily unnerved and perhaps ought not to operate again until fully recovered. With another type of driver it should make him determined that the sort of thing which has happened to him won't happen again. As a result of his mishap, his foresight should be keener, he should be more extensively educated to possible dangers, and without any reservations whatever may laugh at superstition."

C. M. T. C. CAMPS IMPORTANT IN NATIONAL DEFENSE

The part played by the citizens' military training camps in the American program of national defense is an important one in the opinion of Major General Alfred F. Foote, commander of the 26th Division, Massachusetts National Guard, whose outfit is in training at Camp Devens, Mass., at the same time that 900 New England boys are taking the course in the citizen-camp.

General Foote was accorded the unique honor of a review by the citizen-regiment in his honor, the first time the Devens has paid such a tribute to a 26th Division commander.

The appearance of General Foote in the C. M. T. C. area where he was greeted by a salute of 13 guns and a guard of honor, composed of regular army troops, emphasized the fact that at the present time there is more co-operation among the different branches of the national defense than ever before.

The responsibility for the C. M. T. C. is in the hands of the regular army, represented at Camp Devens by Colonel Frederick G. Knabenshue, camp commander, but the national guard has shown its willingness to help and only this week a regiment of infantry, the 104th from the western part of the state, put on a special review for the edification of the youthful soldiers. Later the boys gave the review in honor of General Foote.

An interested spectator during this interchange of military courtesies was Chester D. Haywood, civilian aide to the secretary of war for Massachusetts, who was making an informal inspection of the camp.

Another thing which has made this encampment of citizen-soldiers such a big success this year has been the intermingling of students from different companies during the afternoon recreation periods. Colonel Knabenshue stressed the value of friendship among the men as the basis of teamwork and he has endeavored to spread this friendship not only among those who live in the same room and who eat together but throughout the entire camp.

The rivalry in athletics and drill still remains, but a spirit of comradeship has sprung up in the regiment itself, which sets this camp apart from any of its nine predescessors.

A citizenship hour is held several times a week when prominent speakers address the boys on various matters which arouse enthusiasm. Leading men in military and civic life have been invited and during the next two weeks there will be at least two celebrities each week.

One half of the citizen program will have been completed at the end of this week and the results already achieved have amazed the officers in charge. The young soldiers put on either battalion or regimental parades each evening and friends and relatives of the boys and the public in general is invited to watch the young men go through their paces.

SENATE IN NIGHT SESSION FOR TALKATIVE MEMBERS

Naval Treaty Advocates Have Decided to Give Voluble Opponents Plenty of Time to Present Their Views—Senators Moses and Johnson Led the Attack On the Pact Yesterday—Moses Was Satirical In Referring to Secretary Stimson—Johnson Denied Intent to Filibuster.

WASHINGTON, July 18. — (AP) — Under the lighted dome of the capitol a restless senate membership sat waiting tonight for the opposition to the London naval treaty to exhaust its debate and permit a vote.

The contest on the naval limitations agreement seemed to have narrowed down to an endurance test, with the foes hoping to outtalk the patience of the overwhelming majority favoring the pact.

Moses lashed out severely at President Hoover and Secretary Stimson, the head of the American delegation to London, complaining against their refusal to give the senate all of the papers relating to the London parley.

"I can not but feel," he said, "that he (the president) and his secretary of state have seriously affronted the representatives of the American people as found in the senate of the United States, where is lodged an equal and coeval power when arranging relations of this country with the nations of the world."

The New Hampshire senator referred to Secretary Stimson throughout his address as the "Laird of Stanmore." He previously had told the senate that Mr. Stimson stopped at an estate while in London known as Stanmore and signed his correspondence "Stimson of Stanmore."

Senator Johnson, republican, California, leader of the opposition, gave notice as he began his second speech of the day, just when the electric lights were coming on for the night session, that "You have the power but, by the heavens, you have got to use it to the full before this document can be ratified."

Friends of the treaty have threatened to use the cloture rule, which shuts off debate, but they have decided to withhold this move to permit an exhaustion of legitimate debate. Several already have charged a filibustering against the treaty but the opposition has vigorously denied it.

Meeting at 11 a. m. today, the senate left the continuation of debate entirely up to the treaty opponents. They carried on well into the night. The treaty's friends answered every challenge of lack of a quorum although a call at 7:30 p. m. showed just the necessary 49 members present.

A roll call at 9:30 p. m. was answered by 53 members. Senator Hale, republican, Maine, chairman of the naval committee, then gained the floor and began reading the 1928 armistic day speech of President Coolidge.

"I think it is fitting in the closing hours of this debate," said Hale, "to read what Mr. Coolidge had to say then."

Few members remained on the floor to listen to the evening's debate, although Senator Moses, republic, New Hampshire, and Senator Johnson did attract more of an audience as they directed remarks against the treaty and the treaty makers.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, who held the floor for two hours at dinner time, read almost all of his speech, much of the time in a voice barely audible to any one in the chamber.

Senator Johnson began his second speech by taunting the treaty's friends to join the debate, but they sat silent, biding their time for a vote.

The treaty foes made no effort to break the quorum. Their united attendance alone yielded the needed 49 at the late evening roll call.

In his night address, Senator Johnson was obviously fatigued by the long contest. His usual rapid fire delivery was gone and he was forced to read his speech.

Crowds gathered as the night wore on and the galleries were well filled for the first night session. Leaders intended to resume tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and work through again until night.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, who has been counted among the supporters of the pact, spoke for more than an hour tonight. He complained that the treaty called for $1,000,000,000 more in ship construction. Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, one of the delegates to London, was drawn into the debate for the first time during the day by this remark. He said the treaty did require that construction to reach parity with Great Britain, but that the cost of parity would be much greater if the treaty were not ratified.

Senator Johnson introduced the following additional reservation tonight:

"Nothing contained in this treaty shall be so construed as to require the United States of America to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon, interfering with, or entangling itself in the political questions of policy or internal administration of any foreign state; nor shall anything contained in the said treaty be construed to imply the relinquishment by the United States of America of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions."

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—The senate recessed at 11 p. m. tonight until 11 a. m. tomorrow to resume debate on the London naval treaty which waged for 12 hours today.

CLUB WHERE MEN ARE SAFE FROM INTRUSION OF WOMEN

NEW YORK, July 18.— (AP) — The mere male has at last found a retreat were the merry modern woman can not plant her pretty heels—but he's had to go up 66 stories to do it.

The Cloud club, one of the most expensive and exclusive luncheon clubs in the world, has opened its doors on the three top floors of the 68-story Chrysler building— and no wife, mother or sweetheart is going to put her foot in there.

Only one woman is allowed within its portals. She is Miss Josephine Riley, the petite brunette telephone operator, whose first and foremost business is to see that the primary rule of the club is obeyed.

The membership of the organization includes the names of Vanderbilt, Firestone, Whitney and Chrysler; its view embraces two rivers, a harbor and distant mountain peaks; and its food, furnishings and knickknacks are the most unobtrusively expensive that can be found. Even a cigar costs two dollars.

There's a barber chair on the 67th floor that commands a striking view, a Roman bath lined with mosaic tiles, a library and a taproom designed in the likeness of an old English tavern —with a soft drink bar.

Nine private dining rooms, varying in decoration from the old-fashioned mahogany type to the modernistic settings of a machine age room and an airplane room are equipped for private parties. The club doors are open only during the luncheon hour.

HOME FOLKS ACCORDING WELCOME TO RUDY VALLEE

WESTBROOK, Me., July 18.—(AP)—The acclaim of the folks who knew him "when" was extended tonight to Rudy Vallee, home for his first visit since his crooning tenor voice captured the approbation of Broadway and a host of radio listeners.

The songster, who was known here in his younger days as a saxophone player with ambitions, was greeted by a throng of 2,000 persons as he alighted from a train in Portland today. Escorted by a long line of cars, he entered his bedecked home city atop an automobile and found himself in the midst of a home-coming program likely to occupy most of his waking hours for the next week.

MONTREAL, July 18.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen and Oilers, an agreement has been made with the Central Vermont railway, the union's convention was informed today.

James C. Gascoyne, of Montreal, who made the announcement, said the agreement would put into effect the same rates of wages as are operative on the Grand Trunk Western.

Officers were elected today as follows: President, John F. McNamara, of Boston; first vice-president, James B. Conroy, of St. Louis; second vice-president, John Conway, of Newark, N. J.; third vice-president, John Coull, of Clinton, Iowa; fourth vice-president, James C. Gascoyne, of Montreal; secretary-treasurer, Joseph W. Morton, of Chicago.

WHALEN BEFORE COMMUNIST INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP) — The special house communist investigating committee today received from former Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen photostatic copies of documents alleged to show that soviet Russia, through the Amtorg Trading company, a commercial agency handling Russian business in the United States, was attempting to foment industrial revolution in this country.

He said he could demonstrate the authenticity of the documents, which Amtorg representatives have branded forgeries. The Amtorg side of the case is to be heard next week.

At Whalen's request the committee agreed to hear at a secret session testimony of undercover men on the authenticity of the literature, which, he said, had been in the files of the Amtorg company.

Whalen said the last May day demonstration in New York was very expensive. Groups of hundreds of children were brought in from over the country, he declared. Thirty thousand persons were in the parade. He was of the opinion that some of the funds were coming from a foreign source and from "parlor reds."

CAPONE SAYS POLICE KNOW WHO KILLED REPORTER LINGLE

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—The police know who killed Alfred Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, according to Scarface Al Capone, gang chieftain, as quoted by a reporter who interviewed the notorious hoodlum in his home at Miami. Capone also denied imputations that he had broken with Lingle, who, it is generally conceded, was assassinated by some disgruntled gangster.

Lingle was a friend of Capone's for a long time as well as of the chief heads of the Chicago police department who resigned after the reporter was slain on June 9.

But if the police had the information Capone is quoted as saying they had, they did not reveal it. Neither has any definite action been taken, except for the arrest in Los Angeles and indictment here of Frank Foster, who purchased the pistol found by Lingle's side. Foster is due in Chicago tomorrow, but it has never been charged that he fired the fatal shot. He is to go before a grand jury for questioning.

Foster said prison reform and repeal of the Baumes laws would be part of his platform.

The three are serving terms for causing an unlawful assemblage in connection with a communist demonstration March 6.

ACTOR DAVID WARFIELD IN IMPROVED CONDITION

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—The serious illness of David Warfield, from which the 63-year-old character actor is now recovering, has been the means of healing a breach of long standing between Warfield and David Belasco.

Some years ago, the actor whose portrayal of "The Music Master" took Broadway by storm and the white-haired producer who staged many of his plays, came to a parting of the ways. Broadway understood that the two, who had worked so many years together, no longer spoke to each other.

Then Warfield underwent an operation in April and his condition was reported as critical. David Belasco rushed to a florist and on to the telegraph office. Flowers and messages, expressing hope for his recovery, reached Warfield's bedside. Back came a friendly message from the actor in return.

Warfield is "getting along famously" it was said today.

NEW DIVISION OF APPEALS IN THE CUSTOMS BUREAU

Agha landed today in Providence, R. I., from Turkey and announced that he was here to see and be seen—by any American scientists who might care to pay for the privilege of observing a man who says he never tasted alcohol in his life, outlived 11 wives, became a father for the 36th time at the age of 96, and grew a third set of teeth when he was 105. (That's his story and he's sticking to it.)

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Arrested on complaint of Louis Jesselsohn of Boston, who said they took $48,000 from him in a race horse swindle last May, seven men were held without bail today.

They will be given a hearing on charges of suspicion of grand larceny on Monday. Jesselsohn said he turned the money over to them in a hotel here.

BANDITS TOOK $40 AND VICTIM'S AUTOMOBILE

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—(AP)—Two bandits held up E. J. Latham tonight in Mt. Carmel and robbed him of $40 and his automobile.

Two Japanese Isles Devastated By Storm

One Report Said a Village of 300 Was Buried In a Landslide—Many Ships Sunk.

TOKYO, July 18.—(AP)—Swirling out of the western Pacific a devastating wind and rain storm slashed its way today across the Loochoo and Kiushiu islands in southern Japan and swept unabated northwestward across Korea, leaving widespread death and damage in its wake.

Ships were smashed and sunk, houses collapsed and landslides were caused by the gale and downpour that ripped across the Korea strait at 100 miles an hour.

One report said a village of 300 on Kiushiu island was buried in a landslide. The governor of Nagasaki prefecture said many ships in Nagasaki harbor capsized with an undetermined number of casualties. Several bodies were recovered.

A Rengo dispatch from Fusan, important Korean seaport, said the storm struck at noon, crushing buildings and causing a panic. It continued inland undiminished.

Even tonight, hours after the peak of the typhoon, only fragmentary reports were available, due to disrupted communications and confusion, but authorities pieced these reports together and estimated the dead would run into hundreds in southern Japan and Korea.

No definite estimate of damage was possible but it was considered the worst typhoon in 40 years.

Electric light plants on Kiushiu island were put out of commission and people were without lights and newspapers tonight.

Aside from Korean towns, whence reports were lacking, it was believed the cities of Nagasaki, Kagoshima, Fukuoka, Kokura, Umamoto, Omuta and Moji bore the brunt of the storm.

To date, 183 persons have been killed in motor vehicle accidents as compared with 205 last year.

The number of accidents reported throughout the state during the week also decreased as compared with 1929. A total of 401 accidents were reported this year as compared with 469 last year, and the city total dropped from 257 in 1929 to 207 this year.

SEARCHING FOR BODIES IN THE HETCH-HETCHY TUNNEL

CAMP MITCHELL, Cal., July 18.—(AP)—Twenty volunteer rescuers risked dangerous gases today in the Hetch-Hetchy water project tunnel where twelve men died in an explosion yesterday, and went down in search of eight bodies remaining there.

Meanwhile, a half dozen investigations were under way and complaints of negligence was being heard.

Gas and rising water had forced rescue crews to quit about 2 a. m, today after bringing out four bodies.

Blowers were forcing fresh air into the workings and pumps were removing seeping moisture from the tunnel which will convey water to the San Francisco metropolitan area.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN INDIA IN BAD WAY

BOMBAY, India, July 18—(AP)—Disastrous effect of the political crisis on India's economic condition today was shown by announcement that 14 more cotton mills here will close down Aug. 1 throwing 40,000 workers out of employment.

D. P. Kaithan, of the Indian chamber of commerce, announced that by the end of next June there would be a carryover of an unprecedented number of bales of jute in Calcutta.

Curtailment of mill production and the critical condition of the jute industry abroad were the determining factors in the slump. He said the only real remedy was early settlement of the political question.

Germany, meanwhile, at any rate caught sight of some profit to be had from the situation and at least one great German organization revealed plans for a spectacular descent upon the Indian market.

Hoover Would Reduce Govt. Expenditures

Has Called [illegible] Economic Survey W[illegible] Affecting the Un[illegible]yment Situation.

W[illegible]NGTON, July 18 — (AP) — Pr[illegible] Hoover has instructed cab[illegible]ers to make a searching sur[illegible] determine what economies can [illegible]ade in government expenditures [illegible]out affecting the unemployment [illegible]uation.

At the cabinet meeting today the president and the members of his official family devoted attention to the financial situation of the government as the result of appropriations made by the last congress.

The budget for the present fiscal year starting July 1 was estimated at $4,203,254,457, an increase of $209,101,970 over the expenditures for the 1930 fiscal year.

Replying to questions today by newspaper correspondents the president said:

"The cabinet meeting today was largely devoted to a consideration of the financial situation of the government as the result of the appropriations made by the last congress. The budget for the present fiscal year beginning July 1 has been increased by about $209,000,000 above the actual expenditures for the last fiscal year.

"The largest increases are for speeding-up of buildings, inland waterways and public works generally, in order to assist in unemployment together with the increased relief of veterans.

"There has been some confusion as to the amount of increased expenditures imposed by the last congress by the mistaken inclusion of authorized programs which extend over many years, such as public buildings, roads, and rivers and harbors, and only in a small part fall on each annual budget. Also some comparisons of federal expenditures include the postoffice outlays. It has always been the practice to include only the postoffice deficit. Otherwise, real comparisons would be destroyed by the variations in postoffice operations.

"Including the estimated postal deficit the total budget estimates of expenditures for the present fiscal year are $4,203,254,457 as compared with actual expenditures for the last fiscal year of $3,994,152,487 or an increase of $209,101,970, being an increase of 5 per cent.

"The discussion today was directed to measures for reduction of expenditures below these estimates, with a view to meeting possible reduction of revenue arising from slack times. The cabinet members and heads of independent agencies have undertaken a searching inquiry into every branch of the government as to methods by which economies may be brought about for the reduction of revenue arising from slack times. The cabinet members and heads of independent agencies have undertaken a searching inquiry into every branch of the government as to methods by which economies may be brought about for the present fiscal year without interfering in the program of aid to unemployment.

"I am confident that we will find measures for very considerable reductions of outlay below the amounts appropriated. What the amount may be cannot be determined until we have completed our investigation."

HARTFORD MAN CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED AT SAVIN ROCK

HARTFORD, July 18—(AP)—Michael Raizis, 28, a local barber who refused to talk after being admitted to the Hartford hospital Thursday, a victim of poisoning, today told police a strange tale of having been robbed of $1,750 and deliberately given poison by two men with whom he struck up an acquaintance in Savin Rock, West Haven, last week. New Haven police have been informed of the man's story.

Raizis said the men gave him two blue pills after forcing him to withdraw the money in three installments from his bank, telling him that the tablets were medicine and would relieve the nausea he felt from having drunk heavily. He refused to discuss the men or the transaction in which he claims he was held up for the money. Physicians have diagnosed the poison as blueing tablets and said the man will recover.

GERMANY TO HAVE GENERAL ELECTIONS BEFORE SEPT. 14

Reichstag Was Dissolved Yesterday Morning For Opposing Financial Reform Submitted By the Cabinet—Until the Elections Chancellor Bruening and His Ministry Will Govern the Country Under Emergency Dictatorial Powers—The New Reichstag Will Be Able to Revoke Any Interim Decree It Deems Contrary to Public Interest.

BERLIN, July 18 —(AP)— Political Germany was rolling up its sleeves tonight in preparation for another national election campaign, after the Reichstag had been dissolved this morning when it attempted to thwart the program of financial reform submitted by the Bruening cabinet.

Until the new elections, which will be held not later than September 14, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his colleagues will govern the country under the emergency dictatorial powers conferred by Article 48 of the German constitution.

Bruening and his finance minister, Dr. Hermann Dietrich, will be free meanwhile to push through the measures they consider necessary for putting Germany's finances in order.

Their freedom of action will be limited, however, by the knowledge that the new Reichstag will be able to revoke any interim decree it deems contrary to public interest.

The Reichstag which was sent home this morning because it attempted to revoke the tax decrees promulgated the night before, comprised 13 political parties.

How many parties will make up the new parliament is anybody's guess. The birth of one new one, the German conservative party, has already been announced. It will be formed under the leadership of Count Kuno Von Westarp, for many years German national floor leader, who bolted with his followers from Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, the intransigent nationalist leader, today.

The Reichstag just adjourned was elected in May, 1928. Its dissolution adds one more to the unbroken line of post-war German parliaments which came to a premature end in a similar manner.

The constitution calls for new elections only once in four years. No Reichstag, however, since the founding of the Republic, has been able to avoid dissolution before its normal termination.

Government by decree in times of profound peace is a new thing for republican Germany. While President Von Hindenburg has in a number of cases invoked the extraordinary powers of Article 48, his actions were limited to the revocation of emergency measures from an earlier administration whose obsoleteness was obvious.

The only time when the German Republic was governed by a system akin to a dictatorship was during the administration of the first president of the Republic, the late Friedrich Ebert, in 1923.

At that time the president invested the chief of the army, General Hans Von Seeckt, with extraordinary powers to quell incipient Bolshevism. At the same time he authorized the cabinet to issue decrees of an administrative and financial nature which were intended to back up the work of General Von Seeckt.

Once the communist crisis had passed, President Ebert was quick to reestablish normal conditions.

Chancellor Bruening was once before faced with the possibility of having to invoke Article 48. This came at the very beginning of his administration, in early April of this year, when the Nationalists, led by Hugenberg, tried to separate the cabinet's program for farm relief from its general financial program.

At the critical moment, enough Nationalists deserted Hugenberg to save the government.

The chancellor tonight published a proclamation appealing to the country to decide its own future in the elections, and charging that "the Reichstag has refused to the Reich the means for carrying out its tasks."

"President Von Hindenburg's financial reform program was rejected by a small majority which is divided in itself and incompetent to assume responsibility," it said. "An appeal is now made to the nation to decide its future. Do the people wish to withhold from the government what is necessary for regulating finances, maintaining German economic life and safeguarding social obligations? That is the question for September 14."

VON HINDENBURG LEAVES FOR THE RHINELAND

BERLIN, July 18.— (AP)—President Von Hindenburg departed tonight for the Rhineland and Palatinate to lend lustre by his presence to the liberation festivities awaiting his arrival in various historic cities.

The aged soldier-statesman's trip is not devoid of a certain piquancy, for the party had been cancelled only a few days ago because of the differences that had arisen between the president and the socialist premier of Prussia, Dr. Otto Braun, over the exclusion of the steel helmet men from the list of delegations wishing to greet the chief of the state.

The militant front line veterans satisfied the Prussian government, however, that in the future they would be on their best behavior, and there seems to be no cause for apprehension lest anything untoward mar the president's triumphal progress through the liberated regions.

The president is accompanied by his son, Colonel Oscar Von Hindenburg, his political secretary, Dr. Otto Meissner, and the minister of foreign affairs, Dr. Julius Curtius.

The venerable chief of the state has not been in the Rhineland since 1925, when he visited the liberated first zone. On that occasion he apostrophized the Rhine in the following words:

"The Rhine is our river of fate. It was ours when we were united. We lost it when we disunited. May the Rhine forever be a warning to us against disunion."

READY FOR THE TRIAL OF CAPTAIN A. S. BROOKS

BOSTON, July 18—(AP)—Trial of Captain Archibald S. Brooks, master of the steamer Fairfax, charged with reckless navigation, violation of pilot rules, unskilfulness and negligence in connection with the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster off Scituate, June 10, in which 49 lives were lost, will begin as soon as Brooks is ready.

This announcement was made today by Captain Charles M. Lyons, one of the board which investigated the disaster and prepared the charges.

"We have been informed that counsel for Captain Brooks is just as anxious as is our department to have the trial begun and ended," Captain Lyons said. "We are now awaiting an answer to a letter received by Captain Brooks yesterday containing the charges brought by our department and a request that he notify us of the earliest possible date at which he will be ready for trial."

STRIKE PARALYZES TRAIN SERVICE OUT OF DUBLIN

DUBLIN, July 18—(AP)—A strike of Irish railway workers today paralyzed the entire suburban train service out of Dublin and threatened to tie up rail traffic over all the free state.

More than 600 railwaymen and 100 employees of the Dublin Omnibus company were out on strike, the railwaymen striking in sympathy with the bus drivers, who have been out for nine weeks in an attempt to secure recognition of their trade union.

The Great Southern Railway has the controlling interest in the Irish Omnibus company, which filled the positions of the strikers and attempted to resume full bus service. The bus lines extend into many parts of the free state.

ELIGIBILITY OF "MISS PORTUGAL" CHALLENGED

LISBON, Portugal, July 18. —(AP)— The eligibility of Fernanda Goncalves to be "Miss Portugal" for the forthcoming international beauty show at Rio De Janeiro was challenged today by the father of the girl who won second prize in a beauty contest to choose the country's representative.

Col. S. A. Texeira, father of Maria Madelena Texeira, 19, the runner-up, alleged that Senorita Goncalves was really a year older than the 24-year limit for entrants, and that therefore her election as "Miss Portugal" was not valid.

AGREEMENT ON SCALE FOR ANTHRACITE MINERS

NEW YORK, July 18—(AP)—The scale committee of the anthracite miners tonight adopted unanimously the agreement negotiated by its sub-committee with the anthracite operators. A convention of the anthracite miners was called for Aug. 4 at Scranton, Pa., at which time the agreement will be presented for ratification.

THRONGS TO BID FAREWELL TO YACHT SHAMROCK V.

GOSPORT, Eng., July 18—(AP)—Every section of England was represented here today as the yachting clans gathered to bid farewell to the Shamrock V, when she leaves the harbor tomorrow for New York in an effort to capture the America's cup.

Illness, however, will prevent Sir Thomas Lipton, her owner, from being on hand. The Shamrock is scheduled to leave its dock between 10 a. m. and noon (English time). Warships at Portsmouth, the king's yachts, Victoria and Albert and smaller craft anchored in the Solent will join in the farewell. Several ocean liners of all nationalities, will give a salute as the Shamrock nears Southampton. Cowes and other Solent yachting towns are preparing public ovation.

MISSISSIPPI WIDOW IS NOT BELLE GUNNESS

JACKSON, Miss., July 18.—(AP)—County officials were convinced tonight that the story told by a stranger to a county sheriff that a prominent Harrison county widow was Belle Gunness, who years ago poisoned 15 husbands on her farm near La Porte, Indiana, was erroneous and that the entire affair was a case of mistaken identity.

The sheriff and his deputies went to the widow's farm early today but found that the woman was visiting friends in Peoria, Ill. They learned, however, that the widow was prominent in club and social affairs of Gulfport, where she had been known for 18 years.

When her friends heard the story they became indignant and gave her history for the last 42 years, dispelling all suspicion of any connection between the woman and Belle Gunness.

GRAF ZEPPELIN RETURNS FROM SIXTY HOUR FLIGHT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 18—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin returning from a smooth 60 hour flight over Norway, Iceland, France and Switzerland, returned to her home port tonight in a violent storm that delayed her landing and caused some anxiety for her safety.

The Graf was compelled to cruise over Lake Constance for about 20 minutes before there came a lull in the storm. Then she made a smooth landing at 7:52 p. m., (1:52 p. m. EST.) and 26 minutes later was safe in her hangar.

A group of Americans was among the 22 passengers.

STATEMENT OF DENIAL BY "SCARFACE AL" CAPONE

MIAMI, Fla., July 18.—(AP)—In a statement dictated at his Miami Beach home tonight, "Scarface Al" Capone described as "deliberate lies" the statements made in a copyrighted story in the St. Louis Star by Harry Brundidge, reporter, today that the Chicago racketeer had "plenty of newspaper men on his payroll," and that he and the Chicago police knew who shot and killed Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaper man.

SELECTMEN TO SIGN CONTRACTS FOR AUDIT OF TOWN BOOKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, July 18—The attempt of sympathizers of the Windham selectmen in their stand to refuse to sign the contract for an audit of the town's books by having the present contract rescinded, received a deadly and final blow at a packed town meeting tonight. A total of 559 townspeople voted; 383 against, 176 not to rescind the May 1st vote. First Selectman William A. Buck then arose to say that while the selectmen had attempted to save the town money if it was the will of the people that the contract should be signed as expressed tonight, he would do so at once.

The committee, appointed May 1st will present to the selectmen for their signature in the very near future the contract which they had drawn up with Walter A. Musgrave, calling for a thorough audit of all town books and vouchers over a period of ten years. Slight changes to make the contract conform with new dates will be made of necessity.

In tonight's action the voters rejected an effort to dismiss the committee consisting of Dr. George E. Wilcox, Henry A. Bugbee and Attorney William A. Arnold, which, pursuant to the May 1 vote, has drawn up the contract with Musgrave, presenting to the selectmen the contract on May 10. The latter have not signed the document on the grounds that it was not consistent with the policy of economy, inasmuch as it called for the possible expenditure of all of the $10,000 appropriation made for audit, while offers had been received from other certified accountants to do the work for considerable less money.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton convened the special meeting at 8 o'clock and Justice George E. Hinman was elected moderator. The warning based on a petition signed by Judge of Probate Valentine L. Murphy and others, was then read. The first clause being to rescind the May 1st vote. Town Counsel rthur T. Kelly presented a resolution that such action be taken. Pertinent statements then flew thick and fast during a one hour discussion of the merits and demerits of the selection of the committee and the stand taken by the selectmen. Dr. Wilcox and Judge Murphy led the field. Dr. Wilcox explained briefly the requirements of the Musgrave contract and expressed the thought that enough funds would be discovered during the audit to pay for the work. He stated that the committee had received hostility, delay and finally refusal from the town officials in an effort to have the contract signed and pointed out that a proposed new committee, suggested in the warning of tonight's meeting, than did the present committee. Dr. Wilcox promised that his committee would give the town an audit not controlled by anyone "under the clock," meaning the town officials.

He called for justice now and in the elections of October and November. George L. Shepaum asked why the contract had not been signed and in reply Selectman Buck stated that it was because that it was illegal and too expensive. Judge Murphy mentioned the names of other well-known state accountants who had offered to do the local audit at cost considerably lower than that involved in the Musgrave contract. Referring to a statement made at a previous meeting that the local banks refused to give the town loans, he made a denial of this with an assertion that the credit of the town was good. He charged questionable manipulation in the past, especially in the purchase of the trade school building. Attorney Arnold advanced several reasons for the disqualification by the committee of other accountants considered before the contract was awarded to Musgrave and stated that the latter, in addition to conducting an audit, had offered to prepare a plan for a comprehensive annual report of the town's finances.

More or less personal charges then transpired and Rev. F. C. Williams rose to a point of issue by asking just what the May 1 vote was, and requesting that the selectmen be again ordered to sign the contract. Michael Falvey was in favor of a new committee in the belief that the present committee had its hands tied.

Question was then called for and it was voted to vote by ballot with the following as tellers: Judge James F. Twomey, Herbert D. Pollard, George Graves and M. E. Lincoln, the result being as stated above. A resolution introduced by Attorney Arnold that it be the sense of the meeting that the selectmen sign the Musgrave contract was ruled out of order by Moderator Hinman. At this point Selectman Buck arose to say that he would sign the contract under circumstances.

The meeting then adjourned.

Constable Alvin F. Greene of Columbia testified during the trial of Mrs. Minnie Weingrad of the Pine street district Thursday evening before Justice of the Peace Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, that the woman attempted to throw boiling water on him while a raid was being conducted at her home. When this failed she attempted to strike him with a five-foot pole. Mrs. Weingrad was charged with manufacturing liquor and resisting an officer in the performance of his duty. On the first count she was fined $50 and on the second, twenty dollars, the total amount with costs coming to $97.65 which friends paid for her.

Russell Bevan, 33, of 197 Jackson street was injured late Thursday evening when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Armand Giard, 18, of 489 Main street and owned by Philip Moore of the same address, at the junction of Jackson Place and Jackson street. The matter was investigated by Officers John Killourey and Roderick Lariviere. Bevan was crossing Jackson street at the time while Giard was driving south and turning into the side thoroughfare. The motorist told the police he did not see the pedestrian.

Saturday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock at the Liberty cottage in Elks' Park will be the period for registration by children between the ages of 7 and 10 years who intend to go on the annual outing given by the local lodge of Elks at Crescent Beach on August 13th. The committee in charge wishes to have it understood that the outing is intended for children who ordinarily do not have an opportunity to visit a beach during the summer. There will be but one registration day for the event which is today. Children will be required to have tickets in order to participate in the outing, which will be distributed when they register.

Samuel Macai of Warrenville was before the Ashford town court Thursday night on a charge of violating the fishing laws by illegally spearing for fish out of season, to which he pleaded guilty. Last Monday evening Macai was detected by Deputy Game Warden George A. Willis of Chaplin violating the law and was placed under arrest. A fine of one dollar and costs was imposed by Justice of the Peace Ernest Hattin, which was paid.

A warranty deed filed today at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton records the sale by Bridget Soronoski to Samuel and Anna Starnowick of Windham of a tract of land with buildings just east of the Horseshoe bridge on Bricktop road.

Brownie Sledjesky, Jr., of Mansfield City was arraigned in the Mansfield town court Thursday evening for speeding and was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Byron M. Houston. Thursday forenoon Sledjesky was operating an automobile that forced a runabout driven by State Police Sergeant Harris J. Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks off the road to avoid a collision. Sledjesky settled for $21.95.

There is a possibility that the town of Windham will oil more of its roads in the future as the result of the tryout made last fall and early this summer on Machine Shop Hill and Babcock Hill in South Windham and a section of the Jerusalem road in Windham. The Machine Shop Hill section was oiled from the Main street in South Windham to the top of the incline and a half-mile of Babcock Hill from the Smith-Winchester Manufacturing company plant to a short distance from the Lebanon town line. The Jerusalem stretch is from the South Windham-Windham Center road near the Larrabee property nearly a mile opposite the home of Alfred Abbe. Many persons who have daily used these thoroughfares express the opinion that they are satisfied with the conditions there as the treated roads were hard and free from mud this spring. Recently the selectmen oiled the Catholic cemetery road in front of the Willimantic Country club property with satisfactory results.

Clerk Curtis Dean of the Windham county superior court has announced that there will be a special session of court here on Monday, July 28th at 10 a. m. with Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover on the bench to clear up three cases on the docket heard in part a few years ago.

The local unit now ranks second in the fourth district, being surpassed in numbers only by Rockville. At the regular bi-monthly meeting held Thursday evening a report was given by the committee of which Mrs. Emma Doyle is chairman, that the sum of $30.20 was realized by a food sale held earlier in the month. Mrs. Ellen Keith was named chairman of a committee to arrange for a sewing class to instruct young mothers and girls. One new member, Bernice Leffingwell, was voted into the organization. It was voted to hold but one meeting in August, on the third Thursday, omitting the first.

A joint picnic is to be held with members of the post on Sunday, July 27 at Windham Center. Transportation will be furnished those attending, leaving the legion quarters on Jackson street at 9 o'clock and lemonade, orangeade and watermelon will be supplied on the grounds. Employes of the C. C. P. & L. Co. are stringing new wires to the large, new poles recently set along Main street. The old poles are being removed and the electric wires and telephone cables are to be strung on the same row of poles, thus eliminating one row of unsightly poles through the center of the village. The row of old poles on the west side of North Main street has already been removed, a great improvement to the thoroughfare. Similar work is being done on Merchants' row and along South Main street. It is understood that several additional street lights are to be erected in the center of the village, a much needed improvement as the present lights are altogether too few and poorly located for the best results.

Joseph Ezekiel Falk and William Herbert Adams were busy Thursday cleaning and repairing the chemical tanks on the fire engine.

Radio Engineer Eugene Phineas Beebe recently entertained Postal Inspector and Mrs. D. K. Campbell of Sullivan, Illinois.

AGENT C. M. ROBINSON RESIGNS AT WAUREGAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 18.—Charles M. Robinson, agent of the Wauregan company's mills at Wauregan, has tendered his resignation, effective Aug. 1. Agent Robinson said this morning that he has no plans for the immediate future other than the enjoyment of the remainder of the summer, free from the exactions of business, at a beach resort on the Rhode Island coast.

Mr. Robinson has been with the Wauregan company for the past 12 years, the first five years of these as superintendent, the past seven as agent. It is rather difficult to record in words a picture of the place Mr Robinson has made for himself as the operating head of one of the principal industries in this section of eastern Connecticut. It is not at all difficult to report that throughout the ranks of the employes of the plant, whatever their station, everyone likes him. It will be a part of the record that his going away from them will be felt as a personal loss by each individual worker, but that he will go with the best wishes of all cf them for many happy and comfortable years of well-earned retirement.

Agent Robinson is a veteran in the textile field of New England and adjoining territory. As a youth of tender years he gained his first experience in the cotton mill business at the Ann and Hope mill in Lonsdale. Later, for a period of three years, he was an overseer in the well-known New York mills at Utica.

From that city he went to Putnam to fill a responsible place with the Putnam Manufacturing company, one of the many old-time cotton manufacturing companies no longer in existence. He left Putnam to go with the Perry, N. Y., Yarn mills. His next position was as superintendent of carding with the Lancaster mills at Clinton, Mass. From Clinton, Mr. Robinson went to White Rock, near Westerly, and remained there as superintendent for a period of six years before coming to Wauregan.

Mr. Robinson has put in 38 years manufacturing and directing the manufacture of cotton textiles. He rates an expert in his chosen field of endeavor and a member of that great, but fast disappearing, galaxy of executives, whose watch word was, and is, service, and the production of the best possible material in its class.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson contemplate making their home in Danielson after returning from their summer vacation.

MYSTERY ANIMAL CLIMBS TREES LIKE A SQUIRREL

The Great Whasizit made its appearance again this morning up on Mechanic street. Newspaper telephones fairly jingled with messages about the matter. According to the latest versions of perfectly sane and competent people, this particular animal is just altogether different from anything that normally has a habitat in these regions.

Dismissing the facetiousness of one wag who insists he has found its nest and that it lays square eggs, it may be mentioned that Mrs. Helen E. Dowe and Miss Kathryn Coffey, living in the old St James' rectory up on Mechanic street, saw the beast this morning and observed it carefully. Mrs. Dowe stated, as did Robert Cudworth, who first reported it up on Broad street last Saturday morning, that it is a dark gray animal, approximately the size of a small cat. It has short hair a small head, rat-like in appearance, and a long and apparently hairless tail The tail, by the way, seems to flatten out, something after the manner of a beaver, but not in such generous proportion.

This morning Mr. Whasizit pranced around Mechanic street while onlookers stared. It sat up, much after the manner of a rabbit or a squirrel, and it chased up and down trees as does a squirrel. And rats don't do that thing so handily, most people will agree. A line crew of the Connecticut Light and Power company came along while the animal was disporting itself and were among those who noted that the animal has a white stomach when it sits up.

And just to rough up the timid a bit, Miss Coffey threw some pieces of bread out to the thing when it was near her home, and it came up and sniffed them and passed them up. Mrs. Dowe expressed the opinion that it would have come right into the house if invited.

And there you are. Danielson has a summer mystery on its hands, but, to date, no handy person with a gun.

PLAN STAR BOXING SHOW FOR NURSES' HOME FUND

Such a galaxy of big-time boxing stars as people hereabouts love to read about, but seldom, if ever, see, will be gathered here in September by Frank Barber of the Casino alleys in the interest of the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

This affair is going to have, in a miniature way, all the class that usually surrounds big fistic events at Madison Square Garden in New York Mr. Barber promises to put on parade, and in action a big shot from every class of boxers, from the heavies down to the featherweights. He will even make you a bet right now that he will have Carnera, the Ambling Alp, as one of his headliners. He also promises to line up Battling Battalino. There'll be no championship bouts fought, of course, the big-time boys merely indulging in exhibition bouts, fast but not dangerous to their titles or reputations. Then there will be about four eight-round bouts in which the opponents will go to it.

Mr. Barber is bound and possessed that this show will make plenty of money for the Nurses' Home fund. He is as equally bent that every dollar that comes through the gate will be a net dollar, with no rake-off for anyone. If Mr. Barber achieves the success he is anticipating, and for which he is willing to spend plenty of his own money, the receipts should build at least half of the wall on one side of the proposed new home. It will be lined up after the manner of the famous Milk Fund benefit that is run off in New York every summer.

Mr. Barber will have the co-operation of the local committees that are boosting the Nurses' Home fund program, and he hopes to draft at least a score of nurses, in uniform, on the night of the exhibition to aid by their presence and impressiveness in building still more dollars from those who pay their way into the state armory where the event is to be held.

Dissatisfied public service car operators were insisting today that they will press their claim for a right to bid for the contracts for transporting pupils of the schools of the town of Killingly from one point to another within the town. They are hammering home their argument that no such contract should be awarded without competitive bidding. They insist that so long as no contracts actually have been signed for transportation by the town school committee for the coming school year the subject remains an open one and subject to discussion, and that they are going right on battling for return of the long-standing arrangement under which interested persons were given an opportunity to submit bids. Looks like a hot little battle for the distribution of upwards of $8,000 that will be paid out for riding school children about between next September and graduation time next June. The public generally is interested in the outcome.

It is also curious to see whether the complainants among the public service car operators who claim they have been left out in the cold will make good their avowed purpose of bidding under the prices paid carriers on different runs during the past school year. If they do that thing, they save the town money.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hilton and their two children of Academy street left here this afternoon to spend a vacation of two weeks at Sandwich, on Cape Cod.

Employes of Powdrell & Alexander who are going on an annual outing to Rocky Point will get away from here early Saturday morning. Company officials will see to it that all who go will have a marvelous time. That may be predicted on the splendid outcome of last year's outing.

William A. Langevin of New Bedford is visiting here over the week-end with relatives and friends.

A surprise birthday party was given Miss Florence McGovern at her home in Goodyear Monday evening, it being her twenty-third birthday. PUTNAM

SOUTH WOODSTOCK FARMER REPORTED STILL MISSING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 18—No additional information concerning the whereabouts of Robert E. Lowe, 56 years old, South Woodstock farmer, missing from home for three days, could be obtained from relatives of the missing man today. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer of the state police barracks at Danielson, was deluged with telephone calls during the afternoon from inquisitive persons, seeking to learn whether or not the mother and sister of Lowe had asked the police to organize a searching party for the missing man. Lieut. Urquhart said late tonight that the state police had received no request to aid in such a search.

Relatives at the Lowe home in South Woodstock continued reticence today on the matter. They refused to comment in any way on the mysterious disappearance of Lowe. The theory that a rift had come between family members and Lowe causing the latter to dispose of his property holdings and voluntarily leave for parts unknown was advanced in police circles tonight.

CARD PARTY NETS $50 FOR NURSES HOME FUND

Assisted by Mrs. Andrew V. Frost of Sunnyside, the members of the nursing staff of the Day Kimball hospital, entertained at 12 tables of bridge at the Frost home Thursday evening for the benefit of the nurses home fund. The party was most enjoyably arranged and from a financial standpoint, proved to be a highly successful one, $50 being realized.

Four awards comprised the prize list. In the ladies class the first award went to Mrs. William J. Jarvis and the second to Miss Rhoda Gilpatric. Arthur F. Hughes and Waldo C. Chase, turned in highest scores to win the first and second prizes in the gentlemen's class, respectively.

At the conclusion of the play Mrs. Frost served punch and wafers.

The church vacation school, which has been in session since July 7, closed yesterday and this morning the student body consisting of more than 100 boys and girls with their leaders journeyed to Roseland park in South Woodstock were the annual school picnic was held.

The sudden return of June's heat wave today, sent thermometers in the city from the comfortable marks of the past few days to the torrid temperature recording of 90 degrees at 2 o'clock.

Following a meeting of the general committee in charge of the nurses home fund drive which was held this week at the Russian Bear tea room in Thompson, it was announced that a quota of $7,000 has been designated to be raised by the Putnam drive forces. The quotas of other towns assisting the drive are as follows: Thompson $5,000; Danielson $5,000; Brooklyn $1,000; Eastford $500; Woodstock $2,500; and Pomfret $6,000.

Friends of Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church in Greeneville, former pastor of the Church of the Most Holy Trinity at Pomfret, will be glad to learn that the well known clergyman-author, in October, will have added another book to his growing list of works which met with marked success in the literary world. The best known of Rev. Father Donahue's books is "Cardinal Newman," which was published during his pastorate at Pomfret.

Today was Pomfret garden day, an event sponsored by the Pomfret committee assisting in the nurses home drive. At 2 o'clock this afternoon many automobiles started from the railroad station at Pomfret Center and began the tour of the gardens of 15 of the beautiful homes in the summer colony. The weather conditions for the visit were ideal. The affair was a success financially and socially.

Engineers of the state highway department were at work today on Mechanics street making a survey of the Worcester-Boston highway passing this point.

Officials of the Southern New England Telephone company were investigating the cause of a fractured pole in the lines on the state road running between Woodstock and Pomfret. It appears that the pole was struck by a large truck. No report of any automobile accident occurring on that stretch of road this week has as yet come to the attention of the Danielson barracks of state police, however.

A form of pastime popular in the "gay nineties," that seems to be returning to flower is the ancient game of croquet. Noted on many of the lawns in the south end of the city, are croquet courses staked out with steel wickets.

TRAFFIC SIGNAL SYSTEM INSPECTED AT BOSTON

Jacob Weschler, junior member of the board of borough electric light commissioners, and Charles R. Carey were recent visitors in Boston, the former on business in connection with the proposed traffic signal system which is to be put into trial operation at once.

Griswold Highway Section Completed

The M. A. Gammino Construction Co. has completed the new Griswold section of the state trunk line highway which will pass over the new Quinebaug viaduct in Jewett City. The new stretch, a little short of three miles, has been a record job, when it is considered that within the borough limits at several points the road is over 40 feet wide, with the contract by the state specifications only calling for 20 feet. The advantages to the borough are plainly to be seen today, and the action of the freemen in appropriating $10,000 for the completion of the curb-to-curb project is now highly commended. The first of the through traffic was routed over the new Tadpole cut-off Wednesday evening.

Girl Gets Pair of Foxes

Live foxes have a value, placed by people from whom one would least suspect such preferences. Al. Randall has nine fast-growing young fox kittens in a large cage at his station at the upper end of Tadpole pond. They are a very unusual sight. Never having known the wild life, and not being acquainted with any of the demands of the forest, these bright-eyed, sharp-eared little chaps have become quite tame Of the many who stop to see the little fellows, the other day a big New York state car was in the string. The fox kittens seemed to take the eye of a small girl who was evidently a daughter of the man of the party The father was finally won over, a soap box was secured, and a pair of the small reynards was popped in—Mr Randall pocketed several fine-looking pieces of currency, and pa, the kid and Mr. R. seemed happy as the big car resumed its journey. These baby foxes are part of a litter of 14, dug out of their burrow early in April, in one of the large wilderness tracts which lie off to the north and east of Mt. Misery. It is the intention to keep them until the fur is prime in November, at which time red fox pelts are worth from $20 to $30.

Hospital Service Appreciated

According to the recently published reports from the Backus hospital in Norwich, there were 125 patients from Jewett City during 1929, a larger number than from any outside locality except Taftville. The people of this borough are deeply appreciative of the benefits they receive each year from this admirable and highly efficient institution. In cases of emergency or urgent need, this available service is a privilege worth while.

Mrs Levi Dugas and Miss Loretta Dugas spent last week in Hartford.

Mrs. F. S. Leonard left Friday to spend the remainder of the summer at Lengarde cottage, Misquamicut. Mr Leonard will join her when he is discharged from Backus hospital.

Strange Animal Identified.

A local Bulletin reader who noted the description of the strange animal seen in Danielson recently had a few bad minutes one day this week while picking blueberries in the woods near his home. In describing his experience he said, "I just happened to be thinking of that strange animal when some thing jumped up and crashed through the bushes toward me, making strange noises as it came. The foliage was dense and I could not see plainly I was so startled I could not move when suddenly the animal came round the bush. It was an enormous buck. He unmistakably showed fight snorting and pawing the ground. He came directly toward me. That deer was left monarch of all he surveyed in nothing flat."

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

When the motor vehicle department reports a decrease of 19 per cent in the motor vehicle accidents during the first six months of this year, in comparison with the same period last year, even though the registrations this year exceed those of last year by over 6,500, it is no more than ought to be expected and yet it is far more than has previously been disclosed.

Such an improvement indicates that there is better driving, that the increased number of users of the highway are conscious of the fact that the responsibility rests upon their shoulders to prevent the appalling number of fatalities and injuries because of automobile crashes.

The fact that there are more registrations this year should not mean that we ought to expect more accidents. To the contrary, it is good and sufficient reason for causing those who use the highway to be more careful, to give recognition to the fact that with more machines in the road they must be alert to guard against trouble and to recognize the need of giving stricter attention to the rules of the highway and the rights of others. It should impress all drivers with the necessity of avoiding all chance-taking and to settle down to the use of only such speed as will make it possible to maintain control over the car.

Furthermore, there cannot be overlooked the importance of giving careful attention to the upkeep of the automobile. Much depends upon the mechanical fitness of the auto. Bad brakes and bad lights are easily remedied and when in condition make possible the saving of much trouble.

Having completed a first half of the year with reduced accidents and fatalities, an effort should be made to see that he second half is even better. In connection with the second half, there is to be an effort throughout all the states of New England to do this very thing. It is a "save-a-life" campaign in which the auto owner and driver is to be called upon to give his cooperation to the worthy cause of reducing the highway casualty list. Last year Rhode Island cooperated so that less were killed than it was estimated would be. Connecticut has just as good reason for centering attention on such a worthy undertaking. Having made a good start on reduced casualties, let the good work continue.

CONNECTICUT FARMERS

Connecticut is an industrial rather than a farming state, but it stands second from the top in states where farms are not being abandoned. There may be several reasons for this.

Connecticut occupies a favorable position in regard to markets. Its farm products do not have to be transported long distances and because it is an industrial state there is opportunity for the production of far greater quantities of farm produce than is now raised. Connecticut farmers do not need to look beyond the borders of the state for the disposition of their goods.

As yet, they are not making the best of their opportunities for the satisfying of state demands, but efforts which are being made toward better marketing conditions are helping to such an extent that even better results can be anticipated in the future. Evidence that this is taking place is furnished by the keener competition which is being offered by out-of-the-state producers.

There is in Connecticut as well as elsewhere the same attraction for the city by the sons and daughters of the farmers. They drift away from the homestead and into other lines of activity. But, even as they are doing that, others are giving recognition to the opportunities which are afforded for intensive farming, dairying, fruit raising and truck gardening. They are seeing where it is possible to get the business that is being given to other states and to cut down the huge amount of material that is imported from neighboring and distant commonwealths.

Furthermore, Connecticut farms in many instances are aided by the good roads which place them in close touch with the cities. In other cases they are demanding attention of a character that will provide them with better roads in those country districts where improvements have not been made. Thus, with a demand for Connecticut foods, the existence of nearby and good markets, the benefit of good roads and the expectation of better development for the so-called country roads, gives the farming industry encouragement that keeps the abandoned farms to a minimum in this state.

BOOSTING POSTAL RATE

Deficits in the postoffice department are so customary that they attract little attention. It is expected that they will occur and interest centers chiefly on the size. It has long been figured that these deficits mean the condition of service and that, except for some certain instances where the department is not responsible for them, the abuse of the franking privilege, they represent expenditures which have not been met by the rates charged.

Because the department's last report showed a deficit of $85,000,000, of which such a substantial sum of $35,000,000 represents the subsidies which are paid for the carrying of air mail and the transportation of mail on ships, Postmaster General Brown has been giving the situation exhaustive study and has reached the conclusion that deficits ought not to exist. He believes that the service should pay its way. It is well understood that there are branches of the service which are not doing that. Furthermore, it is realized that it would be unwise to endeavor to boost rates to the point where they could be made to meet expenses. For that reason the idea has been advanced of raising the rate on first class mail a half cent.

There isn't anything that arouses much greater opposition than the boosting of a trolley fare a cent. Less would be thought by many of paying a 25 cent taxi fare than of standing a jump of a cent in the trolley collection. It is much the same way with the plan of jumping the first class mail rate. During the war it was put up to three cents and accepted as a war measure. It went back after the war and, even though postal expenses have been moved much higher for various reasons, the first class rate has not been disturbed and the gap between expenses and revenue increases. Those who make large use of the service are getting the favorable rate and those who pay the federal taxes are making up the deficit. The situation today is such that a much more expensive service is being obtained without any jump in the rate. Thus the proposition put forth by the postmaster general promises to get much consideration when it comes before the next congress.

DIVERTING THE TRAFFIC

Communities which have insisted in the past upon being included in highway developments and those which are demanding it now are due sooner or later to recognize their mistake. They are inviting traffic conditions which will mean trouble and expense, all of which could be avoided by construction that would eliminate them.

Villages, boroughs and cities are experiencing congested conditions because of the large volume of traffic they are obliged to receive because there is no other way for the steadily increasing stream of vehicles to go. Most of the autos do not stop, but they serve to jam the streets and create hazards. The communities don't like it and impose restrictions. The traffic doesn't like it but it cannot escape.

The situation has increased until, as the Providence Bulletin points out, the only solution "is that which provides for the construction of the by-pass routes that will take traffic around cities and villages instead of through them. The chief—in fact, the only—opposition to this sensible plan comes, curiously enough, from the villages themselves and is prompted by fear of loss of business if travel is diverted."

Through traffic adds little to the business activities of a village or city. Those who want to stop always can, by-pass or not. Those who want to skip village or city cannot do so without some circling highway, but, through the by-pass or the development of other routes, there could be a diversion of the traffic so that even the main lines would not be jammed. Congestion and safety are rapidly demanding it.

APPOINTMENTS NEXT

In its own time the senate will get around to taking action on the ratification of the London treaty. Already it would appear that the judgment of that body is strongly in favor of approving it. The minority is being given plenty of time in which to voice its feelings and set forth its arguments, while the country is anxiously waiting for the day when it will vote ratification, dispose of such other small business as may be ready, shut up and go home.

The special session was for the purpose of acting on the treaty. There are, however, several rather important appointments which the president is understood to have ready for submission to the senate at such a time as not to interfere with the action on the treaty but before adjournment is taken.

Should they be submitted now they would serve to occupy the time and the attention of the senate to the exclusion of the treaty. No one knows that better than the president. How happy some of the senators would be to launch an investigation of most any appointee just for the purpose of causing such a delay and a complication in the situation as would result in quick adjournment without anything being done or a prolonged discussion. They would like to fight it out that way if it took all summer.

Such wouldn't be fair to anyone. The president, therefore, will withhold the nominations until treaty action is taken and then submit those selected for the tariff and power commissions and include any others which may be ready.

It would be entirely possible for the president to make such appointments after the senate adjourned, subject to confirmation when it convenes again, but sch recess appointment never assures the men named that they are going to be continued in office, and it would be unwise to have them get started on important work which would have to be abandoned after a few months. Both of the commissions are important and both should be able to function as quickly as possible.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Both individuals and nations have their trials. No nation has ever found its political existence to be a soft snap, and certainly individuals without exception find the pathway of life more or less rugged. But when we compare national affairs today with what they were in the year 1776, not long after the Declaration of Independence had been promulgated we have reason to thank God that we are living now rather than then. We can easily surmise how the action of the Continental congress on July Fourth 1776 was received in Great Britain. It was very much like the way in which the news of the recent uprising in India is being received in London at present. Lord Howe with his armed forces was soon here, and he was joined by his brother Admiral Howe with a large fleet at Staten Island. How different from the present July!

There are many other reasons why we should be a grateful people. We belong to the Anglo-Saxon race, and our Maker has seen fit to put the development of civilization very largely into the hands of this race. To make a statement of this character is not to disparage the less fortunate peoples of the globe, but it is an unquestioned fact that the white or Caucasian race has been leaders in the major movements of mankind. Of this fact no scholar has any reasonable doubt. It is absolutely true that greater advantages come to those who are born in America and Europe than those who are natives of the African or Asiatic continents. Now with these advantages come also greater responsibilities for helping those who live in less enlightened lands. "To whom much is given much is expected." This is true in other directions. We must lend a helping hand to those less fortunate than we.

"The hour cometh and now is" when the excursion to seashore, mountain or lake is the order of the day. The writer has particularly in mind the annual Sunday school excursion to which the younger ones look forward with so much joyful anticipation. If the appetite of many of us older fellows is not quite so keen for this day of clam chowder, swimming, games and trolley rides as the little ones are, just bear in mind that it is not so very long ago that we were four feet high rather than five and a half or six, and did not sport a mustache. Let us not forget the days that have long since become history. These sunny days for them will not always last, so let us make these excursions something worthwhile to the boys and girls before the time arrives when they must begin to bear the more exacting responsibilities of life. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The Fourth of July celebration, in spite of its age, continues to leave deep impressions on the observant and thoughtful mind. It reminds us of the ancient psalmist who wrote, "yea, I have a goodly heritage." It was probably another writer, at a later time, who exclaimed, "Beautiful for situation: the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion." Now this is what the grammarians would call hyperbole, or exaggerated speech, but doubtless it was sincere on the part of the national enthusiast who uttered it. Nothing is more natural for a patriot to exalt his counry. We find it in this hymn.

"America, America!
God shed his grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea."

One of the burning problems of the day is not political, but religious, and that problem is what attitude ought the Christian churches of America to take in relation to present conditions in China? In response to China's many woes and tribulations America has been kindness personified. For a century or more our missionaries have been doing a brave and noble work in the face of all sorts of opposition which has been well nigh insuperable. America has been lavish with her money in meeting the horrors of repeated famines. She has done a noble and constructive work in the attempt to lift the people out of their ignorance and misery. She has done everything in her power to exchange heathenism for civilization. But it is "the last straw that is breaking the camel's back," and that is taking the missionaries captive and holding them for ransom.

All lovers of delightful fiction of the highest character learn with the most sincere regret that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the writer of those delightful and amazing detective stories, is dead. It recalls those days when many had to be reminded that it was bedtime, so engrossed were they in the uncanny doings of Sherlock Holmes. The plots that Doyle's brain concocted and untangled were absorbing in the extreme. And it is not at all strange that while he was dealing with these extraordinary tangles he was the most popular writer in the English speaking world. The genius of this man was translated into every language of the civilized world. The value of these stories consisted in the fact that they did not enter the realm of the impossible. Not in a single instance did Doyle abuse the reader's imagination.

As an aftermath to the fact of Conan Doyle's death comes up a reference to his identity with spiritualism, or more correctly, with spiritism. We can easily imagine that a man of his mental calibre and trend should become interested in the occult sciences. That the puzzles of the supernatural should interest him. I understand that people have kept very near to his mortal remains expecting some post mortem communication from him. I presume that the rank and file will set this down as sheer absurdity. But are you sure that it is? Are we not living in an age in which science is doing things that a few years ago would have been called absurd? Suppose you had been told five years ago that the time was at hand when you would sit near a little instrument and hear speaking and singing in London three thousand miles away, what would you have said of that? Let us be careful how we use that word "impossible!"

While we have at present no indisputable evidence of communication with the dead, it is going altogether too far to say dogmatically that it is either absurd or impossible. I suppose that the majority of us believe that there is something connected with the human personality that is absolved from death. The body or material part of us sooner or later returns to its original elements, but at death the spiritual takes its flight. Is anyone justified in saying with absolute certainty that there is not in existence any media that can connect a disembodied spirit with a living being? Would that be any more remarkable than having a clear voice in London singing, "Nearer, My God to Thee" brought to my ears here in Norwich? May it not be that departed spirits are influencing us far more than any of us realize?

One Roman historian states that a friend, stipulating in his will that the great art collector Petronius broke one of his favorite glass objects worth $10,000, on his deathbed, so that the Emperor Nero might not have it; but Nero saved the pieces.

NEW LONDON COUNTY IN THE 1870'S WAS THE HOME OF SUPERCANINES.

Bulletin readers the other day were highly edified by stories of Betty, a dog owned by John Ellis of Noank, which eats cherries—climbing a ladder to get them when necessary—"and spits the stones out just like a boy would do." Betty may well be a descendant of those supercanines that flourished in the columns of the Bulletin 50 years or more ago.

The issue of Feb. 26, 1876 reports:

"A Canine Capt. Boynton

"Saturday a splendid Newfoundland dog swam the Thames river from one shore line slip to the other, probably a distance of a mile and a half. The dog lives in Groton and is owned by Christopher Avery. It was night and the dog was anxious to get home to his family. The river was full of floating ice, and he was obliged to beat his way along with his paws.

"As he neared the Groton slip, he found his way impeded by thicker and more numerous formations of ice, but still he fought on, making almost imperceptible progress. Capt. Bartlett of the Shore Line boat (bless his humane soul!) saw the situation of Bruno, and rescued him from his peril. The old fellow was glad enough to get out and exhibited his gratitude to his benefactor by barking and rushing up and down the decks of the steamer."

Dog Knew Use of Money

From the issue of Aug. 23, 1876:

"There is a knowing dog who lives on the West Side. A day or two ago his master, feeling too ill to go out, sent a Negro boy to buy meat for the dog. Being unable to obtain the meat at the nearest market, the boy undertook to go to another, but the dog refused to let him come out of the first one without the meat.

"At length the boy showed him the money, which he still retained, and the dog permitted him to go, but instead of running before him as at first, kept by his side, giving an occasional growl as an indication that he was not to be trifled with, and evidently under the impression that his funds were in danger of being embezzled."

Recognized the Day of the Week

The Bulletin of May 4, 1877, says:

"A rather remarkable instance of the sagacity of a dog is related and vouched for by the conductor of the early morning train from Norwich. A Mr. Maples who lives near the track between Mohegan and Massapeag is a subscriber for a weekly paper, probably the Courier, which is put on the train to be thrown off by the baggagemaster every Thursday morning.

"On that morning as the train comes around the curve in sight of the house, the dog, a large Newfoundland one, may be seen on his haunches in expectation. He immediately runs down towards the track, and when the paper is thrown off he picks it up and carries it to the house. On other mornings he is either not in sight at all or else he is seen lying coiled up and paying no more attention to the train than if it were a thousand miles away."

He Returned with a License

A report dated May 29, 1878:

"A Union street man has a dog that he values both on account of association and intrinsic merits. Feeling unable to afford the expense of registration, he resolved, after a conflict with his affections and those of his family, to sacrifice the pup. The animal, which had been listening to the conversation, discreetly disappeared the next day.

"This was several weeks since. A day or two ago the dog returned wearing a neat, new collar, duly registered and inscribed with the name of a new claimant. He was welcomed back with joy, and is still in possession of his first master, who is willing to match him in diplomatic ability against a democratic congressman."

From the issue of Aug. 21, 1879:

'An Inveterate Hater of Frogs

"A dog likes company and when exiled from canine society will often find amusement in foreign partnerships. Recently a Montville man carried home a young terrier dog. There were no other dogs in the neighborhood, so he broke the monotony of the place by playing with toads.

"He actually became an adept in discovering their haunts, and when they hopped he would hop and when they were at rest he rested. He showed every symptom of delight over the fact that he could leap farther than the toad could, not recognizing the disparity in length of body and limbs in his favor.

"One day he nosed out a bull-frog in the wet grass that proved to be the prince of tremendous leapers, and trying his jumping powers with it he was defeated. Astonished, he looked at the frog as he leaped away, but before it had got off the premises, as if in a fit of jealousy, he ran after and killed it.

"He still noses out toads, and playfully touches them with his feet to make them jump with him, but from the day he was beaten by the frog at leaping he has insisted on killing every frog he meets in his travels."

Wouldn't Be a Dead Beat

From the issue of March 9, 1889:

"There is a trick dog in Norwich, owned by a lady, that seems to have a nice comprehension of things owned and paid for. Let the most tempting tid-bit be placed before him with the information "That costs money," and he will not touch it; but upon being assured "It is paid for," he quickly appropriates it to his own use, probably upon the assumption that whatever has been paid for by his mistress is as much his as hers."

YOUR HEALTH

The Unusual Types of Hay Fever

By Cary T. Grayson, M. D.,
President, Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The cause of your hay fever, out of the ordinary "spring-summer-fall" hay fever season, is shrouded in mystery until you call in the family physician. Even he may have to get out the magnifying glass and double for Sherlock Holmes.

And when he has found the reason for your discomfort, it will generally be some unsuspected cause that you never dreamed could be so villainous. For example, do you know that hay fever can be caused by a certain kind of dry shampoo? It can be.

A young man, recently married, consulted a hay fever expert. A long investigation was necessary before a dry shampoo powder, used by the young man's wife, was discovered to be causing the trouble.

There is another sort of hay fever due to dandruff of horses dogs or other domesticated animals. Infection from dust of feathers in pillows, or from summer or winter furs worn by women, are other causes. Dust of wool, but not of cotton, is also responsible for hay fever. Not long ago a case was traced to a fine camels hair rug given for an anniversary present. The removal of the rug was all that was needed to cure the hay fever.

The dust of flour and ground coffee is a cause. So, among certain people, are such common articles of diet as fish, meats, eggs, Worcestershire sauce and watermelons. It should be fully understood, lest the facts become confused, that hay fever from such causes is due to the absorption of the certain protein to which that individual, for some unknown reason, has become abnormally sensitive, and it does not follow that you will contract hay fever by eating any one or all of these particular foods.

The real cause of these "unusual cases" can be determined only by tests by a competent physician. The tests are simple, but they are a reliable guide to the cause of these unusual types of hay fever which do afflict many people in the course of a year's time.

"The victims of hay fever in the United States number over a million and the number is steadily increasing, both apparently and actually."

This is according to the records of the American Hay Fever Prevention association. The economic loss resulting from this one cause runs into the millions of dollars, and brings hay fever out of the "joke" class of maladies into the upper ranks of those affecting Uncle Sam's pocketbook.

Hay fever, when due to pollen of flowers, occurs only during the flowering season. It occurs in early spring, summer, late summer and fall. Rose fever is the name usually applied to the hay fever of spring, but it is of short duration and not severe. Timothy pollen is by far the most important cause of hay fever of late spring and summer.

A popular idea, that is without fact, is that golden-rod is the one big cause of all the sneezing, itching, running noses, watery eyes, which are the common symptoms of hay fever. But the big cause is not golden-rod but ragweed.

The pollen of ragweed is light, feathery and buoyant. It may be wind-borne a distance of five miles. That is but one reason you should consult with your family physician before moving to a locality which you believe is out of the ragweed infested area. He may save a lot of unnecessary moving expense and railroad fare.

Change of scene alone will not do any good. There must go with the change of scene an absence of the pollen which produces your hay fever. Another thing to remember is that the kind of pollen which brings hay fever to your neighbor, may not be the sort that causes discomfort to you. It all depends upon your personal susceptibility as to whether you are going to suffer from the identical pollen.

The destruction of ragweed will go a long ways toward the elimination of this kind of hay fever. If you live in the city, make it your business to see that the ragweeds are cut down on all vacant lots. Oftentimes you can escape hay fever by moving in from the suburbs where there is apt to be a great deal of ragweed pollen, to the center of the city where it is probably absent.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Mushroom and the Oak

There are those who remind us of a mushroom which growing up in a night, is but a pulpy thing. But the oak, ah! there are men who grow like the oak. The winds cry, "We will wrestle with you and break you," and the oak stretches out its hands answering, "Let us wrestle then." The rocks beneath mutter, "We'll thwart you," the oak thrusts down its roots, grapples with the rocks and conquers them, and at last reaching its graceful arms aloft it gives its challenge to the storms of Heaven.

Thus we wrestle, and wrestling grow into the possession of those graces which, found in a bundle are called character. We often fail, aye, again and again, blunder. Yes, all along the way, but the test is to push ahead and march through the Valley of Achor, past the shields and weapons that were thrown away in former defeats, in glorious achievement. Knowing that if we build on the rock foundation, Christ Jesus, we cannot know defeat. That in Him we shall be ever more than conquerors.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Egret Changes His Mind

The bigoted to truth is blind
And so can never change his mind.
—Egret the Heron.

Egret the Great White Heron hardly knew what to make of things. He had been shot by one of those two-legged killers with terrible guns, but had blamed Farmer Brown's Boy for it. You see, he thought all of those two-legged creatures were alike. As a matter of fact, Farmer Brown's Boy had frightened the hunter away and so had saved Egret's life. Then he had caught Egret and brought him home, where he had made a comfortable pen for him in the barn. But first of all he very carefully examined that wounded wing and put medicine on it to help it heal. He was very gentle about it—very gentle indeed.

Egret, believing that Farmer Brown's Boy was responsible for his pain and fright, struck at him whenever he got the chance and once he narrowly missed one of Farmer Brown's Boy's eyes. Farmer Brown's Boy was more cautious after that. He went down to the Smiling Pool and got some frogs and minnows to feed Egret. At first, Egret would not touch them, but when he thought no one was watching, he swallowed one of the minnows. Right then and there he discovered that he was hungry. Two more minnows and a couple of small frogs went down that long white throat. He felt better then. It is curious, but true, that no matter what our troubles are, we almost always feel a little better after a good meal.

Egret began to watch Farmer Brown's Boy. He discovered that Farmer Brown's Boy was always gentle. He always spoke in a soothing way. Egret began to change his mind.

"This fellow doesn't seem to mean me any harm," thought he. "Perhaps he wasn't the one who caused me all this pain and trouble, anyway. I guess I won't try to bite him any more. I won't strike at him unless he gives me some real reason for doing so."

So it happened that almost at once Egret and Farmer Brown's Boy became the best of friends. Egret would allow no one else to touch him, but Farmer Brown's Boy could do what he pleased with Egret. You see, having changed his mind, Egret went to the other extreme. He actually looked for the coming of Farmer Brown's Boy. Perhaps that was because Farmer Brown's Boy seldom failed to bring him a fish or a frog or some other tidbit. He would let Farmer Brown's Boy examine and dress that injured wing and never once offer to strike.

It was a queer life Egret was living. He who had always lived in swamps or marshes, in far places where he seldom saw man, was now living in one of man's own buildings. There was nothing familiar to him. The only water he ever saw was in the pail from which he picked out his fish. Yet Egret wasn't altogether unhappy. He never had to go hungry and he was always safe. There were no enemies for him to fear. When he slept he could sleep in peace.

Sometimes he did long to stand in water and watch for a fish to come within reach. Or to walk with stately steps where the ground was marshy and a frog might leap in front of him any moment. But on the whole he was not unhappy. You see, all the time he knew that wounded wing was useless for flying. He knew that being unable to fly, he would have small chance of escaping some hungry enemy were he out in the open. How he understood it, he couldn't have told you; but he did understand that Farmer Brown's Boy was trying to help heal that wing. And right down inside he was sure that when that wing was healed, Farmer Brown's Boy would set him free once more.

So Farmer Brown's Boy and Egret the Great White Heron became the best of friends and day by day that wounded wing healed.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 18—The speed with which some 430 members of the house of representatives can demobilize and get to work on their political fences at home, once that branch of congress adjourns in an election year, is startling.

One day they are all or nearly all in Washington. Two days later there are hardly a baker's dozen to be found. The house end of the capitol becomes a gloomy, forlorn place.

But one part of the congressional machinery keeps rumbling along despite the absence of representatives. That is the Record.

So many members reserve the right to enter last moment undelivered speeches, or accountings to their districts of what they had been doing in Washington, that it takes days to clean up.

The transcript of proceedings of the second session, seventy-first congress was still open two weeks after adjournment. It appeared as the "Appendix," now promoted to independent publication, while senate doings in the naval treaty special session came out in a separate volume as "The Congressional Record, special session."

Two Main Issues

If the subject matter of the speeches house members left behind them in Washington, to appear in due course in the "Appendix" and be mailed to their constituencies, is any indication of what the November elections will turn upon, there can be no doubt that the tariff and the war veteran's pension legislation hold the center of the political stage.

The first post-session issue of the "Appendix" fairly bristled with these two subjects.

"Reports" to Voters

There were other things than tariff and pensions in that overflow "Appendix," of course. Increasingly house members are taking to making it the vehicle for submitting "reports" to the voters back home.

Hastings of Oklahoma put his in under the frank title "My Record in the first and second sessions, seventy-first congress." It took him ten columns to do it.

His colleague, Cartwright, managed to confine his similar report on himself to a modest two columns. And by way of "conclusion," Cartwright made this remark about the actual work for his constituents which a house member does:

"I have been impressed with the thought that in order to be a reasonable efficient congressman it is essential for one to be a willing errand boy."

Another remark of Cartwright's caught the Bystander's eye as probably the basis on which many members explain some of their votes when they get home.

"I have voted for some very good bills," he said, "and for others not because they were good, but because they were the best to be had."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

St. Kilda Now Awaits a Robinson Crusoe

The tenants of Macleod of Macleod are moving out, so the island of St. Kilda is "for rent."

Occupied since the invasion of the Black Danes, more than a thousand years ago, St. Kilda now has been abandoned, according to news dispatches from England. Civilization's contest with nature has been won by the elements, fog and crashing waves.

"St. Kilda is large enough for anyone with Crusoe inclinations," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Two miles wide, three miles long, it has supported more than 100 souls, although the remnant of migrating tenants numbers only 35 persons.

"To locate St. Kilda one begins with Skye. The island of Skye lies off the west coast of Scotland. The Hebrides lie west of Skye. St. Kilda lies west of the Hebrides; 40 miles out from the Hebridean island of Harris. Save for the islets of Soay, Boreray and Dun, it stands alone, facing the storms that scream across the North Atlantic, plunged for months in mists and fogs.

"When St. Kildans were not catching or cleaning or eating fish they were catching or eating birds that catch fish. A fulmar petrel, fat with a liberal fish diet, has been as much a staple food on the Scotch island as potatoes in Ireland and Bolivia and rice in Tokyo and Charleston. The petrels were to be caught in the recesses of the cliff ramparts that St. Kilda raises against the Atlantic's might on all sides except the one that enfolds a bay.

"Daring and skill were required of men who scaled the cliffs 500 to 800 feet high to catch birds and gather eggs. Indeed, every St. Kildan had to prove himself a human fly before he was permitted to marry. A prospective bridegroom had to walk to the edge of the highest, sheerest cliff overhanging the boiling surf and there balance on one foot, throw the other foot out over the abyss, then stretch both arms out. If he lived he married. Boys began practicing for this ordeal soon after they learned to walk.

"Sometimes St. Kilda is called the lost island because its inhabitants were annually cut off from the world for eight, nine, even ten months. The bay, where the now deserted village stands, was too hazardous an anchorage for vessels during the winter. When ships finally called, in the late spring, the islanders were often found living close to the starvation line. Concern for the welfare of the handful of countrymen prompted the government to insist on the abandonment of St. Kilda and the removal of its scanty population to the Scotch mainland.

St. Kildans did not trust the radio station given them and to the last maintained their curious one-way postal system with the mainland during the months when they were 'lost.'

"St. Kilda was one of the last homes of the Great Auk, which is now extinct. The last member of this bird species was taken on the island in 1840. On Soay also existed, until recently, species of mountain sheep common to Europe in the Bronze Age.

"Macleod of Macleod has owned the island and its neighbors for centuries, through successive generations."

Messages were intrusted to corked bottles cast into the sea with a prayer that the bottles would drift to the Hebrides and be picked up. Sometimes a tiny raft with a sealed message would be launched with the confidence that the sea was the best postman available.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Sailless Night-Sky

Mr. Editor: The "fixed" stars are as islands in the sky ocean; the racing moon and the planets, visiting ships. A many-oased desert without a camel, an ocean without a sail; such would be a clear night-sky with the moon absent and not a planet in sight. What sky sails are in sight tonight?

LODGE NOTES

MOOSE

That the Loyal Order of Moose which a quarter of a century ago existed in an indifferent way, was rehabilitated to its present magnitude chiefly through the efforts of its director general, James J. Davis, U. S. secretary of labor, is the basis of a resolution of gratitude unanimously adopted by the organization, according to "Moose Magazine."

"James J. Davis did undertake the work on the basis that he operate at his own expense," reads in part the resolution recently adopted at the Mooseheart convention. He has during those twenty-five years "put into his work the best that was in him, laboring morning, noon and night, deferring for years the establishment of his own home and family to the end that he might meet the high purpose he had set for himself in building this fraternity. After many years of toil and struggle, our fraternity has been builded almost wholly through his efforts to its present magnitude and high position amongst the fraternities of the world. While organizing the fraternity and adding hundreds of thousands of names to its roster, Brother James J. Davis performed many functions and duties usually performed by supreme lodge officers under salary, including unusual work in establishing Mooseheart, our city of Childhood; Moosehaven, our Home of Opportunity for the superannuated, and the endowment fund for the support of our charitable enterprises, all without compensation or monetary consideration, and often at the expenditure of personal funds."

Grateful appreciation is expressed by the organization, concludes the resolution, for Mr. Davis' "great sacrifice of personal interest and personal fortune; his loyalty, his unselfishness, untiring, unceasing and unremitting services in behalf of this fraternity and its great program of human service, a service rendered by him because of his love for an attachment to broad humanitarian principles in the interests of dependent childhood and of needy old age, and his hope for better human relations and social conditions everywhere."

KAESCHE MEETS GRANT IN SEMI-FINALS THIS MORNING; MANY UPSETS YESTERDAY

There were golfing thrills aplenty in the first day of match play Friday in the fifth annual invitation tournament of the Norwich Golf club, the startling upset of Dow Ahern, one of the favorites, by A. H. Chase, local veteran, vieing with the hole-in-one by Edmund P. Hyde, a member of the local club. Taking place with the sensations of the day was the eagle on the hard ninth by W. G. Park, who holed out a 175-yard spoon shot, and the sensational playing of Gil Smith, 15-year old Staten Islander, who turned in an 82.

The play not only had its thrills but there were several heart breaking moments for those in the championship flight, one being when Dave Morton, home club champion, sliced his drive into the bunkers on the home hole to lose one down to Charles "Chick" Elwell of New Haven in the second round match in the championship division. Another came when Al Chase, conqueror of Dow Ahearn, was weak on a short approach shot at the eighteenth green when he had a chance to even his match with L. G. Beatty, who won 2 up.

Favorites To Clash.

In today's semi-finals one of the favorites is to be eliminated, for Max B. Kaesche, present holder of the cup, clashes with Bobby Grant of Wethersfield, who shared the medal honors with Dave Morton. This match will attract as much attention as the final match and it is predicted that the winner of the match this morning will be the ultimate winner of the cup. The consensus of opinion Friday night was that Grant would dispose of Kaesche as he is playing a stronger game than Kaesche, although Kaesche is a great match player. In the other half of the semi-finals Beatty meets Elwell, with the New Haven boy a slight favorite to win by virtue of his display against Morton in the second round.

Chase Springs Surprise.

The surprise of the day was furnished by A. H. Chase, one of the veteran golfers of the state, when he eliminated Dow Ahern of Willimantic, who had been conceded a good chance to reach the semi-finals, if not the finals. A bad case of nerves on the putting greens was largely responsible for the defeat of Ahern, the Thread City star, missing a three-foot putt on the eighteenth to keep him in the tournament. Chase, who is some 50 years the senior of Ahern, played steady golf throughout the match after getting away to a poor start. Ahern took the first two holes and then Chase settled down to almost par golf, overtook Ahern and held him until the eighteenth when he stepped out in front. In the second round match Chase dropped out of the tournament when Beatty won two up on the eighteenth. Chase gave Beatty strong competition over the entire route and displayed a brand of golf that was the talk of the club.

McKay Gives Kaesche Fight.

Kaesche had little trouble in taking his match with Noble C. Miller, 5 and 3, but met sterner competition in Eddie McKay, local player. Kaesche started a brilliant round to have McKay four down at the turn and then lost his advantage when McKay started to come to the front. Kaesche finally won out, 2 and 1.

Morton vs. Elwell.

The second round match between Dave Morton and Chick Elwell was one of the outstanding matches of the day. Morton got away to a shaky start and the tenth hole found him four down to the New Haven boy. It was here that Morton started to show the golf of which he is capable. He took the eleventh with a par three, ran down a long putt on the twelfth for a birdie to be only two down. On the thirteenth he halved the hole in par then took the long fourteenth when Elwell three putted for a seven. The short fifteenth was halved and Morton evened the match on the sixteenth with a par five. The seventeenth was halved on threes and then came the home hole. Morton sliced his drive into a bunker, while Elwell was straight down the fairway. Morton pulled his shot out of the bunker to the right of the green and Elwell was nicely on with his second. Morton was short on his third and Elwell rolled to within a club-length of the hole. When Morton missed his four Elwell holed out.

Easy For Grant.

Bobby Grant romped through his two matches with ease, taking over Johnny Sayles 3 and 2 in the morning and then disposing of H. B. Ellis of Longmeadow 7 and 5 in the afternoon. Playing through his match Grant returned with a 71 to equal par. Dow Ahern also shot a 71 in the afternoon to beat Harold Pinney 3 and 2.

One of those attracting considerable attention was Gil Smith of Staten Island, a 15-year old youngster, who won both his matches, beating H. P. Hermance and E. W. Perkins. In his match with Perkins, Smith shot an 82 missing three easy putts which would have given him a 79. The youngster has exceptionally nice form and is very steady. Another boy in the 15-year old class who displayed good golf was Bill Mustard, of Willimantic, who swamped Hans Hansen, of Willimantic, 6 and 5, but lost to his rival townsman Russ Potter, another 15-year old youth.

Hole In One By Hyde.

The hole-in-one was made by Edmund P. Hyde, of the Norwich club, in his match with Ernest Bean, of Norwich, on the 103-yard 15th hole. Hyde holed his mashie-niblick tee shot for the ace.

The results of Friday's play:

Championship Flight

First Round.

Bobby Grant, Wethersfield, defeated J. Sayles, Norwich, 3 and 2.

H. B. Ellis, Longmeadow, Mass., defeated F. Welch, Forest Hill, N. J., 6 and 5.

L. G. Beatty, Glen Ridge, N. J., defeated H. P. Pinney, Stafford Springs, 6 and 5.

ASYLUM STREET PUT IN IMPROVED CONDITION

Street Commissioner Herbert B. Wightman has had men of the public works department at work this week on Asylum street from Newton street to Starr street, a distance of about 4,000 feet, putting it into condition by scarifying, scraping and rolling, with a final coating of tar.

This is the street for which an appropriation of $30,000 was asked with the backing of the West End Community association, but the amount was voted down in the city meeting and the street commissioner was advised to do the best he could as a regular item of street repairs.

An inspection of the work that has been done shows that Street Commissioner Wightman has been able to accomplish much in a very satisfactory way without the expenditure of any such amount of money as would have been required to rebuild the street.

GUARDSMAN TRUCK UPSET IN COLLISION

A national guard truck on the way from New London to the camp at Niantic was upset and badly damaged Friday morning at 12:25 o'clock when it sideswiped a sedan on the road about 500 feet west of Jordan school in the town of Waterford.

Private Patsy Pimell, driver of the army truck, and Francis E. Payne of East Lyme, driver of the sedan, were both arrested on reckless driving charges.

Pimell and Herman Munson, who was with him on the army truck, were hospital patients in New London for minor injuries. They are both attached to second battalion, Headquarters Battery and Combat Train, 192nd field artillery.

ORDERS BUSINESS SIGNS FROM RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT

Alleged infringement of zoning regulations by putting business signs on their property, when it is in a residential district, have been called to the attention of two Broadway residents, one Sachem street resident and one Lafayette street resident through letters sent to them by City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy. They are given warning of summons into the city court unless the signs are removed within a reasonable time.

The alleged offenders against the zoning ordinances are William H. Murphy of 206 Broadway, having a sign advertising wall paper; Mrs. Elizabeth W. Haley of 243 Broadway, advertising antiques; Mrs. Frank Connelli of 99 Sachem street, advertising antiques; and George F. Ring of 44 Lafayette street, advertising his plumbing business. In the case of Mr. Ring, it is claimed he is also violating the zoning ordinance by maintaining a plumbing shop with display window, all of which he is directed to remove.

A section of the zoning ordinance applying to signs reads as follows:

"A billboard, signboard or advertising sign shall in no case be permitted as an accessory use nor shall any show or display window be permitted as an accessory use. The placing of 'for sale' or 'for rent' signs not exceeding nine square feet each in area shall, however, be permitted as an accessory use."

The penalty for failing to comply with zoning laws or the orders of the zoning board is a fine of $100 a day as long as such violation continues, or a ten-day jail sentence for each day, or both fine and jail sentence.

The appearance of the signs on the Broadway property had occasioned some comment as to how long it would be before someone raised the question whether they were not an invasion of the zoning regulations.

Action was taken by City Attorney Cassidy after he had received a resolution which was passed by the zoning board, whose members are First Selectman William S. Murray, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, Walter T. Camp, Andrew B. Davies and Alex M. Pasnik.

DIFFERENT DEATH CAUSES FOR HEAVY AND LIGHTWEIGHTS

High death rates from the degenerative diseases among overweights caused a marked reduction in their life expectation, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. Persons who are underweight, on the other hand, have high death rates from the respiratory diseases, but this unfavorable feature is usually balanced by their low death rates from the degenerative diseases.

Records of the Union Central Life Insurance company, placed at the disposal of the Metropolitan statisticians enabled them to make a thorough analysis of the important causes of death in the various weight groups. Taking the death rate of the normal weight group as 100 per cent, they discovered that overweights, as a whole, had a mortality of 151 per cent from heart disease; 172 per cent from Bright's disease; 165 per cent from arterial diseases; 157 per cent from cerebral hemorrhage, and 111 per cent from cancer, while the mortality from diabetes was 257 per cent of the average.

"On the other hand," the Metropolitan's statistical bulletin points out, "underweights had a mortality of only 81 per cent of the average from heart disease; 77 per cent from Bright's disease; 74 per cent from arterial diseases; 70 per cent from cerebral hemorrhages and 64 per cent from diabetes.

"Of the diseases which showed high death rates among underweights," the bulletin says, "tuberculosis stood first by a wide margin. Moreover, the greater the degree of underweight, the higher was the tuberculosis death rate. As a group, their mortality from this cause was 202 per cent of the normal, but among those 15 per cent or more underweight, it was 291 per cent. Overweights, on the other hand, had a tuberculosis mortality rate less than half the normal, and less than a quarter of the rate among underweights.

"The death rate from pneumonia was also high among underweights. As a class, their mortality from this disease was 111 per cent of the normal, but it was even higher among those who were extremely underweight. Among overweights, on the other hand, the death rate was only 84 per cent of that in the average group.

"To a certain extent, the tendency toward overweight is hereditary and, consequently the excess mortality of overweights is not greatly subject to control. Overweight, however, is often due to the dietary habits and the mode of life of the individual and such overweight can be modified with great benefit to health and longevity."

MAKING SURVEY OF STATE'S LEGAL BUSINESS

The office of the attorney-general is making a survey of state departments with the general plan in view of satisfactorily handling the legal business of these departments. The requirements of the several departments in the state are being checked in the anticipation of the preparation of the budget for the next two years.

Assistant Attorney-General Raymond A. Johnson is now in charge of the details of the office, and Assistant Attorney-General John King is taking care of matters pertaining to the state banking department, solely. The requirements of the remaining state departments are to be so arranged that they may be apportioned to counsel in the office, Assistants Bernard Kosicki and H. Roger Jones. Deputy Attorney-General Ernest L. Averill is, of course, acting in place of Attorney-General Benjamin W. Alling during the latter's illness.

GIRL SCOUTS CAMPING AT FORT SHANTOK

A Norwich Girl Scout camp, which is for all registered Girl Scouts, is being held each Tuesday and Friday and has an enrollment of 45 at present. The girls leave the city for camp on the 9:15 a. m. trolley and return at 5:15 p. m.

The camp is under the leadership of Miss Catherine Sullivan, who spent the month of June at Camp Edith Macey, New York, and who is assisted by the Misses Catherine Dutton and Marian Freeman, Mrs. Frank S. Grieve and Mrs. Frank Rinella. Those in charge of the camp are hoping that more of the girls will take advantage of the opportunities it offers.

Divorced After Willimantic Marriage

Mrs. Annette C. Riley of Hartford was granted a divorce on the grounds of adultery in a decision filed in superior court by Judge Allyn L. Brown, Wednesday at Hartford. Irene Daigneault was named co-respondent. Mrs. Riley was married in August, 1924, at Willimantic.

BOTH DRIVERS NEGLIGENT; NO DAMAGES AWARDED

Emelin J. Dufresne of Jewett City and the J. S. White company of Providence waged a drawn battle in the superior court when Dufresne sued the White company and the company made a counter-claim against the Jewett City man because of a collision between motor trucks on the Lisbon bridge.

Judge Allyn L. Brown, who heard trial of the case, has just rendered judgment in which he finds for the defendant on the complaint and for the plaintiff upon the counter-claim. He finds that negligence on the part of Dufresne, who was driving his own truck, and on the part of an employe who was driving the White company truck, precludes either plaintiff or defendant from getting any damages.

Dufresne sued for $2,000 and the White company's counter-claim was for $2,500.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Brown said:

This action arises from a collision upon the highway bridge connecting the town of Lisbon and Jewett City in the town of Griswold, between the plaintiff's Mack truck going toward Jewett City and the defendant's Reo truck proceeding in the opposite direction, on the forenoon of Feb. 28, 1929. Both trucks were considerably damaged by the impact. The plaintiff brings this action for property damage and the loss of use of his truck, and the defendant counter-claims for similar damage sustained by it. Each party claims that the negligence of the other's driver caused the accident.

The evidence has developed a conflict of testimony with relation to the location of the plaintiff's truck as it came onto the Lisbon end of the bridge and proceeded to the place of impact as indicated by its wheel marks, which is somewhat unusual as between two groups of apparently disinterested witnesses. Upon all the evidence, however, I am entirely satisfied that the plaintiff's driver through carelessness—engendered, perhaps, in part by inattention arising from oft-repeated operation over this particular highway and bridge, and in part by that easy confidence on the road which sometimes seems to arise almost subconsciously in the driver of a six-ton truck fortified with a further six-ton load—swung well over to his left in making the easy curve and so drove onto the bridge at about the center of the roadway. While he managed to get his truck pretty well back into his own side before the collision occurred, it is clear that his negligence was a proximate cause of the collision. The plaintiff, cannot, therefore, recover in this action.

It is further my conclusion that the defendant's driver, in view of the existing conditions, including the rather slippery surface of the roadway and the relative narrowness of the bridge, was negligent in proceeding across the bridge at the speed which he did and in failing to have his truck under proper control at the time. This negligence was also a proximate cause of the collision. The defendant therefore cannot recover upon its counter-claim.

Judgment may be entered for the defendant upon the complaint and for the plaintiff upon the counter-claim.

MAYOR ASKS G. & E. ABOUT APPLIANCE SALES

In a letter to the board of gas and electrical commissioners, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins has called attention to the fact that the annual report of the board has little to say about appliances, regarding the sale of which the mayor and the board were in spirited conflict about a year ago, and the mayor requests the board to inform him what the net financial result from the sale of appliances was in the past year and whether certain agreements as to the handling of appliance sales have been carried out.

According to John H. Powers, secretary of the board, an answer to the mayor's letter is to be made shortly.

July 14, 1930.

Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners,

Mr. John H. Powers, Sec.,

Norwich, Conn.

Gentlemen:

Kindly inform me whether or not the six proposals embraced in your letter to Alderman Gregson, chairman, under date of May 6, 1929, and the three matters voted by you on June 25, 1929, concerning the handling of appliances, have been put into effect.

What was the net financial result from the sale of appliances for the past fiscal year of your department?

In looking over your report for last year I find very little indeed pertaining to appliances, and I respectfully submit that the amount of business done by this branch, which is now, I assume, on its own footing, warrants treatment in your yearly report.

A prompt answer to the above questions will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

LEE R. ROBBINS, Mayor.

PRES. MORAN ADDRESSES RETIRING TELEPHONE MEN

Accompanying thumbnail sketches of employes of the Southern New England Telephone company who are retiring because of reaching the age of 65, President James T. Moran addresses a word of acknowledgment of their services and of good wishes in the current issue of the Telephone Bulletin.

The following are the sketches given of telephone men in eastern Connecticut who go on the retirement list through application of the age limit:

James T. Woods first worked for the A. T. & T. Co. from April 1, 1888 to February, 1889 and, again, from March, 1889 to September, 1889 and then became employed by the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. until November, 1890. He entered this company on December 6, 1890, as repairman in the maintenance department at Norwich. Successive dates of his employment are October 2, 1897, repairman in the construction department; July 9, 1906, assistant district foreman; May 2, 1910, district foreman of the plant department; October 30, 1911, head installer; August 4, 1913, district inspector; January 14, 1918, division equipment inspector of the eastern division; August 26, 1918, right of way man at New London; June 28, 1925, plant inspector at plant headquarters; August 17, 1926, right of way agent and, from April 11, 1927, until his retirement, he was joint line agent at Norwich.

William R. Balcom entered the company July 3, 1905, as canvasser in New Haven. He became contract agent at Norwich, May 2, 1910; salesman November 1, 1915; and salesman and collector on March 17, 1919. He was transferred to the same position at New London, April 4, 1921 and was appointed commercial agent January 3, 1922. Since May 28, 1923, until retirement he was commercial agent at Norwich.

M. D. Millard was engaged as construction foreman on August 14, 1900 and was appointed general construction foreman on May 1, 1905. He was transferred to Norwich as district plant chief on May 2, 1910 and later, November 6, 1912, was appointed district plant chief of the eastern district. On April 28, 1919, he was made district plant superintendent at New London and, on December 31, 1927 until he retired, was joint line agent at headquarters.

Edwin C. Ford was first employed as night operator in Waterbury on November 1, 1882 and on February 1, 1888, was made collector and repairman in the maintenance department. Successive dates of his employment show he was appointed exchange manager at New London, October 16, 1886; construction foreman at New Haven, April 1, 1900; reappointed exchange manager at New London on April 1, 1901. When he retired he was in the latter position.

George D. Johnson, on December 9, 1895, entered the company as local manager and repairman in the maintenance department at Stonington and Mystic. He was transferred to the commercial department as exchange manager on May 2, 1910 and to this title was added that of wire chief in the plant department, May 19, 1913. He held both positions on retirement.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENTS SHOW MARKED DECLINE

Grade crossing statistics of the New Haven railroad for the first six months of 1930 show an extraordinary and amazing reduction over the same period of last year both in the number of accidents and fatalities. During the first half of the current year only one grade crossing death occurred on the New Haven system, as compared with ten fatalities in the first six months of 1929. This accident took place in Massachusetts. No deaths resulted from accidents in Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York.

Grade crossing accidents of all kinds in the four states dropped from 79 in the first half of 1929 to 38 this year, while the number of persons injured in these mishaps was reduced from 66 to 24. Of the latter figure, 15 persons were only slightly injured while 33 of the injured persons were but slightly hurt in 1929.

All types of grade crossing accidents show a similar trend this year. Last year in the first six months, 54 motor cars were struck by trains on crossings as compared with a figure of 30 this year. In 1929, 16 autos ran into trains while there were only nine such accidents this year. Autos stalled or parked too close to the tracks numbered 33 last year and 12 this year.

These sweeping reductions in grade crossing accidents of all types are attributed by railroad officials to the prolonged whistling period of trains approaching crossings and to the influence on motorists of the general educational campaign which the railroad has conducted.

DETHRONED CHAMPION GOES HOME FOR REST AFTER BOUT WITH SINGER

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, July 18—(AP)—Sammy Mandell hit the trail for the west tonight, a tired, saddened youngster bereft of his lightweight championship and rather glad of it.

He is going back to Rockford, Ill., to rest and forget the nightmare in the Yankee stadium last night where a hobgoblin named Al Singer jumped upon him in less than a round and battered him to the floor. Mandell today still was trying to puzzle out the happenings in the ring.

"I'm sure making the weight didn't hurt me," he said as he sat in Madison Square Garden and groped for reasons for the surprising defeat. "But I felt dead. I had no pep or life and I couldn't seem to arouse myself. I was strong physically, though.

"I didn't know what happened in the first round. I never saw the first left hook that knocked me down and never felt any of the punches. I don't remember being on the floor at all.

"I'm going to rest and fight some at 138 pounds and decide whether I'll try the wellterweight division. Anyway I'm glad I'm rid of the title. I'll get along better fighting good tough fellows wherever and whenever I want to without worrying about championships and weight."

Sammy, a handsome youngster of 26 bore two distinct mementos of the Singer punches that knocked him down four times and out. His lower lip was gashed and two upper teeth were loosened by the first knockdown punch. He had no other cuts or bruises about the face.

Although the gate receipts were only $162,388.33, including taxes, a surprisingly low figure, and $129,668.36 minus government claims, the figures held little interest for the former champion. Mandell received a flat guarantee of $65,000 for his services, although his share in the gate was officially announced as 35 per cent, or $45,382.12. Singer received 15 per cent. Paid attendance was 27,742.

While the new champion spent the day at his home with his parents, the fight faithful were puzzled and suspicious over the situation that made Singer a 3 to 1 favorite going into the ring although most of the actual wagers reported were at odds of 8 to 5 on the challenger.

Mandell was indignant at rumors that he had waged most of his fight against Singer with his chin and the new champion's handlers pointed out that Singer, because of his popularity and following, always went into the ring a favorite despite the caliber of the opposition. They insisted that Singer was a 7 to 1 favorite the night he was knocked out in three rounds by Ignacio Fernandez, a featherweight.

Plans are in the making at the Garden for a title bout between Singer and Jackie Kid Berg, the busy little Englishman, here in September. Singer hopes to keep working steadily at his trade and is negotiating for two over-weight matches in the mid-west next month.

To add to Mandell's discomfort a process server caught him in the Garden this afternoon and handed him papers in a suit for $7,000 brought by Lasky Farb, Indianapolis promoter. The suit alleges that Mandell failed to go through with a fight several weeks ago in Indianapolis.

AMERICA GETS JUMP ON ITALY IN DAVIS CUP

AUTEUIL, France, July 18—(AP)—America won the opening match from Italy in the inter-zone Davis cup tennis final today and took two out of three sets of the second before it was called on account of darkness.

It was close work, however, that gave Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, a five-set victory over Georgio de Stefani, the ambidextrous Italian, and enabled the United States to take a one-up lead in this battle for the right to meet France in the challenge round.

The scores were 4-6, 7-9, 6-4, 8-6, 10-8, and the Texas giant-killer, conqueror of Henri Cochet at Wimbledon, was at least twice on the verge of defeat at the hands of Italy's No. 2 singles player. To take the final set and win, Allison had to come up from 1-5 in an amazing rally.

George Lott of Chicago lost his first set to Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, veteran of many Davis cup contests, 3-6, and had to play his best tennis to take the next two, 9-7 and 10-8.

At the end of the third set it was 8:30 p. m., and darkness was falling. Players and spectators had had enough and the officials called it a day. The entire program had been held up more than an hour by rain and wet courts and the Allison-De Stefani match had lasted fully three hours.

De Morpurgo and Lott will resume their match at 2 p. m. tomorrow and the doubles teams will clash in the third battle of the series.

SENATORS EVEN SERIES BY TROUNCING INDIANS

CLEVELAND, O., July 18—(AP)—The Senators evened the series with the Indians here today, making it two-all with a score of 8 to 6.

Mel Harder for Cleveland and Ad Liska for Washington started but neither could remain. Liska's mates staked him to a five-run lead in the first three innings, but the Indians drove him off the hill and finally tied the score against Lloyd Brown in the sixth.

The Senators immediately unknotted the count on doubles by Rice and West and added two more in the eighth when Porter paved the way by making a two-base muff of a fly. Pete Jablonowski was on the Cleveland mound when the game ended.

PROVIDENCE AND NEW HAVEN PROFS OUT OF E. L.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—(AP)—Organized baseball came to an end in New Haven today when the New Haven Profs of the Eastern league closed up shop because of financial difficulties.

George M. Weiss, owner, who informed a meeting of league officials in Allentown last night that he was withdrawing his team, wired Manager Gene Martin at noon today to call off the scheduled game with Providence.

He indicated that he was unable to pay the players their already overdue salaries and would not ask them to finish the series with the Rhode Island team, which also withdrew from the circuit last night.

The Profs have been playing to small crowds all season, but particularly so since they lost out to Allentown in the race for leadership in the first half of the split-season which ended two weeks ago.

Claude Davidson, former president of the New England Baseball league, took an option on the club for some Massachusets interests and for a time it was believed that an effort would be made to institute night baseball. A sharp slump in atendance, however, incurred further losses and Davidson announced that he would not exercise his option.

Five players this afternoon appealed directly to Commissioner Landis for his help in collecting 33 days back pay.

Some of the players are owned by Baltimore of the International league and by Washington of the American league and will undoubtedly be protected by those clubs. It was reported this afternoon that several others, acting as free agents, had signed with minor leagues for the remainder of the season.

NEVINS PITCHES ROYALS TO WIN OVER CITIZENS

Unlike the preceding games of the week, the affair at the campus last night was close and tightly played. The Royals, behind some nice pitching by Eddie Nevins, defeated the Polish Citizens 5 to 3 and as a result dragged the latter from the heels of the league-leading Thermos Bottlers into a tie for third place in the loop.

Nevins hurled a sweet game of ball but his work was not much better than that of Johnny Greene, the opposing moundsman. Greene allowed but five hits, one more than Nevins, and set a strikeout record for the season. In the seven innings of play he whiffed 21 and yielded but a single base on balls. Errors by his team mates, at critical moments, proved his undoing. The Cits made a total of four official misplays.

One of the errors, together with a single and a double, gave the Royals their first three runs in the opening frame. The winners counted again in the second and tallied their fifth counter in the sixth. The first Cit run came in the fourth and the remainder were counted in the following frame.

Not a single man, on either team, collected more than one hit, Eddie Hamil cracking out the only extra-base smash. Despite the fact that he made one bad slip, Eddie turned in another nice game afield. He had eight chances and missed one. The score:

CUBS ONE GAME BEHIND ROBINS, BLAKE TAMES THEM

BROOKLYN, July 18.—(AP)—"Sheriff" Fred Blake easily tamed the Robins today and the Chicago Cubs climbed to a place one full game and a few percentage points back of the Robins by winning the third contest of their "first place" series, 6 to 2.

Blake allowed only five hits and was deprived of a shutout by Del Bissonette's home run in the fifth after Herman had walked. Hack Wilson started the Cubs off by hitting his 25th circuit blow of the season off Jim Elliott in the second inning. Later Beck and English hit for the circuit.

Elliott and his successors, Ray Moss and Hollis Thurston, yielded 13 hits. Beck's homer came after Hartnett had tripled in the fourth and gave Chicago a 4-0 lead. The fifth Chicago run came in the sixth on two singles and Kiki Cuyler's 21st stolen base of the year while English's four-bagger brought the last tally.

ATHLETICS BOMBARD WHITE SOX WITH HOMERS, DOUBLES

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—The Athletics staggered three White Sox pitchers with four home runs, two doubles and seven bunched singles today and romped away with their third straight victory of the series, 15 to 1.

Jimmy Foxx led the Athletics' attack with two homers and a double which drove in six runs. His homers, the 24th and 25th of the season, came at successive times at bat in the third and fourth innings when the A's scored 11 runs.

Earnshaw gave the White Sox seven scattered blows.

KOENIG STARS AS TIGERS WIN FROM RED SOX

DETROIT, July 18.—(AP)—Fine baseball by Mark Koenig featured Detroit's 7 to 6 victory over the Boston Red Sox today.

In the eighth inning with Detroit holding a one-run lead, and Boston runners on first and second, Koenig leaped high to take Sweeney's liner, then snapped the ball to Gehringer to catch Durst off second. Gehringer relayed to Alexander, catching Miller off first and completing a triple play.

Koenig hit a home run into the right field bleachers with two on in the fourth inning. He also got two singles.

McManus for Detroit and Webb of Boston also hit homers. Sorrell started in the box for Detroit and got credit for the victory, although relieved by Hogsett.

HALLAHAN BLOWS UP IN 9TH AND NEW YORK WINS

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—A sensational five-run rally in the ninth inning today gave the Giants an 8 to 7 victory over St. Louis today and kept their home slate against the Cardinals clean.

"Wild Bill" Hallahan, held the New Yorkers in check until the final frame while Frankie Frisch's two home runs had given the Cards an early lead as they brought in five tallies. In the ninth Hallahan blew up and he yielded three hits and a walk before he was replaced by Grimes. The Giants pounded the newcomer for three more blows, Jackson's single sending Lindstrom home with the winning run.

GAYLWORTHY'S RACING DAYS END WITH BROKEN LEG

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 18.—(AP)—Getaway day at Recreation park was marred by an accident to Gaylworthy, champion trotter of the present season. He was entered in the handicap trot and while rounding the first turn broke a bone in his front leg, thereby ending his racing days.

Driver Harry Stokes said Gaylworthy was not interfered with in any way, but suddenly stopped trotting. Gaylworthy was sired by Guy Axworthy and is owned by W. M. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Miss Woerner won the handicap trot. Kinne Direct was winner of the Park American handicap for pacers. The Royal Lady captured the Great American pacing derby consolation and Aquitania the 2:12 trot.

Weather conditions were favorable for fast time.

Game called at 3:15.

Hamel and Flynn will officiate.

A large gathering of diamond enthusiasts are expected to journey to Martin field next Sunday afternoon to witness the second game of the inter-village series between the J. B. Martin and Army and Navy teams.

The service boys are pinning their hopes for this contest on Ray Connors, premier hurler of Providence college, who is considered by experts to be one of the leading pitchers in college circles this season. While pitching against the Providence Grays in an exhibition tilt in the earlier part of this year Connors let the Eastern leaguers down with 4 scattered hits; he also did some mighty fine relief work in the Providence college-Holy Cross game when he relieved Artie Quirk in the 7th inning and held the visitors scoreless for the remainder of the game.

The Army and Navy believes that if Connors can display the same brand of pitching next Sunday and hold the Velvetmakers in check, that they will experience but very little difficulty in hammering the offerings of the invincible Mr. Lindner to all corners of the lot, and even the series at one all.

The J. B. Martin, on the other hand, are not the least bit disturbed about their rival's "prize" hurler but rather the opposite have plenty of confidence that he won't go the limit. They seem to be well assured that Sir Walter will have plenty to say when it comes to handing out base hits, and are convinced that tomorrow's game will just add another victory to their unbroken string.

ELKS SLUG OUT EASY WIN OVER ITALIANS

In a listless seven inning contest at the Duwell field last evening in the Junior twilight league, the Elks slugged out a 22 to 1 victory over the Italian Young Men's club. This was a postponed game. The Elks, by virtue of their victory last night, managed to keep their slate clean and continue in a tie for first place with the Rotary. The Italians, on the other hand, have yet to win their initial contest.

Fuller, on the mound for the Elks, nearly duplicated his no-hit, no-run game of last week. For two innings he held the Italians hitless and scoreless and was nicked for his first hit in the third stanza when Hastings got a hit through first and second. Not a man on the Italian club reached third. Three hits were allowed by Fuller in his four innings, while no hits were secured off Hamill who finished the game for the Elks. Six strike-outs were credited to Fuller.

Five successful hits, then a fly-out and four more hits enabled the Elks in the first inning to score 10 runs. Fifteen men batted in the first inning for the Elks, and 11 hits were recorded, one of which was a double.

The Italians played listless ball and as a result had nine errors chalked against them.

In the first inning, Ulewicz and Dugas for the Elks each poled out two nice hits and scored twice, which is considered rather a remarkable feat.

KOP LOSES DECISION, LACY WINS AT WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, July 18—Vernon Cormier of Worcester gained the decision over Pete Lucci, of Clinton, Mass., in the main bout of the fifth of a series of open air shows staged here tonight by the St. Michael's K. of C., at which there was a large attendance. The fight, which was for eight rounds, was replete with slugging, the victor using a neat left to good advantage. The weights were Lucci 124; Cormier 125.

In the semi-final bout between Joe Russo of Westerly, weight 151, and Young Mangual of New London, weight 151, the former won the decision. In the second round and again in the fourth Russo pasted his opponent with hard smashes to the chin and body that rocked him somewhat.

Johnny Kop of Norwich lost the decision to Julio Rossi of Westerly in the other semi-final. The Norwich fighter inflicted a cut over Rossi's left eye in the first round, but did not exhibit his usual nice work, missing rights and lefts throughout.

The other Norwich boy, Snooks Lacy, fared better than Kop winning by a technical knockout in the third round of the four round affair, over Young Sebastian of Old Mystic. Sebastian failed to come out at the beginning of the fourth round. He had a bad cut on the mouth. Weights, Lacy 118; Sebastian 118.

Kid Matzo of Westerly won the decision over Young Carnera of Westerly and Young Rochette beat Tony Moretti of Westerly in the other two preliminaries. In the latter bout Moretti went down for the count of nine in the first round. This was a return match. Weights, Rochette 120, Moretti 117.

Commissioner Thomas Donohue of New London was among those present.

DUDLEY TAKES LEAD IN METROPOLITAN OPEN

ELMSFORD, N. Y., July 18—(AP)—Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., pro., was leading the field in the metropolitan open golf championship with 139 at the end of the first 36 holes of play today.

Dudley covered the Fairview Country club's course in 71 today and his total of 139 gave him the lead by one stroke over Jack Forrester of Oradell, N. J., Forrester, who took 71 yesterday, shot a fine 69 today to finish the first half of the championship with a total of 140 strokes. Tied at 141 were Tony Manero, of Elmford, pace-setter in the first round, Craig Wood of Bloomfield, who turned in a spectacular 68 today, and Horton Smith of Cragston, N. Y., who added a 72 to his 69 of yesterday.

Another stroke to the bad at 142 were Gene Sarazen, Mike Brady and Bill Mehlhorn, the latter shooting a 68 to get within striking distance of the leaders after his mediocre 74 of yesterday.

Leo Diegel, who needed 75 over the short course yesterday, clipped two strokes off that total today but still was far down on the list with 148.

Eagles Win

The Eagles defeated the Young Senators Thursday afternoon by a score of 9 to 2. T. Kumeiga pitched good ball and was never in danger. F. Pitras hit a home run for the winners.

BROWNS POUND YANKEE PITCHERS FOR 14 RUNS

ST. LOUIS, July 18.—(AP)—After seven straight defeats the Browns came very much to life today and assaulted four New York pitchers to score a 14 to 6 triumph. Sam Gray went the full game for St. Louis while Manager Shawkey called on Sherid, Johnson, Gomes and Holloway in a vain effort to check the Browns' 18-hit attack.

The Yankees had the benefit of Babe Ruth's 33rd home run and Lou Gehrig's 25th, along with 11 other blows, but they never were in the running as St. Louis started with four runs in the opening inning and did not stop scoring until the eighth. Melillo and Goslin clouted homers for St. Louis. Ruth, returning after a rest of several days, hit a homer, a triple and a double in five times up.

The victory put the Browns back into seventh place, a few points ahead of the Boston Red Sox, who lost to Detroit.

SHYMAS PLAY ST. JAMES CLUB TODAY

The Shymas will again show before the home fans this afternoon at Taftville at 3:15 when they cross bats with the St. James team of Danielson in what is expected to be a fast attraction. There is plenty of rivalry between these two teams and after much wrangling between the rival managers they finally agreed to play a series over the week-end. The Danielson manager in his letter to the local manager stated that his team, which is playing in the Danielson Twilight league, will take the measure of the local boys and stated that he was willing to play on the win or lose basis. He also stated that his players would like nothing better than to break the Shymas' record by winning both games over the week-end. He will send the following men to the plate: Peters, 2b; Slowik, ss; Dasioli, 1b; Pojacki, rf; Szafranski, cf; Gladu, 3b; Sorquit, lf; Cypryna, c, while the pitching will be done by Withey, who is considered the best pitcher around Danielson and feels sure that he will turn back the locals in the first game of the series.

The Shymas have been hard at practice during the past week and last night they declared that they were fit for the best game of the season and are confident that St. James will return to Danielson on the short end of the score. The Shymas will again have their regular lineup on the field. These boys have established one of the best records ever made by an amateur team representing the village, being defeated but twice in 18 games. They will take the field in the following order: Ulewicz, rated as one of the best infielders ever turned out in the village, 3b; Bunk, who has been leading the team in hitting, 2b; Wilke will be at first; N. Lemieux, who is leading the Thermos team in the City league, will be at short; J. Raymond, cf; Babe Lemieux, lf; Burelle, who has just struck his hitting stride, will catch; Benoit, rf. The pitcher will be selected from Dudek, Raymond and Faucher. These boys constitute the best pitching staff of any amateur team in the state, bar none.

Sunday these two teams clash at Danielson in the second game of the series. Szafranski will pitch and Cypryna will catch for Danielson, while Faucher will probably toe the slab with Burelle on the receiving end for the locals.

DOUBLE CROSS

WALTER MARQUISS

MONEY AND THE GIRL HE LOVED—BOTH WERE AT STAKE WHEN K. O. JOE LESTER STEPPED INTO THE PRIZE RING; AND HERE'S HOW HE WON BOTH IN A FIGHT SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN "FIXED"

BEING a reasonably fair-minded maiden, Ruth Alvord conceded to Joe Lester the right to earn his living in the prize ring if he wished. Also, she maintained it as her own prerogative to detest prizefighters. The only thing to mar her side of this live-and-let-live tenet was the fact that love, like chips, often falls where it may.

At the time Ruth fell in love with Joe he had revealed no predilection toward turning men's noses into blobs and men's bodies into monetary corpses. He had seemed to be a clean-minded young hotel clerk, with every likelihood of becoming a nice, steady worker who would make a good husband and be kind to the children. When he came out in his true colors, intent on mauling other bruisers, it had been too late to put the brakes on the habit of love, but marrying him was something else again.

"How do you think I'd feel," she demanded of Joe, "if my husband came home some time with a cauliflower ear?"

Not knowing the answer to this riddle, Joe made unhappy noises in his throat.

"I'd feel terrible, that's how I'd feel," Ruth declared. "But that's only one reason why I'd never marry a pugilist."

He refrained from asking an inventory of the remaining motives. By this time Joe knew them all by heart, and the biggest one seemed measurably less potent than his smallest reason for wanting to marry Ruth.

It would be difficult, indeed, to imagine Ruth as a consort of cauliflower ears. She was only slightly less lovely than Joe thought she was, and to look into her big brown eyes was to discount largely the time-honored parallel between the depth of beauty and the epidermis. The one quality, in the eyes of Joe, that caused Ruth to stop just short of perfection was her distaste for boxfighters.

"What do you suppose I'd do if I was to give up fighting?" It was the eleventh time he had put the question just that way.

"If I were a big, strong, good-looking man," she retorted, "I'd certainly be ashamed to admit I couldn't make an honest living—"

"I suppose," he interrupted, "you think you don't have to have brains to be a good boxer. I notice your dad don't think that way."

"I can't help what my father thinks." Tightened lips betrayed her opinion of Mortimer Alvord's relish for men who made big brutes of themselves. "And, anyway, he didn't make his money out of prizefighting."

THIS was quite true. The Alvord fortune had developed from the operation of a chain of fourteen summer-resort hotels. Mortimer was a busy man, but never too occupied to gratify his appetite for boxing matches, which he called exhibitions of the manly art. He fancied himself as a clever judge of boxers and never was reluctant to give his judgment monetary support of respectable proportions. Among men who liked to bet, Mortimer was known as something of a plunger with an uncanny run of luck.

These facts Joe examined as they trailed through his mind, but there didn't seem to be anything in them to clinch an argument that a girl ought to go barging out of her happy home to take up a life's vocation of frying pancakes and pork chops for a prospective middleweight champion.

"You can talk all you want to," Joe said grumpily, "but I tell you a good, brainy boxer can make more money than—"

"I don't care," Ruth returned, with elevated chin.

Joe twitched.

"I reckon that means me," he grumbled. And for the eleventh time he got up and went away in a buff, wondering what it was that made him stay in love with Ruth Alvord, and yet realizing, heaven help him, that he was more incurably in love with her than ever.

He stamped into Ted Murphy's gymnasium and vented about 33 per cent of his spite on an innocent punching bag.

In the midst of this ritual he was interrupted by another of his major woes, personified by Tony Orange, a handsome ex-vaudeville trouper with a terrible crush on himself, whose sartorial beauty would only be insulted by any adjective less adequate than swell-elegant. Tony possessed two gold teeth, a pair of spats and a contract to manage Joe Lester, boxer; all of which Joe detested almost as earnestly as he hated the man's internal organs.

"How's the old biceps, kid?" Tony greeted him. Joe replied, peevishly, that the muscles in question were O. K.

"Got a fight for you," Orange added, "week from Saturday night."

"Who with?"

"K. O. Durkin."

Joe whaled the punching bag.

"Say, ain't I ever going to fight anybody but palookas?"

Tony spread out his hand, palm downward.

"Listen, kid, we'll make some jack out of this scrap, see. Give you a chance to pay me back part of what you owe me."

Now, Joe was in the van of those ready to admit that being in debt to Orange was an illogical reason for hating him. Indeed, there had been a moment when Joe was grateful, but that was before he began to suspect that Tony regarded the debt as an investment in dishonest potentialities.

It was the debt to Orange that kept Joe bound to the ring, which was growing obnoxious for the ample reason that Ruth Alvord disliked it. Cursed with some misbegotten idea that men were morally bound to pay their debts, Joe knew how tough a job it would be to repay Tony out of $25 a week, the highest figure he ever had been offered as a regular wage.

Like a bit of bad news, Tony had bobbed up at a moment when Joe was happy, on an evening when he engaged in an amateur boxing bout in one of Mortimer Alvord's hotels. With more plausibility than proof, Tony had delivered himself of a long sales talk in which Joe figured heroically as the next middleweight champion of the world. What few protests Joe offered were shouted down, and presently, with Tony paying all expenses, Joe was in New York, engaged in a career of pushing over set-ups and quarreling with Ruth Alvord.

Within a month Joe had longed to return to clerking, but whenever he gave articulate sound to desire, Tony was right on deck with an impassioned reminder of the something which Joe owed to his benefactor. This something owed developed an amazing capacity for growth, and while he could not recall having dined on caviar and champagne, Joe had just heard from Tony that the total now footed up a few-odd dollars in excess of three grand.

To be sure, as Tony pointed out, one good fight would pull him out of the red, and then if he was boob enough to want to he could marry the girl. The hitch in this argument was Tony's dereliction in the matter of arranging the one good fight. He always smelled big money just ahead, kept talking about a shot at the champ, but it never led to anything more than a few preliminary bouts with such pushovers as K. O. Durkin.

"SAY, how do you dope it out I'm ever going to figure in important money if you keep on matching me with nothing but palookas?" Joe demanded.

"Keep your shirt on, kid," said Tony. "They's big money in this scrap if it pans out th' way I got it doped, see?"

"Yeah? How much?"

"You leave it to me," Tony advised.

At the moment it occurred to Joe that he had been leaving it to Tony with indifferent result, and he slammed the punching bag with a whole-souled wish that it was Tony's head. Feet planted squarely, fists tight, he faced the manager.

"Look here," he growled, "there'd better be money in this fight. It's going to be your last chance to get back your three grand. I'm sick and tired of being honest when it don't get me nowhere."

Tony may have entertained a thought of arguing the point. If he did, he abandoned it when Joe barked:

"You heard me! And if you ever try to collect, you'll get a bust in the jaw!"

"Oh, that's all right, Joe," Tony said mildly, backing up. "You and me's pals, ain't we? What's th' good o' gettin' sore about it, huh?"

"Well, you heard me," Joe repeated.

In the evening Joe called on Ruth. He found her with her father in the living room of their apartment. Ruth, beautiful as ever, looked as she usually did, expectant, as if waiting for Joe to blurt out the news that he was ready at last to become a peace-loving citizen. Mortimer Alvord got up to shake hands and made more history by exclaiming:

"Well well, I see you've been matched for another fight, eh?"

"Yeah," Joe answered uneasily, looking at Ruth. He could see that her eyes contained a glint that did not betoken anything to make him feel with joy, and he needed no one to tell him what it meant. So he blinked, like a man looking at the sun, and tried to grin at her. She got out of her chair.

"So you're going to fight again, are you?" she remarked ominously.

"Yeah," Joe answered with an uncomfortable laugh. "You see, my manager figures we'll make some money out of this fight, and then—"

None too good an orator in any case, such utter want of encouragement as he now received caused Joe's voice to fade. He gulped and began to feel a slight rise of temperature under his collar, which probably was a manifestation of a human temper.

"It's perfectly all right with me," the girl pronounced, giving deliberate freedom to her spirit of tolerance, "if you want to go on making a disgusting exhibition of yourself. But if you insist on being a common prizefighter, you can just stay away from here!"

Mortimer blinked, looked from one to the other of the young people and scratched his chin. Joe, after the fashion of young lovers, got mad.

"All right. If that's the way you feel about it, I will!"

He marched out, shoulders back, head high. Bawl him out, right before her old man, would she? Huh! Who'd she think she was, anyway?

By the time he had walked a couple of blocks he began to suspect that he had made a fool of himself; before he had doubled the distance, he was sure he had. He turned around to go back, but after a little his steps dragged. He was beginning to realize that he was in the middle of a predicament. If he got out of the ring, he couldn't hope to earn money to support a wife. If he didn't get out of the ring, she wouldn't have him, no matter how much money he made. Whatever he did, he'd be a lot better off if he went and jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge.

Of course, there was no way for Joe to find out that Ruth, as soon as he had stormed out, rubbed the point of her nose against her father's blue-serge vest and cried. Being several blocks away, he couldn't hear her informing Mortimer Alvord, between sniffs, that her heart was simply breaking.

"I love him—. I just can't help it—even if he is a common, disgusting prizefighter and I despise prizefighters!"

ANOTHER thing Joe never knew was that Mortimer, arms about Ruth, squinted through foggy eyes at the ceiling, said, "H'm-m!" and blew his nose, and again said "H'm-m!" as if it meant something.

* * *

The next day Joe began training for the fight with K. O. Durkin. Life being what it was, for no reason, Joe didn't care a whoop whether he annihilated K. O. Durkin or if Durkin knocked the daylights out of him.

On the morning of the fight Tony Orange came breezing into Joe's room, looking more satorially splendid than ever in a reddish-brown suit with purple stripes and a shirt designed by the draftsman of an awning factory.

"How's the old biceps, kid?" he inquired.

"Who wants to know?" Joe snapped, not bothering to rise from the bed, where he had been sitting to read the morning's sport pages.

"Notice the odds?" Tony asked, with a queer glance at the newspaper.

"Yeah. Six to one on me. And all the newspaper boys asking why I've been matched with a palooka like Durkin—when everybody knows I'll break him in two."

Tony looked at his cream-colored gloves.

"That's a funny thing," he said, "because you ain't."

"Huh?"

"Yeah. You ain't gonna break 'im in two, see."

"Say," Joe yelped, "speak English, will you?"

"Sure," Tony agreed cheerfully. "I told you we was gonna make some jack out of this scrap, didn't I?"

"Well?"

"Got a surprise for you," the manager announced. He went to the door, opened it and beckoned. A stocky, prosperous-looking man came in, singing out:

"Hello there, Joe."

Joe got off the bed, blinking, and shook hands with Mortimer Alvord. Ruth's father sat down in a chair which creaked under his weight and Joe sagged back to his reclining position on the bed.

MORTIMER fished in his vest pocket with thumb and forefinger, bringing forth a folded oblong of paper. Smoothing it out, he leaned over and placed it upon Joe's knee. Blinking, Joe looked at the slip and at Mortimer.

"What's this?" he asked blankly.

"It's a check, you sap," Tony answered.

"Yeah, I see it's a check; What's it for?"

In reply, Alvord spoke suavely:

"You and I will go together and cash that check—after the fight." He reached over, retrieved the paper slip, folded it and replaced it in his pocket.

"Five grand, Kid!" Tony cried, eyes glinting.

"You mean that five thousand bucks is for me?"

"Well—" Mortimer shrugged. "It sort of depends on how this fight comes out."

Joe batted his eyes.

"Oh, yeah?" he said.

"The odds are six to one, you know," Alvord remarked suggestively.

"You sort of figure you can get me to throw this fight, huh?"

"I told you we'd make some jack out o' this scrap, kid," said Tony.

"Oh, yeah?" said Joe.

Mortimer Alvord got heavily on his feet and went to the door.

"See you tomorrow Joe," he remarked cheerfully. He went out and Tony followed him, leaving Joe staring at the dingy window across the room.

So that was why old Alvord was lucky with his bets! Fixing fights. Huh! Mortimer seemed awful darned certain he was going to throw this fight! Huh!

It was a half hour or so later when a shrill voice called up the stairs:

"Hey, Mr. Lester, you're wanted on the telephone!"

Joe went slowly down the steps and took up the receiver. His pulse quickened when he heard Ruth's voice over the wire.

"Is that you, Joe?"

"Yeah."

"Listen, Joe. Has daddy been to see you yet?"

"Yeah, he's been here."

"Oh! Did he tell you about his proposition?"

"Yeah."

"Joe! What did you say?"

"Nothin'," said Joe.

"Oh!" There was something very breathless about the girl's voice as it came over the wire. "Joe! What are going to do about it?"

"I don't know," he growled. "I haven't decided yet."

There was a moment's pause, and then:

"Listen—if you haven't made up your mind because of me—well, I wish you would, Joe. Because if you do, I'll—well, I mean everything might be different between you and me! Because—Joe—I'd love to live at Saranac Lake!"

"Oh," said Joe, feeling rather as if some one had shoved him off the Graf Zeppelin without a parachute. When he hung up the receiver, he stared at the instrument incredulously, as though it had viciously come to life and chewed a piece out of his ear. After a while he went back up the stairs and sat on the bed. Huh! So that was the dame who'd been begging him to quit fighting, so he could be honest!

At 9 o'clock Joe was in his dressing room, ready for his fight with K. O. Durkin. If the district attorney had so much as suspected what was going on in his mind, Joe Lester would have been locked up in the Tombs as a safeguard against a possible massacre in Madison Square Garden.

He twitched his shoulders and scowled, and then got on his feet and paced the room. He threw things and kicked the furniture, but that failed to relieve his feelings very much.

Tony Orange came stealthily in. Joe felt his shoulder rise at least three inches.

"Say, kid," Tony whispered, "I got down $5,000 on K. O.! That'll make thirty grand at 6 to 1——"

"Oh, yeah?" the boxer snarled.

Tony's eyes widened, and he put up his hands. But Joe's bare knuckles came across in a short, quick jab that landed with a loud smack just under Tony's handsome nose. Orange went backward into a corner, dropped heavily, and slept soundly, if not peacefully.

For an instant Joe glowered at him, then stalked out of the room, reflecting that one good knockout helped a little, but that there should be several more.

In the center of the ring, while the referee was droning instruction, K. O. Durkin suddenly winked. Joe's fist tightened, and he wondered what it felt like when the current was turned on in the electric chair. He strode to his corner, threw off his purple velvet bathrobe and stamped his feet in the resin box, while one of his seconds laced the gloves on his hands.

WITH fists on the ropes, Joe glowered out across the circle of light which bathed a dozen rows of ringside seats. His lithe body, gleamed like ivory in the white glare. As if in the fare distance he heard the bark of the announcer, the low buzz from the row of radio reporters just below him, the calls and rumblings of the crowd. Then his eyes rested on a face, a dozen feet away. He stiffened, and his teeth came together with a click that almost shook his head. The gong sounded and Joe whirled to the center of the ring, a new thought roaring in his brain.

Ruth! So she was here! Not content with begging him to help her old man make a pile of money, she had to come sneaking around to watch him wallow in his own disgrace. And she pretended to despise prizefighting!

Wham!

His gloved fist caught K. O. Durkin just below the right eye, snapping his head back until it seemed amazing that it didn't fly from his shoulders. Durkin fell into a clinch and whined:

"Say, youse don't have t' hit so hard!"

"Get away from me!" Joe hissed. "If you think this fight's fixed for you, you guessed wrong! I'm going to slaughter you, you big palooka!"

He threw his opponent away from him and saw terror leap up in the man's eyes. Durkin's Adam's apple bobbed up and down. Joe wanted to squeeze it. K. O. backed away, while Joe advanced.

So she'd turn him into a yellow, crawling louse, would she, just for the sake of a measly flock of dollars! Huh! That was the skirt who wanted him to be fine and honest and respectable! She'd love to live up at Saranac Lake, would she?

Smash!

It would have required a much hardier jaw than K. O. Durkin's to have withstood that long, straight right, with all of Joe's piled-up venom behind it. When K. O. hit the floor he didn't even wiggle. The fight was eighteen seconds old—and over.

Joe stalked to his corner while the voice of the referee barked off the toll of seconds and the crowd yelled and stamped on the floor. He stood glowering down into the flushed face of Ruth Alvord.

Some one touched him on the arm. Joe whirled, snarling:

"You get out of here!"

But it was only the referee, who had come over to lift Joe's right hand high in the air. A minute later Joe was shouldering his way toward the dressing rooms. Some of the men he passed thought they had been rubbed by an enormous ball of sandpaper.

Inside his room Joe peeled off his gloves, but made no move to dress. Orange evidently had revived, for he was gone from the corner.

Some one fumbled at the doorknob. Joe stood with head thrust forward, all set to spring upon the intruder and commit the third knockout of the evening. His jaw fell, his eyes bulged out when he saw who was coming through the door. It was Ruth.

"Oh, Joe!" she cried.

Well, one couldn't sock a girl. Joe growled:

"Well, what do you want?"

"Oh, Joe," she said again, and he saw that her eyes were glowing with some new kind of life. "Joe, have you decided?"

If Joe had been in a less unreasonable state of mind, doubtless he'd have noticed that her question was out of plumb with the day's events. He grunted, quite loudly.

"If I have, it looks like it didn't do your old man much good, don't it?"

Now it was Ruth who batted her eyes and said, "Huh?

"I knocked 'im out, didn't I? In the first round. Get that? First round! That's what I think of your old man's proposition!"

If Ruth had believed that Joe had gone ga-ga, she would have looked precisely as she looked right then.

"Why, Joe!" she exclaimed

"Saranac Lake, huh? I wouldn't ask you to marry me now if you was the last skirt on earth! It's dames like you that make the prize ring the dirty racket it is. Trying to get an honest fighter to throw a scrap! If you think——"

"Mr. Lester," she said crisply, "I haven't the faintest idea what you're talking about! And what's more, I don't care to know!"

The moment she had darted through the door, Joe's anger drained out of him. He blinked. Say! She didn't act like a jane who had expected him to throw a fight. Why, say!

"Ruth!" He yelled her name in the voice of a man suddenly poked in the solar plexis. He ran to the door and there collided with the heavy form of Mortimer Alvord coming in.

Before Joe could compose himself to remember that this man was the cause of all his grief, Alvord had Joe's right hand and was pumping it up and down.

"Good boy!" he boomed. "I knew you'd come through!"

"Huh?" said Joe, precisely as if he had received still another wallop in the mid-section.

"Listen, you vest-pocket edition of Jack Dempsey! I need a manager for my Saranac Lake hotel. And I'm giving the job to you!"

"Huh?" said Joe. He wanted to ask Alvord about that bad dream he'd been having, about somebody throwing a fight, but he couldn't organize his brain cells. "Huh?" he said.

"And say!" Mortimer thumped him on the shoulder. "You don't think I want a son-in-law who's not a square shooter, do you? I just thought I'd try you out and see if you could stand up against temptation——"

Joe dropped in a chair, his jaw hanging loosely.

"Good gosh!" he gasped.

Mortimer Alvord looked concerned.

"What's the matter, kid?"

"I just told Ruth—told Ruth I wouldn't marry her if she was the last dame on earth!"

"You what?" howled the owner of fourteen hotels.

"So that's what she meant when she said she'd love to live at Saranac Lake!"

"Say," Alvord boomed, "what's the matter with you?"

While Alvord gaped after him, Joe dashed through the door, the tail of his purple dressing gown streaming out straight behind him.

He leaped into a taxicab in front of the Garden and all but wept the address of the Alvord apartment in Park avenue. Going up in the elevator, he hadn't the slightest knowledge that the two other passengers, a man and a woman, stared at his bare legs in shocked wonder and considered the advisability of turning in an alarm to the observation ward of Bellevue.

HE RANG the bell as if he would push his finger right through the wall, and when Ruth herself opened the door, he thrust himself through it against her effort to slam it in his face.

"I'll call the police!" she threatened, and at the moment she meant it. Ruth was even more angry than Joe had been fifteen minutes earlier.

"You won't, either," he said. "You call up a minister if you want to call somebody. We're going to get married and go up to Saranac Lake and—and—and——." The statement thus far seemed to have filled all requirements, so Joe's mind quit working about there, giving Ruth's voice a chance.

"I wouldn't marry you if you were the only man on earth!" she proclaimed as best she could when two masculine arms were squeezing the breath out of her.

"Please listen," Joe begged. "I ain't the only man on earth, and besides—"

"I won't listen! I'll scream!" said Ruth.

Just then Mortimer Alvord came in and boomed, "Here, what's all this?"

Ruth ran to him.

"Daddie, make him go 'way!"

"What for?" asked her father.

"I don't know." She put her face against her father's overcoat and cried a little. "I hate him. He said he wouldn't marry me if—oh—if——."

Mortimer Alvord looked at Joe.

"Did you say that?"

"Yeah," Joe answered. "Er—that is, I——"

"I hate him!" Ruth iterated, stamping her foot.

Being a moderately sagacious old duck, Mortimer had guessed with fair accuracy what had happened. He chuckled a little and advised:

"Don't be foolish." Then in a few words, spoken with the terseness of an owner of fourteen hotels, he outlined the events that led up to Joe's ungentlemanly declaration. It should have smoothed away all of Ruth's anger, but perhaps that was too much to expect on such short notice, considering that she had been, if only momentarily, a woman scorned. Yet she did make a partial concession.

"Well, I don't exactly hate him, but——"

Mortimer Alvord pushed his daughter away from him, so that she found herself again clasped in the arms of Joe Lester. And then, with a violent start, Mortimer stood back, giving the newly endowed manager of his Saranac hotel a glowering and disapproving survey.

"We'll get married in the morning and beat it right away for——"

"No, we won't," said Ruth.

"We will, too," Joe contradicted her.

Then Ruth had a most perverse desire to giggle. It bubbled up inside of her and she couldn't resist it. It ruined her obstinacy. She giggled and said:

"Well——"

And she didn't object when Joe Lester, ex-boxer, kissed her.

The voice of Mortimer Alvord boomed:

"Look here, young man, if you're going to get married around here, you'd better go somewhere and put on some clothes!"

UNDER PROFESSIONAL AUSPICES THE STOCK MARKET WAS STRONG YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Stock market bears got another dose of bull medicine today. Just when the list seemed about to oblige the prophets of reaction, operators for the advance administered a strong tonic of buying orders, stimulating many pool favorites to the best levels of the recovery.

The market seemed to be completely under professional auspices, and it was obvious that holders of the long position wished to keep bullish sentiment simmering, if not boiling, for the week-end. Although some of the recently active issues were dropped, other leaders, particularly U. S. Steel, were quickly forthcoming and advances of 1 to 4 points on the day were numerous. However, the fact that the price index of 90 stocks rose only 1.4 points testied to the selectivity of the trading.

Much of the rise was accomplished in the last hour. Up to then, some of the pivotal shares, including American Can and American Telephone, had been reactionary and the bear faction lost some of its caution. The weakness of Johns Manville, Vanadium and Worthington Pump, which had been active on the advance, encouraged short selling, but the tendency toward reaction proved to be a costly decoy. The strong support thrown into the market in the late dealings induced covering and the shorts found prices rising rapidly.

Copper stocks rallied in the face of a reduction in the price of the metal to the pre-war level of 11 cents. There was apparently some tendency to believe that this represented the bottom, although it was recalled sentiment had followed a similar course on earlier cuts. Anyway, the shorts covered, sending Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco and Calumet and Arizona up 1 to 2 points.

Radio and Westinghouse were strong, rallying more than 2 points each. Buying in a few of the rails brought out large advances. Atlantic Coast Line advanced 8 points, Delaware & Hudson 6, Chesapeake & Ohio and Missouri Pacific 2, and Wabash more than 3. The move in the latter was based on the Baltimore & Ohio acceptance of the plan for five eastern trunk lines, with Wabash heading the fifth system.

Loew's led the amusements, rallying more than 2. General Electric, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas, Houston Oil, Republic Steel, American & Foregin Power, International Telephone and Standard Gas and Electric Improved 1 to 2. Coca Cola's advance exceeded 4 points. J. I. Case made an extreme rise of 18, closing about 3 below the top.

The tendency to shift pool operations to new stocks resulted in moderate net declines in American Can, Johns Manville, Worthington Pump, Vanadium and Standard Oil of New Jersey. American Telephone was heavy but recovered its loss, closing unchanged.

Speculative commodities profited by weather news. Wheat rose 1 1-2 cents and corn from 1 1-4 to 2 1-4, while cotton closed $1 to $1.50 a bale higher.

Dun's weekly business review said that in the absence of a definite recovery "there is the encouraging aspect of a more hopeful feeling in several directions, and it is believed that the increased disposition to recognize the actual conditions, without minimizing existing problems, will be ultimately helpful." The summary called attention to "the fact that business in steel is better in prospect than in actual achievement."

Bradstreet's reported a slight gain in retail distribution as the result of vacation demand and sales to clean up unsold stocks, and said that seasonal shutdowns or curtailments in industry were "apparently at their limit."

The easing tendencies of foreign currencies were featured by small declines in sterling cables and the French franc. The Canadian dollar extended its premium to about one-seventh of a cent.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Aggressive bullish operations in selected issues gave the entire curb market a firm tone today, and moderately stimulated trading, the turnover aggregating 638,200, a gain of more than 120,000 over yesterday.

Speculation for the rise converged upon a handful of shares in various classications, and was most conspicuously successful in Cities Service and stocks of subsidiary companies. Cities Service rose 2 1-2 points, which carried it to 31. The stock recently sold within a fraction of the year's low, close to 24. Activity in this issue accounted for about 10 per cent of the day's total turnover on this market.

The Indian Territory Oil issues, which are members of the Cities Service group, gained 4 points, and the Arkansas Natural Gas issues advanced more than a point to 11 1-2. The activity in this group was accompanied by announcement of the letting of contracts for the natural gas pipe line from Texas to Chicago which Cities Service is building in conjunction with several other companies.

The oils as a group were inclined to be sluggish. Humble and Vacuum lost a point, and Gulf sagged fractionally. Among the utilities, Electric Bond & Share closed up 1 5-8, and Niagara Hudson gave the best account of itself in several sessions, selling up nearly a point. There was an outburst of activity in Tampa Electric, long the subject of merger rumors. The stock advanced 4 5-8, and closed with a point of the best. Philadelphia Traction sagged 4 to the year's low at 40 in a few odd lot sales.

A strong feature in the holding and investment company group was Trans-America, which rallied about 2 points coincident to announcement of its application for listing on the stock exchange. United Founders, on the other hand, sold off about a point, getting close to the record low at 17 1-8. Corporation Securities corporation, of Chicago, an investment trust sponsored by the Insull interests, came to life with a gain of 1 5-8.

In the industrials and specialties, strength reappeared in Deere, which mounted 4 points. Glen Alden Coal mounted nearly 7, and Aluminum company more than 9 points. Great Lakes Dredge sold up 2 to a new high. Driver Harris, a recent spectacular riser, reacted 8.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—Broadening of export demand, together with indications that huge quantities of wheat are being fed to livestock, did much to lift wheat values today. Statements were current that if the rate of wheat feeding to livestock keeks up the season's total will reach 200,000,000 bushels. Export purchasing of North American wheat today was estimated as more than 1,000,000 bushels, making about 5,000,000 bushels so far this week.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 1-4a1 3-4c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-4a1 7-8c up, oats 1-2a1c advanced, and provisions varying from 20 decline to a rise of 15c.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in both in cereals and in hog values as well.

BOND MARKET

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Prime investment issues gave a good account of themselves in today's trading on the New York Stock exchange. Activity was enlivened by the rally in stock privilege issues which caught the bullish trend of stocks for which they are exchangeable. Despite the constructive trend of high grade investment issues and convertibles, the market closed irregularly higher.

An unexpected reactionary trend of U. S. governments caused a flurry of interest among the bond group. In a turnover which surpassed $1,200,000, both Liberty and Treasury issues suffered from realizing, and losses for the session ranged from more than a quarter to 1-8 of a point. U. S. governments are generally the first to reflect the change in the price of credit. Bond men were inclined to ascribe the reactionary trend to other influences, as the easy credit conditions have been little changed this week.

Treasury issues were the most sharply depressed, with the 4s, 4 1-4s, and 3 3-4s, of 1943-57 down about 1-3 of a point.

Selling of governments and the increased attention given to convertibles by buyers attracted by the strength of stocks to which this class of bonds is peculiarly sensitive, accounted in the main for the $2,000,000 increase in the volume of trading—the best of the week.

Nearly all of the popular convertible issues reflected the increased interest, although net gains were narrow with three exceptions. These were American Telephone 4 1-2s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, and Philadelphia, Reading Coal & Iron 6s, which rallied a point or more.

The fortunes of the best grade railroad obligations were enhanced by the day's trading, while others were lethargic. Canadian Pacific 4s and Rock Island general 4s reached the year's peak prices. Central of Georgia 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s and 5 1-2s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, were active and higher. Cuba Railroad 5s and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy 4s (Illinois division), both inactive bonds, were strong, the latter gaining 3 points. Boston & Maine 5s St. Paul 5s, Southern Railway 5s, were among the rails which were easier.

Utilities were firm to strong. Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s, up 1 point. Utilities Power & Light 5s and 5 1-2s, up 1 and 2 3-4 points, respectively, established new highs for the year. Good investment demand for several American Telephone issues and other high grade bonds in the group influenced higher prices.

The sale of Sinclair company's interest in Sinclair Pipe Line to Standard Oil Co. of Indiana was reflected in unusual activity in bonds of Sinclair companies. Sinclair Pipe 5s reached a new high and others were strong.

Foreign issues were generally firm.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Norwich theatre patrons will enjoy a rare treat at Warner's Broadway for the next four days. Due to a congested booking condition the local management was able to secure a pre-release showing on probably the biggest attraction of the year. Glorious

Greta Garbo in her latest all talking picture "Romance", is the attraction. The incomparable Garbo needs no press agent to tell Norwich fans of her ability. Norwich has always been partial to the never-to-be-forgotten star of "Anna Christie." Advance studio reports concerning her latest opus, in which she is supported by a superior cast headed by Lewis Stone, leads one to believe that her performance in "Romance" will far outshadow anything this magnetic star has done heretofore. A splendid surrounding program has been arranged for. It includes a new fable, Vitaphone acts, sound news and last but not least the inimitable Joe Frisco in his latest comedy.

Palace Theatre.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 18—"If I had been asked to direct a picture of which the scenes were laid in Tibet or Timbuctoo, I couldn't have been dealing with a locale more completely unknown to the average respectable American citizen than that of "Numbered Men,"" says Mervyn LeRoy, director of the new First National and Vitaphone picture.

For "Numbered Men" is a picture of prison life. Its scenes are laid in and around one of those great modern institutions whose inmates, entering their gates, vanish from the normal life of man as utterly as though they had been spirited away from the surface of our planet.

LeRoy, the youngest director in the business (he is only 28), found himself faced with the task of producing a picture about a state of life and a set of people of whom he knew practically nothing. LeRoy proceeded to visit two famous California prisons, San Quentin and Folsom. At San Quentin he lived the life of a convict for two weeks, absorbing the routine of their days and nights and learning to look at things more or less as they do.

Meanwhile, other preparations for the making of "Numbered Men" were afoot. A staff of research workers assembled data of all obtainable kinds on prison life—the layout of prisons, the ways in which men are handled and disciplined there, the methods of dealing with overcrowding, the honor system, and so on. Hundreds of photographs of prison interiors and exteriors were assembled before the sets used in the picture were built, and were used as a basis for the cells, corridors, walls, workrooms, recreation rooms, yards and other physical features shown in the sets.

"Numbered Men" is founded on a stage play, "Jailbreak," which was written by Dwight Taylor, son of Laurette Taylor. The leading roles are portrayed by Conrad Nagel, Bernice Claire, Raymond Hackett, Ralph Ince, Tully Marshall and a number of other well-known screen folk and is shown at the Palace tonight.

Christ Episcopal Church.

Friday of this week will be St. James the Apostle's day, when there will be service with holy communion at 9 a. m. at Christ Episcopal church.

Men employes of an incandescent lamp factory at Rio Janeiro get luncheons at the place for an average cost of 11 cents, while women's meals cost less than a dime. The factory is American owned and makes 80 per cent of the lamps used in Brazil.

WORTH WHILE

He doesn't care that I'm not rich
 Or that I'm poorly dressed.
That I'm a toiler in the ditch
 He hasn't even guessed
My faults that other people know
 He doesn't even see,
For every night, with eyes aglow,
 He toddles up to me.

Although I'm just a common man
 And ordinary clay,
His cheek to mine he's glad to rub
 Before I go away,
And every night when I return
 He's glad as he can be,
And, though but little I may earn,
 He toddles up to me.

To come to me he'd leave a king
 If one were sitting near,
Unto no millionaire he'd cling
 If only I'd appear.
And though but tattered rags are mine,
 When I get home to tea,
With eyes that fairly beam and shine,
 He toddles up to me.

And so I've reason to be glad
 And reason to rejoice.
It's worth the world to be a dad,
 To be a baby's choice.
There is no prize fame can bestow,
 No joy can ever be
So real as when, with eyes aglow,
 He toddles up to me.

HOW TO MARRY

When you get married don't marry a pet,
A jilt or a vixen or yet a coquette,
But marry a maid, that is, if you can,
More fit for the wife of a sensible man.

Look out for a girl that is healthy and young,
With more in her eye than you hear from her tongue.
And though she's freckled or burnt to a tan,
Yet she is the wife for a sensible man.

With riches will wretchedness often in life
So linked when your riches are got with a wife,
But marry and make all the riches you can,
Like a bold, independent and sensible man.

Look out for a girl who is sensible and kind,
And modest and silent, and tell her your mind,
If she's wise and bewitching she'll welcome the plan,
And soon be the wife of a sensible man.

Then cherish her excellence wisely and kind,
And be to small foibles indulgent and blind,
For so you make happy, if anything can,
The wife of a sober and sensible man.

A SMILE

To-day I frowned a little frown,
And soon it spread around the town
Till everyone that I did see
Was frowning back that frown to me!

To-day I smiled a little smile;
Away it flew from mile to mile
Till everyone that I did see
Was smiling back that smile to me!

And all day long I always found
That little smile awaiting round,
Till I'm as glad as I can be—
A smile's a gladsome thing you see!

PHLOX, FORGETMENOTS AND SCHIZANTHUS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Isn't it hot? But I suppose we should be thankful that we are not having such terribly hot weather as they have been having in the middle west.

We have had enough rain lately so this hot weather does not affect the flowers as much as it might. Have you noticed, Royanco, that the phlox drummondi is not affected by drought and heat to the extent that other annuals are? This alone, would make these gay flowers valuable for our gardens. Do you have the tall or the short growing varieties? For my purposes I like the dwarf much the best although I have tried and like both kinds. The dwarf is not as scraggly as the tall, blooms more freely and over a longer period of time. If the seed pods are clipped they will bloom until frost and it is an easier matter to find and cut the seeds of phlox than of some other plants. The stems are quite long enough to make bouquets but are rather stiff to use with other flowers so I usually put just a little green with it. There is such a wide variety of colors one may use them in pleasing contrasting effects. Have you tried the newer star phlox? I had just one last year but this year I have several raised from seed which Sister Rhody gave me. This is not as free a bloomer as the drummondi but the blooms are so odd that it is well worth raising. They are much like the others except that the petals are cut and fringed so that they look, with their markings, like tiny bright colored stars or snowflakes. To hear me ramble on about this phlox you might think that I had quantities of it this year but truth to tell, the seed didn't seem to germinate and the plants that did come up lacked vitality so I have only about a dozen in all and they are not particularly handsome! But I'm hoping for better luck with them next year. They shall always be in my list of standbys.

And Royanco, do you like the Chinese forgetmenots? I think they are a beautiful shade of blue and they can be used in tall bouquets where the common little blue ones would be utterly lost. One of the prettiest combinations of flowers I ever made was one of golden swallow gladiolus, the forgetmenots and white phlox. I think that you will find that the for-get-me-nots go to seed quickly and judging by the number of plants that came up this spring in my garden and over the wall, every self-sown seed must germinate. The seeds are in little prickly burs that cling to one's clothing like cockle burs. I dare say that this plant, so charming in our gardens, would be a pest if we were not very careful to keep it in bounds.

Did I tell you that I am trying the schizanthus or butterfly flowers for the first time this year? Thus far I have found them very satisfactory. The majority of the blooms are white or a very pale pink but I have some that are darker and one that is a purplish lavender. The flowers last for five or six days in the house. The plants are not very erect in growth and would not make a very effective narrow border but as a wide border or in a mass they make a white or light-colored mass that is pleasing with the gaudiness of the rest of the garden at this season. The name schizanthus means cut-petaled for each petal is fringed and cut and each bloom bears on it a splotch of deeper color—on some of the blooms it is pink and on other plants brown. Edna calls them monkey-faces!

If every member wrote once a month, Sumac? Goodness, here Sister Rhody and I have been writing every week and she had two letters in last week! What would happen if everyone did that? PERNICKETY.

A LITTLE VACATION

Dear Editor and Sisters: I have had a vacation at last. It did not last as long as I had planned, for I was sick and had to come home, but I enjoyed it and was glad of the chance to see relatives and the familiar scenes of my earlier life. The country was beautiful, laurel in full bloom and the rambler roses made a picture never to be forgotten. I had auto rides in all the towns around Leominster, and down toward Sterling, Mass. I went by a large duck farm. There were thousands of them, and I thought how much it must cost to raise so many. I raised ten one year but they ate so much I never tried any more. I went down by Camp Devens. They have some new buildings there. I was invited to go over the Mohawk trail but I decided it was a little too long a ride for me, so the party went without me and I went visiting in the town of my birth.

Once more I went to the oldest house in my native town, mostly furnished with antiques. One chair was brought from England in 1640 and is very substantial still. They have a kitchen fitted with everything that used to be in daily use. The house was built many years before the Revolution and some of the Hessian prisoners were housed there. Then I visited a cousin in East Princeton. He is an antique dealer and his house was furnished with antiques and he had a great collection of everything, but he buys and sells all the time.

Aries: I am glad you escaped injury and hope the lightning does not come so near again. I have been where it struck twice across the road, once a tree and I had two cows struck, and the other time an empty building.

Olga: You woke us up a little.

July 24—Picnic by Club No. 4 at vestry of Dayville Congregational church.

July 30—Picnic at home of Alfara in North Windham

ANOTHER JULY PICNIC

Dear members of the Social Corner: You are cordially invited to attend a picnic of club No 4 members to be held Thursday, July 24 in the vestry of the Dayville Congregational church.

The place is easy of access, being on the bus line and the yellow bow will be your guide.

It is hardly necessary to remind each one to bring the usual dishes to eat from and with as well as food for the tables; also please have a bit of contribution for the social hour.

The hostesses will be there to greet and welcome all so come and have a jolly good time. Coffee will be served with the dinner.

AMERICAN LOYALTY.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

Dear Sisters: My varnished floors get so much wear that they used to get scrubby looking. Now about once a week I put a little varnish on the worn spots and rub it dry just as you would furniture polish and they always look nice and clean.

While trying to think of some quick way to dry my hair in my home I thought of the following improvised hairdryer which was more successful than I had imagined it would be.

I used a small electric fan and placed it back of a lighted burner on the gas range, then sat in front of it and my hair was dry in a few minutes. It provided a warm breeze which is not as risky as the cool breeze from the electric fan alone. I take care to see that the flame is not blown out.

These recipes may interest someone:

Apricot-Banana Salad: On each plate arrange a bed of shredded lettuce, and on it place a layer of sliced ripe bananas, topped by the halves of a stewed apricot. Serve with whipped cream or boiled dressing.

Summer Salad: Take crisp leaves of lettuce, 12 slices of orange, 3 bananas, chopped walnuts. Cut bananas in four pieces, lengthwise. Lay the orange and bananas on the lettuce in some attractive form. Sprinkle over with chopped walnuts. Serve with French dressing.

Cream of Lettuce Soup: Two heads lettuce, cut fine, 4 cups chicken soup, 2 cups medium white sauce. Pick off decayed leaves and wash well. Put lettuce in a large kettle without water. Let it cook slowly, until some of the juice is drawn out, then boil until tender, about 15 minutes. Drain, chop and rub through sieve. Add the soup, heat to the boiling point and then add the white sauce. Season with salt and pepper. Serve in bouillon cups, garnished with whipped cream and a sprig of parsley. FRED'S WIFE.

A COOL DUST CAP.

Dear Social Corner Editor: From the looks of the Corner I see it is time I stopped being a slacker and wrote to help fill our page.

I am not much of a writer but I have discovered an economical way of making cool dust caps. You get an ordinary paper bag from your grocer, large enough to fit the head, roll it up neatly until it fits. This sort of cap will last during house-cleaning and saves the buying and washing of a cloth dust cap.

These recipes are good:

Asparagus Salad: One package lemon-flavored gelatin mixture, 1 3-4 cups boiling water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup diced celery, 1 cup diced cooked asparagus, 2 tablespoons chopped pimientos, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onions.

Pour boiling water over gelatin mixture. Stir until dissolved. Cool. Add other ingredients and pour into mold, rinsed out of cold water. Set in cold place. Unmold on lettuce and serve with salad dressing.

Eggs, Chilean Style: Two cups tomato pulp or canned tomatoes, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1 cup chipped dried beef, 1 dessertspoon grated onion, 2 tablespoons shredded sweet pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 eggs, 4 squares hot buttered toast, fresh cress.

Press tomatoes through a coarse sieve to remove seeds. Add cheese, dried beef finely chopped, onion, pepper and paprika. Cook over a slow fire until cheese is melted. Add butter and eggs slightly beaten. Stir until the eggs are barely set. Serve on toast and surround with water-cress. The tang of the cress is perfect with the cheese and egg combination.

ENJOYED BAY STATE'S PICNIC.

Dear Editor and Friends: The picnic of July 9th at the home of Bay State was a pleasant event, some of us going by bus, others by auto. All received a cordial welcome from the host and hostess and the use of the picnic ground was ours for the day. Exchanging greetings with friends, acquaintances and strangers, the picnic spirit of unity prevailed throughout the group of Social Corner visitors at the grounds. Many expressions of sympathy were heard for Aunty No. 1. As the dinner hour drew near appetizing odors permeated the air. Dr. Charles Lamb from Norwich Town led the singing followed by repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison. A bountiful dinner was served to which we did ample justice to various kinds of food. Through the courtesy of our host, Mr. Harvey, and the black eyed lady, after dinner treats were enjoyed. On moving away from the table we were soon in a standing group to be photographed and after that was over we strolled to the bluff where we found the younger set who had preceded us and were in the water of the river splashing around like ducks. The older group were contented with a comfortable seat in the shade surrounded by nature's summer grandeur and a little can of beans for amusement. But the tick of time was moving on and it reminded us of home so back to the bungalow we went and bidding Mr. and Mrs. Harvey goodbye we soon were speeding to the Rose of New England. As the dark clouds gathered we hoped the late picnickers would be sheltered from the electrical storm that soon broke forth with its heavy downpour of rain. Was unable to attend the picnic of Canterbury Bell, but hope to be present at some of the social gatherings later in the summer.

GUSTA (Club No. 8)

A FOURTH OF JULY PICNIC

Dear Readers of the Social Corner: I have finished reading this week's Social Corner page and was much disappointed in reading Ravena's letter of the plain fact that there will be no picnic. It does seem too bad because to so many, especially the children, it will mean a great disappointment.

The Fourth, I was invited to a community picnic and it reminded me of our Social Corner gatherings. Ninety-six were there, counting the infants. Everyone enjoyed the day. A large and most delicious clam chowder was served, followed by various kinds of sandwiches, salads, cakes, pies and coffee, with a surprise of generous slices of lucious watermelon.

The location was a shady quiet spot at Wyassup lake.

I met a Social Corner member there. Maybe more members were there but if they were I failed to recognize them. Apparently everyone was having a good time. The day was perfect. The water warm for those who wished to "dip" and four of us ladies took a "semi-dip." We went boating also. Some of the men played ball, others pitched quoits and a group that was blessed with the ability to "hike" and with courage to face maybe some wild animal or serpent started to walk around the lake and stop and explore the "bear's den." A few actually went down into that den. Just suppose they had found a sleepy old bear or maybe a rattler. Oh, my! Well, everything passed off lovely and soon the time came to think of our home duties and we bid our host and hostess goodbye, thanked them for their kindness and I will say that their generosity will never be forgotten.

PRAIRIE CHICKEN

MAKING OVER THINGS.

Dear Corner Friends: Have been wanting to write for our page for a long time but did not have the time to spend in writing—but today I've nothing to do so can write letters. Have enjoyed the letters each week, but am wondering where all the Plainfield Social Corner members are. Eveline Burr seems to be the only faithful one among us. Ma of G. G. when she lived in P— was faithful also. By the way I do hope she is entirely recovered from her recent illness and will soon be able to send one of her cheery letters to the Social Corner.

Eveline Burr: Thanks much for your letter in Saturday's Social Corner page. The book, The Next to Nothing House is one I have long wanted to read. Did not know it was in the library here in town. A friend who read it last winter told me about it but she had purchased the book to give some one as a Christmas gift, but now I can easily get it from Miss B. when I have time to devote to it.

Theoda: I hope you and the other sisters who had a birthday on the Fourth enjoyed the day as much as I did. For many years I had spent the day at home, but this year I had reached the age which when I was younger I never expected to be, so I just had to do something special which I did, and certainly had a happy birthday spent with those who are near and dear to me.

Lady Slipper: Am sure the tatted portiere is beautiful. Think you were brave as well as ambitious to undertake such a piece of work.

I am always interested in the letters from sisters who have made something useful "from little of nothing" as it were. I like to make over clothes and find that one can make many garments from what seemed of no use. I had a number of white petticoats and corset covers given to me of which I made slips. Cut band off of skirt, sewed corset covers on skirt and had a good slip for everyday wear. I made an apron from a linen skirt. Had two dresses which were shorter than I liked. Each a colored print trimmed with white. Each had a narrow belt which I ripped open then had a strip one inch wide. Then I sewed a strip of white broadcloth one inch wide each side of colored strip, cut the dress at the waistline, then set in the three inch piece between waist and skirt and when finished it looked better than one would think, and was long enough to suit me. I am glad the dresses are being worn a bit longer, for "to my way of thinking" very few women look well in dresses which do not cover the knees when sitting. The present style for afternoon dresses is just right I think and much more sensible for middle-aged and elderly women. The young girls can wear most any style but we older ones should "study our type" and dress to suit it.

ALFARA TO HAVE PICNIC JULY 30

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Yesterday I attended the picnic at Canterbury Bell's at Bean Hill, Norwich and had a good time and dinner. There were lovely shade trees to sit under, a good crowd and program, with singing and reading which ended with three cheers for the hostess.

Now, if it will not interfere with any one else's date I will have a picnic the 30th of July, rain or shine, for I have a large tent that we can use and would like to have them come from all of the clubs. Bring your dishes and something to eat. Come to Sunshine farm, about 2 miles out of Willimantic on the North Windham road. You will see the yellow bow and we all know what that means.

Windham Blue Bell: Will have some mashed potatoes if you come and hope a lot of others will come for we have plenty of room.

ALFARA.

CHATTY LETTER FROM GREEN HOLLOW.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I've heard it said a woman wound up is like a watch so let us hope the watches of our Corner keep ticking. Those who have a small patch of tomatoes will find a great help in putting the cut lawn grass around the plants. It keeps the weeds out and it keeps the tomatoes from laying in the soil and rotting, also are much cleaner and nicer.

I went to the circus in Danielson and it was a fine show. For the benefit of those who could not go will say the clowns were as good as usual and one was a wonder in horsemanship. No matter what the horse did he could not be thrown. Another wonder to me was a Mexican family doing wire stunts. One fellow defied gravity and slid down a long high wire on his head. Others did beautiful figure work on the trapeze. I had the pleasure of meeting Bay State and Artificial Flowers. Only disappointed in not seeing them later so as to have a few minutes talk. Also wish to let L. T. H. know we arrived home safely and so very glad to see Violet and family. Had a fine visit with them.

Now what is to become of the middle aged people? What are we up against? I'd like to know. The mills where they have worked over 30 years are laying them off. New help is called in on their work. When they go to other places they are told no one over 40 need apply. Now these men are tried and true, not fooling their time away like others that are being taken on. They have to live. Even if they have children working. They will soon be taking up their own homes and then who is to help pay their expenses. This situation looks serious to these people while many are trying to send their younger ones through high or a trade school to fit them for life work. Must these children give up hope of an education and make a poorer living?

We ran up to Camp Devens Sunday and saw the Y. D. in review. It was a fine sight and many thousands enjoyed it fully. It's a shame to see the old barracks falling down, burned and stoned. Now those buildings could be taken down and make homes for the boys or others would be glad to buy them, but to see the doors and windows so broken is a disgrace to our fellows who have called it home. GREEN HOLLOW.

ACTIVITIES OF BALSAM FIR.

Dear Friends of Social Corner: Just a few minutes to spare to chat with the dear ones. I think of you all so often and of the fast approaching time when the big picnic will be. Where, if Aunty No. 1 isn't able to have it at her home? I shall never forget the wonderful time I had with the 250 friends and members of the Social Corner five years ago. And yet it doesn't seem so long ago. There have been many changes since then. The gay season of 1930 is here in all its glory. Perhaps while I cannot chat on gardening, I can tell you something interesting.

Not long ago my pal was married. Just a home affair with just the near relatives, except yours truly who took the part as matron of honor. Nothing funny about that, I hear you say. Certainly not, but listen. The bride was dressed in navy blue. Yep, and then that was O.K. I was in white—yes and then some. The ring bearer in pink? Yes. The decorations were in pink and white, but that isn't all. That is the second time inside of 14 years that I have attended a bride and she wore blue, and the same minister, Rev. Charles Leighton Chronkite of Auburn, officiated, and in my own home town.

There was a private whist party with a box lunch at my home yesterday. There were two tables. I am an ardent admirer of white; rather play than eat. My friends were from Portland, Peaks Island, North Deering, Camden, Raymond and South Casco and Dry Mills, and a jolly good time was enjoyed.

There are many blueberries. They were on sale the Fourth of July and we sold all our peas the Fourth, but more are coming. We are having a very wet season. My friend from Camden was telling of being out after a shower and the ground was well sprinkled with tiny frogs.

I was sorry to read of Aunty No. 1's illness. Trust she is better by this time.

Pal: I don't know of anyone who is selling your kind of work. I have some on hand but haven't advertised it yet. I am finishing a spread for a bed made of tan pillow tops, with the names of different places thereon. It is set together with sage green satteen. There are Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Florida, New Hampshire for states and New Haven, Bridgeport, Lewiston, Boothbay, Providence, and Pawtucket for cities. I also have Stonington, should I want to use it, but that was sent me by a Social Corner sister years ago from that place so I shall keep it. I also have Boston, Plymouth, Hyannis, so I have some towards another.

Seems as though everybody ought to be well when we see so many cars on the go from all over the country. The Crystal Lake villa is booming and everybody is busy. The rooms are at the villa and the meals are to be served at the Crystal Lake tearoom. I sit on my veranda and watch the crowds go to the grove for recreation and bathing.

Brave: I trust you are enjoying your usual good health.

Theoda: I don't forget you. How do you do? If I wrote to all I would love to, I would do nothing else.

Diana: Pleased to get your card.

Adah B. R. L.: Many thanks. Your favor was gratefully received.

Killingly Bud: How is our sister who was so seriously ill? Much better I trust.

This letter may be rather long but there may be room for it in our wonderful Social Corner. Sincere wishes to all from BALSAM FIR.

FRIENDS

Dear Social Corner Folks: I must write a few lines as so many are away and can't keep the page full. Well, friend, is a word that means a great deal. Just think of how many friends you have and then in case of hardships, reverses, or many other things where are those friends gone. You find you only have two or three honest to goodness friends and the ones you least expected to stick by. When you have friends that don't deal in gossip and always carry some tale; they are the ones to amount to something in the end.

A wonderful lady, who was a minister's wife, said a few years ago when she was very feeble, if we would not allow ourselves to believe anything we hear and only half of what we see we would make less enemies. People would be better off. A very good idea to follow. She always said to give anybody the doubt unless we ourselves were sure of anything that occurred.

Well I have canned watermelon rind and it is good. Now I am looking for huckleberries.

I am longing to get a dip in the salt water before long as it makes me feel so good after. Some day, I hope E. L. M. can drive up to see me as I can't drive to see her. I have a small garden 16 by 16 or so and when hoeing I blistered one hand. After this I am going to wear a glove on that hand and see how that will do. Am busy and can't attend picnics very well this summer.

Calla Lily: You are always so thoughtful of others. Many thanks for your cheer to mother.

Necia: You surely are a dear.

Best wishes for all is my sentiment.

DEARIE.

LACE SHAWLS AND MOTTOES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I was very much interested in Sister Iola's letter regarding shawls, clouds and sunbonnets, for in my younger days, I shared in their usefulness. Particularly in reference to the shawls, I was reminded of the first black lace shawl that I ever saw. I remember so well my first Sunday school teacher and how she used to wear a light grey silk dress, in the summer time, with a black lace shawl, that was three cornered in shape. It was quite large, the long point in the back nearly reaching to the bottom of her skirt, while the front ends were tied or loosely folded over, making a soft drapery effect over the shoulders and arms. There was no possible warmth to these kind of shawls, but it only added so much extra in a hot day. It seemed to have been the fashion in those days, that the ladies must wear some kind of a wrap, all seasons of the year.

These black lace shawls must have been quite expensive, for they were not very common, for I recall only two other ladies beside my teacher who wore them, though there may have been several in the community where I lived at that time. These early Sunday school days and the teacher with the black lace shawl bring to my mind another rememberance with its pleasant impressions.

A little girl in my class presented to the primary department, a perforated paper motto, worked with pink worsted, the word "Love One Another," and in a nice pressed black walnut frame. It had been hung on the wall before school began and in front of us conspicuously, where we could all see it. The teacher called our attention to it, at the class hour, explaining that Milly had made it all herself, and had given it to the school for a present. Well, I thought that was a wonderful piece of work and wished I could do as much. However, this was the beginning of those famous mottos, that were so common afterward, and nearly every home was supplied.

I, too, learned to make them, and enjoyed it. We used to buy the stamped perforated white paper, about 27 inches long and eight inches wide, for ten cents, then get the worsted and work over the printed letters. There was always a large variety of "mottos" to select from. The fraternal emblems were very popular, such as "Friendship, Love and Truth," "Faith, Hope and Charity," also "Home, Sweet Home," "What is Home Without a Mother," "The Old Oaken Bucket" and many others that are familiar to us who remember them. Like many other things, they have had their day and gone by. Perhaps the attics may reveal some of these handiworks of our childhood days.

Best wishes to all the sick and shut-ins. May they enjoy the summer months with much good cheer.

JENNIE (Club 1).

HELP WANTED ABOUT PICKLES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: It is always a pleasure for me to read the Social Corner page every week and I especially enjoy reading the wonderful recipes the sisters always send in.

Now I know everybody is getting to work on the summer canning. I have only 48 jars canned this summer but hope to have a good winter's supply if possible. Now that it will soon be time to put up the supply of pickles I wish the sisters would each send in their favorite recipe. As my supply of jars is limited could any of you help me out with my pickle problem? I have a barrel that contained apple cider last year. Could I use it with success? I would like to put them up if possible like the sour pickles we purchase in the stores which always taste so good to the children. Please give advice if anyone has ever put pickles up in barrels. Also if some sisters put some up mixed with onions, cabbages, green tomatoes, cauliflower, peppers, etc. Please give me your advice. Can I put such things up as I gather them or am I obliged to fill the barrel all at one time?

Hope all the sick ones are improving with the good summer weather and best wishes to all.

CAMP LAFAYETTE.

RESIDUE LUNCHES

Dear Editor of Social Corner and Writers. Try my residue lunches and comment all you want to; I don't care.

One large boiled sweet potato, cut lengthwise, scoop out one half of center and each half fill with ground fat pork chop. Cut one half of red pepper into threads and place on top of meat with little salt. With spoon of meat fat and spoon of hot water baste at times while it bakes. With warm bran gems, tea, butter and dish of raspberries it is O. K. for me.

Cut a large cucumber lengthwise and remove seeds carefully with a teaspoon. Fill each half with fine cut mixed bacon, put slice of sweet potato on top of meat and put halves together with toothpicks. I use shredded pepper with this also.

Take some ripe tomatoes, cut off tops, remove some seeds and fill with old fashion stuffing, salt, small bits of bitter, baste with hot water and butter while baking, a very few drops at a time.

Had parboiled summer squash and cut off half inch slices and fried in salt pork fat for my dinner, and up and up hasty biscuit with dishes of blue berries. Cream of tartar and ice water sweetened is very cooling.

Try these from one of the first Corner writers, J. E. T.

Dear Social Corner: Here it is the middle of July and the summer most gone. But we can call it a comfortable summer; no extremes.

The Social Corner page has been empty for the past months. None of us can give any particular reason why. But the evidence is there before us every Saturday.

Aries: I wish it were possible to meet at the gatherings I am not well enough to go anywhere. Have not been well since last fall and the recent deaths of those near and dear have made me a physical wreck. Never expect to be well again, to meet with the Social Corner. My sympathy to all who are not well and are in deep trouble. PISCES.

GREETINGS FROM E. L. M.

Dear Social Corner members: It sure has seemed good to not have a thunder shower today. We have had so many that have done damage.

Aries: You were very fortunate to escape.

Bay State, Was so sorry to again miss your picnic but it was raspberries for me that day.

Aunty No. 1: I watch the paper to see reports of you. Hope to see good ones soon.

Joan: Hope to hear you are feeling fine soon. I suppose many of you are busy canning, I shall not do as much this year as I usually do.

Canterbury Bell: Hope you have a nice day for your picnic. Our Sunday school picnic is the next day and as I can't be away two days in succession will have to miss yours.

Thirty-two: I think you ought to get a job writing ads for a real estate dealer, you make farm life sound so attractive.

I am wondering if any of you gardeners are having the leaves of your chrysanthemums turn brown. Several of mine have. There was a little bug with wings that seemed to be stinging them so have sprayed them and it has seemed to help. There are so many things to destroy plants.

E. L. M.

On its way through Paris the River Reine is crossed by thirty-two bridges.

Palace Theatre

Quiet, sinister, despairing, they tramp the long stone corridors, thinking only of escape, these "Numbered Men." All around them lie barriers of steel and stone, barriers they cannot tear away, except when driven to madness. This is the atmosphere which pervades the newest prison picture sensation, "Numbered Men," which the Palace theatre is now presenting, and which will be shown at this popular Warner Brothers' playhouse tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

No one will want to miss "Numbered Men," after the first audiences have seen it, for no doubt, the news will travel like wildfire. It is positively the most sinister and thrilling drama of prison life ever filmed. Its cast alone is a sensation, for it includes among other stars, such well-known names as Conrad Nagel, Bernice Claire of the soft brown hair, Raymond Hackett, Tully Marshall and Ralph Ince. Each of these has a magnificent role, and when their destinies intertwine, fire and blood and sacrifice are the result.

Towering above his fellows is the sinister brute, King Callahan, a man framed years ago by one of the most notorious counterfeiters in the country. Callahan hates prison, but he hates his betrayer worse, and when the time comes, it is Callahan who, mad with rage and despair, tries the impossible—and succeeds, almost. He escapes, but he goes from a living death to a certain one. Yet in the hour of his death, his hand finds revenge, and the strange threads of fate lead to a smashing climax in which lust, fear and tender romance are mingled in a manner never to be forgotten. By all means find a way to see this picture.

WESTERLY

SEVERAL FINED AT THIRD DIS. COURT SESSION

WESTERLY, July 18—In third district court, Friday morning, with Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench, the most of the court's time was taken up with the hearing of a civil suit, Peter Olechowek vs. Frank Lebrach et ux. The action began April 22nd with the writ served May 6th, is one of trespass and ejectment and the property involved is located at Nos. 6 and 3 White Rock road. The plaintiff and defendant testified on the witness stand and Attorney Roche tried unsuccessfully to put Mrs. Olechowek, wife of the plaintiff, on the witness stand. Inasmuch as a number of issues were raised on which the judge desired information and the conclusion of the hearing he held the papers and continued the case for decision.

Salvatore Terranova, Franklin street, Westerly, was charged with failure while driving a truck July 11th on Franklin street to pass an overtaken auto on the left side. The defendant entered a plea of "nolo" which he told the court meant he did not know whether he was guilty or not. The services of an interpreter were secured to assist the accused in understanding the charges against him. Prosecutor Ferguson told the court that the auto driven by the defendant climbed an 8-inch curb and went through a picket fence where it stopped and the investigating police officer found that no brakes had been applied after the driver lost his head. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

William Christians who said he was of Dutch descent, of Sound Beach, Conn., was before the court, charged with operating an automobile on the Nooseneck Hill road on July 10th at a rate of speed greater than necessary. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs.

John Joseph Dupias, 27, of Randolph, Mass., pleaded guilty to the operating of his automobile on the Nooseneck Hill road on July 14th at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

William Carroll Johnson, 24, of Gavitt lane, off Oak street, was before the court for illegal possession of intoxicating liquors which were seized when his place was raided by the Westerly police. Prosecutor Ferguson declared the place was raided when complaints came to the police that young men and young girls were observed by residents of the neighborhood coming and going to the Johnson place and appeared to be under the influence of liquor. To the possession charge a plea of nolo was entered and the court was severe in its arraignment of the accused, declaring that it had no confidence in him. On the charge Judge Williams said he would impose no penalty now but continue the case to be called up at any time should occasion warrant and the defendant was directed to report to the probation officer.

On the return of the warrant on complaint and search for liquors where 206 bottles of beer analyzing 37.90 per cent alcohol by volume, and the 1-4 pint of gin 31.6 alcohol were seized, the court declared forfeited to the state and warrants issued for their destruction.

NEW LONDON, July 18. — Louis Montes De Oca, Mexican minister of finance, arrived here at 1 o'clock, accompanied by six residents of Mexico and went to the submarine base for the purpose of inspecting that reservation. The Mexican officials are making a tour of the states for the purpose of obtaining information relative to the methods employed and the equipment of the navy of this country. The visitors came to New London from Boston, where they had inspected Charleston navy yard and were met at the Union station by Lieut. R. D. After being escorted about the base and served luncheon aboard the Camden as guests of Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, the visitors were taken to Long Island sound on submarine S-1 and this evening departed for New York.

Porter, pastor of Huntington Street Baptist church, died at Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon in child-birth, the infant also dying. Mrs. Porter was born in New Brunswick, N. S., February 14, 1902, and had resided in New London about a year. The body will be forwarded to Mrs. Porter's former residence at Milton, Mass. for the funeral and burial.

WILLIAM WARREN CAUGHT WITH STOLEN CAR IN DEL.

William Warren, 24 Hamilton street, was arrested at Wilmington, Del., this morning with an automobile in his possession which was stolen in New London. Warren escaped from the state police and has not been captured.

The Ford sedan owned by Ludwig Sieck, 322 Huntington street, member of U. S. Coast Guard, was parked in front of the owner's home last Wednesday night. When Sieck went to where he had left his machine the following day he discovered that it was stolen and reported that fact at police headquarters. This afternoon the Delaware state police informed the New London police of the recovery of the auto and the arrest of Warren. The state police were requested to hold Warren in custody and as he had waived extradition, an officer would start for Wilmington within a day or two. A short time later another message was received from the police stating that Warren had made his escape.

Dominick Grillo, 12, residing at 35 Orchard street, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital having suffered the loss of the index finger at the first joint of the right hand, also the thumb. Grillo obtained several cartridges late yesterday and then started to explode them. He did not possess a revolver, so he started using a blunt instrument. The first cartridge discharged tore away both fingers and as a result the youth will go through life handicapped by the amputation of the two digets.

Injured In Auto Crash.

Patrick Kimball, a soldier in camp at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, was injured when the automobile in which he was riding in Waterford last night collided with a pole. Kimball sustained a scalp wound and was brought to New London and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where the wound was dressed. Today Kimball returned to camp. CASE OF LEMUEL PAYNE NOT TRIED ON FRIDAY

Lemuel Payne, colored, employed at Plant house, Connecticut College for Women, was arrested last night, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor as the result of his car, in which was Mortimer Jeffers, 63 Belden street, also colored, colliding with two other cars, one motionless and the other driven by Michael Longo, 73 Washington street, Norwich, on Ocean avenue, opposite Lawrence Memorial hospital. He was in the police court this morning, but the case was continued as Jeffers, who sustained a fractured skull, is in a critical condition at the hospital. Payne's bail was fixed at $3,000 and as he was unable to provide a surety, the Negro was remanded to jail. Jeffers, who is employed as porter by the Connecticut Power company, was discharged from the hospital about three months ago as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident while returning from New Haven to this city.

LOMBOSSEY HOUSE WET FROM FLOOR ABOVE CEILING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 18.—Arrested twice within a week, Richardi Lombossey, employed at the drinking resort at 50 Smith street, will be in the police court again tomorrow morning. This noon Lombossey was arrested by a raiding force, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and possession. Lombossey's arrest today was the result of his having sold to sailors last night. When the bluejackets were arrested at Ocean Beach where they created a disturbance they revealed the source of their liquor supply and as Lombossey was the man who sold to them his arrest followed a raid upon the house. When the information was given the police that Lombossey was continuing to dispense liquor Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen George Bruhns and Frank Philopena went to the house provided with a search warrant issued by Judge Daniel M. Cronin. The officers were richly rewarded for their efforts. Fifty-six cases of beer were openly stored in a hall and the cases reached from floor to ceiling. When Sergeant Cavanaugh was assisting in the removal of the beer his hand came in contact with a loose board which formed a part of the ceiling. Investigation revealed that the board could be removed as well as several others and it also revealed that there were 21 pints of whiskey, eight quarts of whiskey and eight cases of malt syrup between the ceiling and the floor of the upper tenement. These, together with the beer, were seized. Lombossey was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,000. Lombossey was arrested last Saturday and two days later in the police court was fined $400 and costs.

The primary department of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school had its annual picnic yesterday at Riverside park. The Union circle of the church held its picnic at the Golden Spur.

Edward Suthard and Earl Cameron, sailors, stationed at the Coast Guard academy, were in the police court this morning, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. They were fined $5 on the first charge and on the second count a nolle was ordered. The sailors were at Ocean Beach last night and created a disturbance. Both were arrested by Patrolman George Goldberg.

The only other case tried was that of a man employed as a painter, who was charged with intoxication. He has been on a debauch for a fortnight and was arrested the day before in order to effect his sobriety. Today, he was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of sentence was suspended.

Herman Munson, Norwich, and Sail Baylinson, Philadelphia, were patients discharged yesterday at Home Memorial hospital. Today, Lydia Smith, Waterford, and Evelyn Draper, East Lyme, were the only patients discharged.

POETRY

THE BUZZARDS

When evening came and the warm glow grew deeper,
And every tree that bordered the green meadows
And in the yellow cornfields every reaper
And every corn-shock stood above their shadows
Flung eastward from their feet in longer measure,
Serenely far there swam in the sunny hight
A buzzard and his mate who took pleasure
Swirling and poising idly in golden light.
On great pied motionless moth-wings borne along,
So effortless and so strong,
Cutting each other's paths together they glided,
Then wheeled asunder till they soared divided
Two valleys' width (as though it were delight
To part like this, being sure they could unite
So swiftly in their empty, free dominion),
Curved headlong downward, towered up the sunny steep,
Then, with a sudden lift of the one great pinion,
Swung proudly to a curve, and from its hight
Took half a mile of sunlight in one long sweet.

And we, so small on the swift immense hillside,
Stood tranced, until our souls arose uplifted
On those far-sweeping, wide,
Strong curves of flight—swayed up and hugely drifted,
Were washed, made strong and beautiful in the tide
Of sun-bathed air. But far beneath, beholden
Through shining deeps of air, the fields were golden
And rosy burned the heather where cornfields ended.
And still those buzzards whirled, while light withdrew
Out of the vales and to surging slopes ascended,
Till the loftiest flaming summit died to blue.

—Martha Armstrong.

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE

The pure, the bright, the beautiful
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulses to wordless prayer,
The streams of love and truth,
The longing after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need;
A kindly word in grief's dark hour
That proves a friend indeed;
The plea for mercy softly breathed,
When justice threatens high,
The sorrow of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love—
Be firm and just and true.
So shall a light that cannot fade
Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee—
"These things shall never die."

—Charles Dickens.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mother—You should not let the young man spend so much money on you.

Daughter—Why not? I don't intend to marry him.—Exchange.

Schoolmaster—This makes the fifth time I have punished you this week. What have you to say?

Youth—I am glad it's Friday, sir.—Carlisle Journal.

Doctor—You say that, on an average, you have been drinking six glasses of beer a day? Now I can allow you only half the number!

Patient (after a pause)—Doctor, I really believe I used to drink a couple more.—Hummel.

Mother—Sammy, what are you doing?

Sam—I'm counting. You told me to count to 100 if I got mad.

Mother—Yes. That's right.

Sam—Well, I've counted to 237 and I'm madder now than when I started.—Detroit News.

An Army junior had a quiz in science. The question was: "Define a bolt and a nut and explain the difference, if any." The boy wrote:

"A bolt is a thing like a stick of hard metal such as iron with a square bunch at one end and a lot of scratching wound around the other end. A nut is similar to a bolt only just the opposite, being a hole in a little chunk of iron sawed off short with wrinkles around the inside of the hole."—Exchange.

At Avery Memorial Meeting

When the Avery Memorial association held its annual meeting Friday at Poquonoc Bridge Baptist church, included in the attendance of about 100 from Norwich Town were Dwight W. and Frank S. Avery of West Town street, also Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. Dr. and Mrs. Lamb, who attended only the morning session, were present in memory of Dr. Lamb's first wife, Bessie S. Perry Lamb, until her death twenty-six years ago, a valued member of this association, also a descendent of the Avery family. For many successive years Dr. Lamb and his first wife attended these gatherings. It was a pleasure Friday to Dr. Lamb to greet many old friends whom he had not seen in many years.

Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. Lamb had as supper guests the former's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Norton Brainard of Montreal, also Mr. Brainard's mother, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainard and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley of Mystic, where Mr. and Mrs. Brainard have been visiting the past week. They are to motor back to their home in Montreal this (Saturday) morning, expecting to reach there Sunday afternoon. Several friends were invited in later in the evening to listen to the musical program by Mr. Brainard, saxophonist, who was accompanied at the piano by his sister, Mrs. Gremley, an accomplished musician.

ERECTING ADDITION AT UNITED CONGREGATIONAL

Work has been begun at the United Congregational church in erecting the addition which will provide for a department class room and a kitchen.

This will be a two-story addition at the rear of the church and fronting on Chestnut street, covering a plot of ground adjoining the central fire station property. The lower floor, which is on the street level, will be the kitchen and the upper floor will be for the scout department, boys and girls, and other activities along the line of the juniors. This will be one room and will be reached by both inside and outside stairways.

The general contract is with the Peck-McWilliams company and the work is to be completed as soon as possible so that the rooms will be available for use in the fall.

INSECT PEST SAMPLES AT FARM BUREAU OFFICE

The office of the New London County Farm bureau, which is in the Shannon building, has now been furnished with samples of the three insect pests, against which Connecticut is on its guard. These are the Japanese beetle, the European corn borer and the Mexican bean beetle.

County Agent Walter T. Clark suggests that those who think they have found specimens of any of these destructive pests visit the farm bureau office where they can check up on their finds, and provide for early detection of any of these insects as soon as they appear in this territory.

CLAIMS OAKDALE HEN LAID RECORD HEAVY EGG

By a quarter of an ounce, the Dumont poultry farm at Oakdale is claiming for one of its hens the world record for producing the heaviest hen's egg that was ever laid.

The egg was laid Thursday by a Rhode Island Red hen and weighs 4 1-4 ounces, which the poultry farm management claims beats the previous heavy egg record by a quarter of an ounce. In order to have an accurate weight the egg was brought to this city and placed on a drug store scales with the result that its record weight was revealed.

BULLETS FLY AROUND INGHOK MISSION SCHOOL

Letters under date of June 17 received from Rev. Edward H. Smith, formerly of this city, who is now a missionary at Inghok, China, tell of serious interruption of the final examinations of senior class in Huntington Memorial Boys' school by crack of pistols and sharpshooting outside the building, by soldiers who have come up from Foochow. It seems that when defeated in Foochow, they retreated 40 miles up the Inghok river and there they attacked the bandits who were guarding Inghok. Nobody knows what they are fighting for, but for six hours they had kept up a terrible sharp attack with continual shooting on June 17th. A bullet struck a brick pillar of the veranda, only a few feet from where Mr. Smith was sitting, and he retreated to a dark closet where his light could not be a target to either army. Mr. Smith had only food for a day or two, for his school of 60 boys and himself. Mrs. Smith was in Shanghai where their daughter, Margaret, was graduating from Shanghai American school, and starting with five or six missionaries for the United States via Russia, Germany, France, Poland and she sails for England Aug. 1st. She was to travel through Moscow, Mukdon, Poland and Germany in June, reaching Paris July 17th.

Miss Lucy Langtree, teacher of the girls' school, was the only other American in Inghok. Fear that the hungry soldiers would commandeer the school boys' and school girls' rice, is the trouble. The soldiers fill the church and Y. M. C. A. and school buildings much to the annoyance of the Chinese students.

Rev. Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of 374 Washington street, Norwich.

RETURN FROM VISIT AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Mrs. Owen S. Smith of 374 Washington street, with her granddaughter, Miss Eleanor Huntington Smith, have recently returned from a visit to Mrs. Smith's granddaughter, Mrs. Kenneth Palmer (Lucile Thomas) and great granddaughter, Barbara Jane Palmer, in Washington, D. C., where they enjoyed many rides around Washington and through Rock Creek park by moonlight. Taking a "seeing Washington bus" they visited the bureau of engraving and printing where all bank-bills and stamps are being made; also they visited the capital, with senate and house in session. At the white house they noted in east room where Mrs. Hoover has removed many portraits and old vases, etc., and newly furnished it. They also visited the most beautiful Congressional library in the world. On Sunday they visited the new cathedral to Saints Peter and Paul, being built by Episcopalians from everywhere. Services are held every Sunday afternoon in the chapel which is the only part now completed, and in which lie the remains of ex-President Wilson, opposite those of Admiral Dewey. The whole immense edifice will not be completed for 20 years, as it is not to be finished in debt.

It will truly be a second Solomon's temple judging from the model and immense plans already laid out, "a national cathedral of the Episcopal church of America."

Greenstein-Lifschutz Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lifschutz, of Montville, Conn., announce the marriage of their daughter, Ida Sara, to Perry Greenstein, which took place Tuesday, July 8, at Brooklyn, N. Y. The newly-married couple are to reside at 59 Linden avenue, Ossining, N. Y.

GOVERNOR'S DAY FOR 192ND F. A. AT NIANTIC

Governor's day was observed Friday at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, where the 192nd field artillery, Connecticut National Guard is ending its two weeks of camp duty. The companies of the regiment will return home today (Saturday), bringing Battery B and the Combat Train back to the Norwich armory on McKinley avenue some time in the afternoon. The motorized howitzers of the battery were taken to camp overland and will return in the same way and as their progress is slow, about four miles an hour, it is probable that they will not reach the armory here until the afternoon.

Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers was the reviewing officer at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at Niantic, having previously been the guest of the 192nd officers at the noon mess.

Members of the governor's staff in the reviewing stand included Maj. General Morris B. Payne, Brig. Gen. William F. Ladd, adjutant general; Col. James W. Gilson, assistant adjutant general; Brig. Gen. James A. Haggerty, Col. M. J. Mogensen, Comdr. Nelson W. Pickering, and Major Fred J. Morrison, Major Joseph W. Lockhart of the quartermasters' corps.

The only other activity of particular interest at Niantic Friday was the annual lemon rush held in the morning. In this event 20 men from each of the 12 batteries in camp stood on the outside of a 100 foot circle and at a given signal rushed to a 30 foot circle inside of which a crate of lemons had been emptied on the ground. The object of the rush was to see which battery could obtain the most lemons. As usual, the rush ended up in a near riot and only the pre-arranged signal ending the rush saved the contestants from a heavy mauling as one guardsman wrestled another for possession of the precious lemons.

The rush was won by Battery E of Stamford; Battery F of Greenwich was second and Headquarters Battery of New London was third.

In the annual athletic events Battery E of Stamford was declared the winner of the beautiful trophy presented each year after the finals were completed Friday morning.

Battery E had previously won the swimming meet held at Crescent beach last week. The results of the various athletic events were announced yesterday by Capt. H. H. Kellogg, athletic officer, as follows:

Tug of war—Won by Battery B, Norwich.

400 yard shovel relay race—First, Battery E of Stamford; second, Battery A of New London; third, the medical detachment of Danbury.

One half mile relay—First, Battery E; second, Battery A; third, Medical detachment.

Medley relay—First, Battery E; second, Medical detachment.

AIRMEN GIVE DEMONSTRATION ON GOVERNOR'S DAY

Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers, with members of the governor's staff, reviewed the 43rd division aviation for governor's day Friday morning at the Groton airport.

The program started at 10.30 after the acting governor and staff had been officially welcomed and had inspected the quarters, equipment and personnel of the outfit.

Three formations then flew past the reviewing stand, after which the leading group broke formation to give demonstrations of the training activities. Lieut. E. M. Lester, leader of the formation, glided down to the official party and picked up a message from the ground as he flew low overhead.

Lieut. A. Lewis MacClain gave an actual demonstration of aerial gunnery, using a target at the southwest end of the field.

Lieut. E. R. Bourne, communications officer, flying with Capt. Harry Generous, established radio contact with the ground, a loudspeaker being hooked up with the ground receiving set to broadcast Lieutenant Bourne's messages to the spectators.

Pilots who flew in the other two formations, which circled the field during the exhibition were: Lieut. Herbert Mills, Lieut. Frederick Sansom, Lieut. Charles Wright, Lieut. Ragnor Hanson, Lieutenant Davis and Lieut. Ernest Markham.

Following the aerial demonstration the members of the official reviewing party were invited to take rides.

INSECT PEST CONTROL TO BE FIELD DAY FEATURES

Interest will be centered on three dangerous insect pests of Connecticut at the annual field day of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station, Aug. 20, to be held on the experiment farm in Mount Carmel.

Short addresses will be made by L. H. Worthley, of Boston, federal administrator of European corn borer control; C. H. Hadley, of Camden, N. J., federal agent in charge of preventing spread of the Japanese beetle; Dr. Philip Garman, assistant entomologist of the experiment station, who is in charge of the Oriental peach moth investigations and parasite-rearing at the experiment station.

Plowing under corn will be staged to illustrate corn borer control. Disposing of the cornstalks, where the insect spends the winter, is the one method of control. Field day visitors will see inbred strains of corn and crossed corn growing in the field; experiments in vegetable, raspberry and strawberry breeding; investigations in the control of insect and fungous pests that attack fruits and vegetables, and studies in soil fertility.

Inspection of the experimental plots begins in the morning, lunch will be eaten at noon under the big tent and the short formal programme will be held in the early afternoon.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE OF COUNTY REPUBLICAN CLUB

The advisory committee of the New London County Republican club formed Wednesday at the Gales Ferry conference will consist of the six county members of the republican state central committee, namely, Daniel M. Cronin, New London, and Mrs. Edna Colby, Mystic, representing the 18th district; Albert J. Bailey and Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, both of Norwich, representing the 19th district; and Sheriff George H. Bradford, Montville, and Mrs. Maude P. Manning, Stonington, the 20th district.

Goes to Long Lane Farm

A Norwich girl 15 years old was committed to Long Lane farm Friday afternoon at a juvenile court hearing by Judge A. F. Libby. Her mother is employed during the daytime and is unable to give proper attention to the care of the girl, who would run the risk of falling into ways of vice under the present conditions.

BOY SCOUTS IN CAMP FOR THEIR SECOND WEEK

With 30 of the 35 first week scouts remaining for at least another week and with 35 new scouts arriving Friday, Camp Wakenah, the Boy Scout camp at Gardner lake will have a camp population of 65 boys and ten leaders for the second week which began Friday. A number of Norwich scouts are at the camp.

The high percentage of boys remaining over from the first week is accepted by the camp committee as a hearty endorsement of the camp program and a genuine indication that the scouts are having a wonderful time at the camp again this year.

One reason advanced for this increased popularity of the camp is that the scouts have more time for scout work, games and water sports now than ever before due to the fact that there is only one work detail to which the scouts are assigned now. This is the dishwashing detail to which two scouts from each tent are assigned for each meal, these two boys being responsible for the washing of the dishes for their table.

When the camp first opened all available ground had to be developed by cutting down thick underbrush and trees and the removal of stones. Thus during the first few years of the camp the scouts were called on to do their share of the camp improvement work. Then, too, there are few facilities and all the wood for the camp kitchen had to be cut by scouts, ice had to be hauled up from the ice house located by the shore, water had to be pumped by hand and various other menial tasks had to be done by the scouts.

Gradually, however sufficient ground was cleared for all camp activities, permanent tent houses were erected instead of the army tents that required considerable care, the road from the main highway to the camp was improved by hired labor, fire wood was purchased economically, a motor was hooked up to pump the necessary water, and this year the ice can be purchased as needed during the summer as cheaply as it would be to harvest a supply of ice from the lake in the winter and store it until needed.

Time For Camp Work

Thus, the scouts at Wakenah have far more time to pursue the scout work in which they are interested and to enjoy various games, etc., than they ever did before. And this seems to make the camp more popular than ever before. Indications are that the attendance this summer will be greater than ever, more boys being signed up for the season already than attended the camp last year.

Of the 35 scouts who arrived at the camp Friday 29 are from New London and six from Norwich.

The Norwich boys who arrived at the camp Friday are: Lewis Sussman, C. W. Tourtellotte, George Lichenstein, Elvin M. Schelin, William Powell and Franklin Powell.

The New London boys are as follows:

Donald G. Radway, Edwin C. Johannessen, James H. Brogan, Anthony L. Belbruno, E. George Lavoie, Robert A. Lavoie, Adelard Lavoie, Robert M. Keyon, Paul J. Belbruno, Clyde Phillips, E. Morgan Newbury, Norman H. Schlink, Joseph Connolly, Dwight Phillips, George W. Stewart, Alfred E. Greene, Harry Konochik, Jacob Soltz, Otto Kanevsky, Milton P. Baline, Donald Collins, Carl H. Vogt, Kenneth Holmes, James Neilan, Alex Chernik, Alex Perchasky, Frank Smith, John Sullivan and James Fitzgerald.

SHELTERING ARMS FAMILY ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Mrs. Richard P. Freeman, wife of Congressman Freeman, was hostess to 14 members of the Sheltering Arms family at a tea Thursday afternoon at her home at Neptune Park, New London. Members of the Sheltering Arms committee furnished automobiles for the transportation to and from the home and the affair was arranged by Mrs. Eben Learned, Jr., daughter of Mrs. Freeman, and a member of the Arms committee. The members of the Sheltering Arms family, who were in charge of Mrs. Charles Preston, chairman of the committee, had a most pleasant time.

Clarke of the New London County Farm bureau and Prof. Wilkinson of the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, accompanied the party.

The Connecticut experimental field grounds at Windsor will be the scene of the next meeting of the association to be held Aug. 14.

Caramel Fudge and Vanilla

▼ OPINIONS DIFFER. People have different ideas and varying tastes, too. It's indeed rare that all tastes agree on two flavors—companions in the same dish! But there's no doubt about Caramel Fudge and Vanilla; they've understood each other for years—one has helped the other to universal popularity.

So we've divided the same pint package of Ice Cream between them. Half and half—it wouldn't do to play favorites, because they're both favorites! Vanilla is so mellow. It soothes and lingers. And chocolate, made into a caramel fudge, so completely satisfies the desire for something rich that you'll have no other "craving" for hours to come!

STRAIGHT EIGHTS

All progress is change.

Only by change do man and the factors of his civilization move from the lower to the higher state; from the cruder to the finer development.

Our Chrysler engineers devote their lives to study, to analysis, to experimentation. And out of this constant searching and trying come the knowledge, conviction and decision that lead to progress.

In announcing two complete lines of New Straight Eights, in addition to our lower-priced Chrysler Sixes, we now register our most important change and progress—all designed, all worked for, all created to give the world better and more satisfying transportation.

In our progress there is no departure from fundamental principles.

To maintain public approbation, we must give always finer, more dependable, more dynamic car performance—must offer always greater value, as well as cars better suited to the needs of modern transport.

Thus, our latest Chryslers—the new Chrysler Eight and the new Chrysler Imperial Eight—containing as they do, outstanding engineering and style improvements—are, we believe, milestones along the course of automobile progress.

We are proud and eager to submit these cars to the inspection and test of the public.

TO RATIFY NAVAL TREATY LATE TODAY OR TOMORROW

A Dozen Or More Reservations Must Be Disposed of Before a Vote On Ratification Is In Order—Treaty Advocates Asserted That These Would Be Voted Down Almost Without Exception—Opponents of the Pact Realize That They Are Waging a Losing Fight.

WASHINGTON, July 20. — (AP) — Sweltering in the hottest weather of years here, senate leaders today determined to seek ratification of the London naval treaty by tomorrow night or Tuesday.

The spirited band of opponents gained a day of rest, placing them in a position to resume the attack tomorrow but they see the futility of a losing fight and apparently are ready to let the treaty go through.

The dozen or more reservations directed at the pact by the foes must be disposed of before a vote on ratification is in order but treaty advocates asserted today these would be voted down almost without exception.

Only one reservation, that by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, is due for acceptance. This reservation provides that in ratifying the treaty, the senate gives no approval whatever to any secret agreements or understandings which may exist.

President Hoover and the senatorial delegates to London, Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, have assured the senate there are no secret agreements or understandings but they agreed to accept the Norris reservation in the interests of speeding up action.

With the treaty out of the way the senate will quit almost immediately. Mr. Hoover sent up some nominations yesterday. These will be confirmed if there is no opposition but if trouble develops no attempt will be made to keep the weary senators here any longer.

The treaty places a limitation upon the construction of auxiliary ships in the American, British and Japanese navies, thus completing the program of limitation begun at Washington in 1922 when a limitation was placed upon capital ships—the battle ships.

The opposition, led by Senators Johnson, republican, California, and Hale, republican, Maine, the chairman of the naval committee, has insisted that the treaty "hamstrings" the American navy and leaves it in a disadvantageous position.

The treaty proponents, led by Senators Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on the naval and foreign relations committees, and Reed and Robinson have contended the treaty gives the navy a balanced fleet and an opportunity to catch up in cruisers with Great Britain and Japan.

All manner of reservations are pending but the treaty proponents showed their strength yesterday when they shouted down without record votes two attempts to amend the text of the treaty.

As soon as the text of the treaty had been read for amendments, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee submitted the resolution of ratification. This is now pending and it is generally agreed that if any filibuster was intended against the treaty this week this resolution would have been blocked from introduction late yesterday.

The opponents are expected to center their efforts on the resolution of Senator Johnson providing that all of the 18 eight-inch gun cruisers allowed the United States under the treaty may be completed within the six-year life of the pact, and the reservation of Senator Hale stipulating that the United States still maintains the right to construct any type of cruiser within the total tonnage limit without regard to categories.

PRINCE SINGH FORGOT THAT HE COULDN'T TALK ENGLISH

REVERE, Mass., July 20—(AP)—Prince Singh, a Hindoo mystic who sees tomorrow in the crystal globe for the edification of the thousands that flood Revere beach over the week-end, failed to read aright his own future today.

The prince was "seeing futures" to the tune of 50 cents a head, giving "private interviews and seeings for $1" today and he was doing well on Uncle Sam's sailors and their girl friends.

All the dealing in futures was done via an interpreter, who translated the musings of the Hindoo to the customers. The crystal ball had good news for everyone and everyone was happy.

Then, the crystal went back on Prince Singh. A gentleman asked for one of the private $1 seeings. Prince Singh concentrated. His customer listened intently and asked, "Does the crystal tell you I'm Lieutenant Benton Murray of the metropolitan police?"

The crystal not only didn't, but Prince Singh forgot that he couldn't talk English.

ONE MAN KILLED, 68 PERSONS HURT IN PENN ROAD WRECK

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 20—(AP)—Forty-eight persons were in hospitals and one man was dead today, victims of a wreck of a New York bound Pennsylvania railroad train near Elizabeth station at 9:30 o'clock (EST) last night.

The locomotive and tender were overturned and two coaches crashed down an embankment at a trestle after the train struck an automobile on the tracks at an abandoned grade crossing a few blocks south of the station.

John Craig of Brooklyn, a passenger, died of a fractured skull in Elizabeth General hospital early today. All the others were expected to recover.

Sixty-eight persons were treated at hospitals after the wreck, but 20 of them were permitted to go home, leaving 38 at St. Elizabeth hospital and 10 in the Elizabeth General.

WATERBURY DRUGGIST WAS FATALLY INJURED

NORTH KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., July 20—(AP)—Phillip Lyons, 36, Waterbury, Conn., druggist, was fatally injured when two automobiles containing eight persons, collided head-on here today. All were taken to a Biddeford hospital where Lyons died tonight. He had a fractured skull, crushed chest and broken ribs. The others hurt were of a less serious nature.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 20—(AP)—Amid cheering crowds frantic with enthusiasm, an army of former soldiers marched through flag-decorated streets today in commemoration of the centenary of Belgium's independence.

Preceded by war mothers and widows, an impressive group of war blinded and mutilated, appeared in the line of march. The veterans, with flying colors, and led by their former regimental chiefs in mufti, marched for two hours, halting en route to the palace to place wreaths on the unknown soldier's tomb.

Arriving at the Royal Palace the procession marched past the Soldier King of Belgium, who stood surrounded by military attaches from the allied countries' legations, and delegations of veterans.

After the king had conferred the grand cross of the Order of Leopold on some former soldiers, 150 modest heroes who received the Order of Leopold on the battlefield were his guests at lunch. The movement, started in the densely populated centers of Bombay, is now being carried into the rural districts as well as into the towns and villages, the Nationalists continuing their campaign to stimulate the Gandhi movement for passive resistance.

One verse urges men, women, and children to use the spinning wheel, or charka, following Gandhi's lead, and everybody to wear homespun, and "We'll surely win our fight for independence if all of you take the pledge to buy no foreign goods."

SURVIVOR TO DISSOLVE THE LAST MAN CLUB

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20—The "last man," a weary and aged civil war veteran, will go to Stillwater near here tomorrow to dissolve the last man's club by drinking a toast to his departed comrades in the mute presence of 33 crepe covered chairs.

The final gesture involves drams for which the old soldier, Charles Lockwood of Chamberlain, S. D., has little taste, he said today while at the home of a son here seeking seclusion from the unwanted attentions which tomorrow's event has brought him.

When he arrives at Lowell inn at Stillwater, tomorrow noon, Lockwood will call the roll and alone will make answer of the roster of 34 members the club had after its simple beginnings at a reunion 45 years ago.

The 34 were survivors of Company B, First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, which lost most of its members at Gettysburg and at Bull Run. It was on July 21, 1885, the anniversary of the first battle at Bull Run, that the reunion was held on the ground now occupied by the Inn, and after hours of feasting, the last bottle of wine was set aside to be drunk by the last man.

"Every member of the club thought he would be last and I did, too," Mr. Lockwood said. "After our experiences in that war—we all had four years of it together—we had no fear of death. It seemed funny to us then—a kind of humorous gesture—but now that I am last I see no humor in it. I would rather that I did not have to do it."

Reapportionment Of Members Of House

California May Receive An Addition of Nine Members to Her Delegation.

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—The queer quirks performed by "the method of major fractions" as it operates on state populations in the reapportionment of members of the house of representatives are going to bring about many seeming inconsistencies.

California, with an increase of 2,264,738 in population since the last reapportionment of the house, likely will receive an addition of nine members to her delegation, but Illinois, with a gain of 1,381,692 in the same time, will receive no additional members.

Likewise, Michigan, with an increase of 2,008,198, may gain four additional members, whereas Pennsylvania, with an increase of 2,387,899, is down to lose one member.

Connecticut will gain one member and Rhode Island will lose one.

New York on an increase of 2,495,941 persons will probably be given two additional members, and New Jersey, with a probable gain of 1,401,833, also is slated to gain two new members. Texas, with an increase of 1,914,141, probably will be given three additional congressmen.

With the populations of 37 states already announced, experts have begun figuring on the makeup of the house under the new apportionment law. Some of their calculations made a year ago already have been overturned; the latest developments indicate Georgia will lose two congressmen instead of none, as had previously been figured. New York likely will gain two instead of losing one. Texas might gain three instead of two, and California nine instead of six. Minnesota probably will lose one instead of maintaining her delegation of ten as at present, and Ohio may gain only one instead of three as had been forecast.

The actual changes in a number of instances can not be determined until the remaining eleven states have reported their population and "the method of major fractions" put to work.

A tabulation of the actual and estimated increases indicated that in the re-casting of the house, the seats must be shifted about among the states to provide equal representation to 31,420,948 persons.

These seats will automatically be changed by the census bureau if congress fails to act in the coming session.

HEAT WAVE COVERS GREATER PART OF THE UNITED STATES

Ten Deaths Were Attributed to the Heat Yesterday, Five in New York State—Hottest Spot Was Columbus, O., 112 Degrees—Washington Reported An All-Time Record 105.6 Degrees—Cooling Breezes Ended the Wave In New England.

(By the Associated Press)

For the second straight day the greater part of the United States was held in the grip of a record-breaking heat wave yesterday. Further reports of suffering, death and drought came from the affected areas.

Apparently only the Pacific coast and Rocky mountain regions escaped the torrid sun which sent the mercury soaring to all-time heights in many parts of the mid-west and south.

Columbus, O., with an unofficial temperature of 112, led the list of heat-infested cities. Keedysville, Md., Charlottesville, Va., and Toledo, O., all with 107 degrees were next.

Wheeling, W. Va., and Martins Ferry and Lancaster, O., each reported temperatures of 106, breaking a 27-year record in the latter town. The mercury touched 106.5 in Frederick, Md.

The heat continued unabated in parched Kansas, where churches prayed for rain, Topeka having a maximum temperature of 102 and Wichita, 101. The mercury climbed to 102 in Des Moines, Ia., and to 100 in Milwaukee. It was 98 in Kansas City.

Throughout Illinois and Indiana the thermometer registered close to or above the century mark. The official temperature in Chicago was 100, with 104 reported in the suburbs. It was 101.04 in Cincinnati, 99 in Indianapolis and 96 in Detroit.

Down in Dixie, the Shenandoah valley, already suffering from drought averaged 102 in the sade. Richmond, Va., reached a high of 102.2, the hottest July on record. In Kentucky, Ashland, on the east, reported 104.5, Paducah, on the west, 104, and Louisville, 99. Farther south the temperatures were lower, Atlanta reporting only 92.

The nation's capital, Washington, reported an all-time record of 105.6. Most of the east, however, escaped with temperatures two to four degrees lower than Saturday.

It was 98 in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and throughout New Jersey. New York, with 92, was four degrees under Saturday's high. Cooling breezes ended the wave in New England.

Ten deaths were reported, five in New York state, where the mercury hovered around 92, two each in Milwaukee and Philadelphia, and one in Chicago.

Four persons were drowned while bathing and a 4-year-old boy fell three stories to his death trying to climb to the roof of his home to escape the heat.

The mercury reached 92 degrees at 5 p. m., two degrees below the record for July 20 established in 1894. A million and a half persons sought relief at Coney Island and the Rockaways.

DEATH FROM HEAT AND TWO PROSTRATIONS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 20.—(AP)—The midwest boiled beneath a relentless sun today with thermometers soaring toward new and dizzier heights.

Toledo, Ohio, reported a noon reading of 107, an in several Indiana and Illinois towns the mercury touched the century mark and continued to climb. Mounting 27 points since midnight, the Chicago temperature was 98 at noon and C. A. Donnel, official forecaster, said a new record of 101 degrees or more may be established.

One death and two prostrations were reported. Thousands found the heat too intense to permit them to visit golf courses and beaches.

The weather bureau predicted the torrid wave would be broken through the North Central states late tomorrow by thunderstorms. The forecast was hailed with joy by the farmers whose crops suffered from drought during the heat siege. Prayers for rain were said today in Catholic churches of the Omaha Catholic diocese.

Spontaneous combustion, induced by the heat, caused two spectacular fires in Chicago.

The roof of a machine shop at the Bridewell jail was partly destroyed but firemen extinguished the blaze before it endangered neighboring buildings which house the prisoners.

Several sheds containing manufactured woodwork were consumed by flames at a North Side lumber yard. Damage was placed at $25,000.

The lad's activities came to light when authorities investigated a report that he was sleeping in a hen coop at the rear of his parents' home. The boy revealed that he slept in the hen coop "because of my business" so that his parents would not be disturbed when customers came in the early morning.

DANIELSON

SERVICE BATTERY RETURNS FROM NIANTIC CAMP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 20. — Captain Gordon J. Gale headed the Service battery that he commands back into Danielson today, which marked the end of the annual period of field service. This year this service was performed at Niantic, the first summer encampment of the 192d field artillery in this its home state since the war.

The local command has been away since early on the morning of the Fourth. The men were tanned to a bronze hue upon their return here, after more than two weeks in the open and the arduous assignments that are so different than most of them are accustomed to in their usual routine of daily endeavor.

The men expressed themselves as well pleased with their camp life experiences and also glad to be at home again. For numbers of them the period of encampment represents the only vacation they will get, if working as hard as most of them do in camp may be considered a vacation. In other words, these men use the time they are allowed away from their regular jobs each year to go out with the battery. Unlike most vacationists, they get paid, and in due course of time will receive checks for their service at Niantic.

The men got away from the state armory here today with no loss of time, having attended to such duties as is required of them in caring for equipment and the like upon return from camp.

Up to late this afternoon the week end was happily free from accidents of any serious consequences in the territory covered by the patrols from the Danielson barracks of the state police department, and that means practically all of Windham county and a considerable part of northern New London county, down to the Lisbon town line.

Only two arrests were reported, both for minor violations of the motor vehicle laws. One of these arrests was in Thompson, where a man was charged with operating a non-registered car, the other in Chaplin, where a motorist was found to be driving without having an operator's license.

Downs of Goodyear, chaplain of the Connecticut State grange. Committees to make the necessary arrangements will have been named within a short time.

May Be Opposum

Henry W. Pray of Ballouville identifies, according to descriptions of it, the strange animal that has been lurking about various parts of the borough the past week as an opposum. Mr. Pray, one of the best known hunters in these parts, writes that he caught some opposums in territory near here a few years ago. He states that they have much of the appearance of a big rat, and have a hook end of the tail that they may use to hang on by after climbing trees, as the strange animal does.

Mr. Pray also furnishes a description of the opposum and his habits. The description includes the information that the opposum is easily trapped, and possesses an appetite that is seldom satisfied. He proves a pest to the fruit grower, the agriculturist and the poultry farmer. This animal is found in various parts of the country, including the eastern states. It is said to possess an amount of cunning and pertinacity not exhibited by any other animal. When it is caught red-handed at its thieving it will resort to all sorts of strategems to escape. The opposum is not dangerous to human beings.

The political pot is beginning to boil, probably from the effects of the hot weather. The boiling has to do right now not so much with policies and programs as to speculation as to candidates in the coming fall elections, the caucuses for which are only a little way ahead. Killingly will elect two representatives in November to serve in the legislature in the session that will open in January, 1931. It may be called upon to furnish candidates for senator for the 28th district, but that matter isn't being pressed just now. Possibly some other town has a stronger claim to this honor.

There appears little doubt that the present representatives, Arthur W. Williams of Danielson, and William S. Hunter of Goodyear, both republicans, can have renominations if they desire them, at least that is what one hears where discussions of politics go on, and a republican nomination here for years past has been equivalent to an election.

JEWETT CITY

N. Y. EXCURSION TRAIN FAILED TO STOP SUNDAY

Jewett City people are not a little put out because the New York excursion train Sunday was not scheduled to stop here. It is not possible for local would-be excursionists, desirous of visiting the Metropolis, to get to Norwich by public carrier, in time to take the train in that city. Something less than a hundred, all dressed up and with nowhere to go, who saw the train go through, are said to have discovered a few empty seats. But as Boss Tweed once said, "What are you going to do about it?" However, the local "long green" is pretty good stuff to hang on to, which may be the procedure adopted, when future offerings are considered.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church of Pachaug is planning a lawn party to be given on the green. Enjoyable features will include music by the Voluntown band, and stereopticon pictures by L. D. Howe.

With the report appearing in the Danielson column of The Bulletin Saturday that the strange animal seen in that section on several recent occasions lays a square egg, no doubt can remain as to its positive identity. The only two critturs ever known to have laid square eggs, are the pterodactyl and the whangdoodle. The last specimen of the former, a relic of the protozoan age, is now to be seen as a stuffed specimen in the Bronx museum of natural history. Thus, it is to be seen that with one species accounted for the other is still at large. Some histories explain that the reason for square eggs is seen in the fact that these two strange animals, after laying their eggs, were wont to draw their nests about with them attached to their long hairless tails. With round eggs, the owners would be all worn out constantly picking them up when they rolled from the nest as the animals ran along the tops of the fences. A noted local hunter expects to go up the line this week, with traps, as the whangdoodle if captured alive, is worth a fabulous sum of any man's money.

A considerable number was interested Friday in the blowing up, by the use of dynamite charges, of a part of the north and south approaches to the Bishop's crossing overhead bridge, on the state highway. On accout of a sag in the road-bed, which had occurred over the deep fills of the approaches, these spots were condemned by the state highway department, blown out, and will be rebuilt by the M. A. Gammino Construction Co. This stretch of road, as well as the bridge, was built by other contractors, two years ago. It was learned Sunday that work on the River road to Norwich will not begin until September. Among the many changes to be made by the new survey, the famous Round Hill curve is to be moved a little distance to the west. The new survey will cut off the point of woods across the present road from J. B. Palmer's home.

Saturday, the mercury stood at 94 and 96 from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., and 90 at 9:30 p. m., with excessively high humidity. This furnished the most wilting combination of the summer.

ARRESTS AT NEW LONDON BEACH OF BATHING-HOUSE SOLICITORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 20—The police today started a drive on certain residents at Ocean Beach, who have converted a portion of their properties into bath houses. In order to derive remuneration through the erection of series of bathing houses they have become a source of annoyance, in their persistent soliciting of patrons from among visitors at the shore resort. During the day Sergeant John Courtney arrested three women, all Hebrews, who mingled with the throng and offered the rental of their respective bathhouses. The women are Rose Zimmerman, 21 Midway place; Mrs. B. Lutin, 76 Dyke street, and Mrs. B. Gold, 12 Midway place. The women were ordered to appear for a hearing in the police court tomorrow. For several weeks both visitors and merchants, the latter who pay large rental prices for their business, have made repeated complaints because of private property owners converting their realty into a commercial business instead of a residence. As a result of numerous complaints, Captain Charles A. Pinney ordered the wholesale soliciting of business for the bathhouse owners ended and any one found soliciting were taken into custody.

Beach Crowd 75,000.

The crowd at the beach today was again enormous, being estimated at over 75,000. Several thousand automobiles were parked on all streets and avenues leading to the beach, some of the drivers being compelled to do their parking nearly a mile away. The trolley cars were crowded to capacity practically the entire day, for the crowds began swarming to the shore during the early forenoon.

CHAUFFEUR'S BROTHER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

For several weeks Mrs. Homer Brooke (Isaphene Ives) now at Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has been visiting in New London where she is a property owner, having for a week been the guest of her cousins, Lieut. Governor and Mrs. Ernest E. Rogers, of Pequot avenue and since then at the Mohican hotel. This morning her chauffeur, Herbert Fisher, of Mt. Vernon received a telegram that his brother, Louis Fisher, had been killed in an auto accident near Guilford, Conn.

As Herbert Fisher has been in the employ of Mrs. Brooke and her late husband for over ten years, Mrs. Brooke changed her plans for a local stay and they drove back Sunday morning to Mt. Vernon.

During frequent visits in New London driving for Mr. and Mrs. Brooke Herbert Fisher has become known to many local residents, as a young man of fine traits and a most skillful driver. Those about the hotel who chanced to hear of the great grief which had so suddenly come to him expressed deep sympathy for him as he hurriedly made ready to return to his home. His brother was prominent in the Elks at Mt. Vernon, was married and has a family.

(An account of the fatality in which Louis Fisher lost his life appears on the front page of The Bulletin this morning.)

GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMICS

In pointing out that the late congress provided for expenditures of $200,000,000 in excess of those for the previous fiscal year, and in recognizing that there may be a decrease in revenue because of decreased business activity, President Hoover has taken early steps to see what can be done in the way of curtailments to offset the indicated results.

At other times when there seemed to be need for the cutting of government expenses it was accomplished with good results. The expectation, apparently, is that it can be repeated. At any rate the various department and agency heads are engaged in a study of their respective situations to see what can be accomplished. At other times it has been possible to delay certain projects which were not considered absolutely necessary. Part of the outlay authorized for the current fiscal year has been due to the desire to relieve the unemployment throughout the country and as the result various building projects have been authorized. As might be expected these are not to be interrupted. There is no thought of doing anything that will interfere with such employment as the appropriation has created, but the belief is that savings can be effected in other ways. What they will be, where they will be and the amount cannot be told until the survey has been completed, and even then the effectiveness of them will be better disclosd after the fiscal yar has ben compltd.

Mr. Hoover has spoken frequently against a deficit. He has stood strongly for keeping within the budget but now he is calling upon those who submitted department estimates to see if they cannot find ways and means of keeping the departmental expenditures at figures below budget estimates. It was not expected that any such effort would be necessary, but conditions have developed which require it and inasmuch as it has been done before there is precedent enough for doing it again.

What seems of much importance is that the president has inaugurated this effort early in the fiscal year in order that the department may have the benefit of practically the full year in effecting economies. If it is found possible to offset a large part of the increased expenditures which have been authorized it will be a helpful accomplishment.

THE COAL AGREEMENT

Getting an understanding between the coal miners and operators has been an easier task this year than on occasions when the agreement was about to expire. There will be no strike this year. There has been no prospect of any. The situation hasn't warranted any thoughts of such action. The fact is that the situation calls for anything but a strike and those engaged in negotiating a new agreement have fully appreciated it.

Six weeks before the present agreement expires a new agreement has been reached. That is no different than it should be but it is in marked contrast to other years. Furthermore the agreement is to run for a period of five years without any increase in wages and with certain modificatins in the agreement that both sides have been seeking for years.

This early agreement is due to the changed conditions in the coal industry. It is no secret that the use of anthracite has experienced a decided decrease since the coal shortage that was forced by the strike. It was that which turned consumers to the use of substitutes and that use has been steadily increasing, so much so that the industry is feeling the effects of it and with curtailed output the effect is likewise passed on to the miners. Having recognized that the goose that lays the golden eggs is sick the need is also seen of trying to restore it to its former good health. It certainly couldn't be done by boosting wages and the price of coal. It might be helped by keeping down prices and seeking greater use for the commodity.

In recognition thereof the negotiations were carried on by both sides with the interests of the industry and the employes duly considered. The operators have yielded a modified check-off, after having fought the idea for a generation but it was contributed in return for certain modifications by the miners which is expected to facilitate arbitration of disputes. It has been one of the most peaceful of conferences for years forced to a large degree by circumstances and the fact that the consumer, or former consumer, took steps for his own protection which made it necessary to give him a greater share of consumeration except footing the bills.

STANDS FOR REPEAL

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Massachusetts is a candidate for reelection in the fall. He is recognized as a sane legislator and held in high esteem in Massachusetts as well as in his own district. He has taken the position of many others that all laws should be enforced, and this included the dry law. But he has been studying the effects of that law and instead of standing on the fence between a wet and dry attitude he has climbed down and in a public address has declared for the repeal of the 18th amendment.

He knows, of course, that Massachusetts has by referendum asked for the repeal of the amendment and that in his own district that referendum showed his constituency as favoring such action by a small majority, but he bases his action upon his experiences and observations and a judgment of the facts as he believes them to exist.

He finds that it is undermining the Constitution and that it was a grave mistake to include it in that document. "Never in all history has such a heroic effort been made to force a restrictive policy upon reluctant and resisting citizens," in his opinion. He points out that the government has established a special navy, the sixth largest among the navies of the world, and an army of men larger than the marine corps for its enforcement. He knows of no more dastardly or heinous official atrocity than has been resorted to through pisoned alcohol. He insists that it is everywhere violated and that the shocking hypocricy and corruption have become a serious menace to the moral standards of our people. He insists that the benefits brought by the amendment must be retained but the evils must be ended and some other way of dealing with the problem is necessary.

Congressman Andrew didn't describe that method. Perhaps he has the Morrow plan in mind or some other, but it is apparent that he believes the time has come to offer his opposition to the continuance of the 18th amendment. He speaks early in the campaign in his state in which this question is going to have a prominent place. He may be inviting opposition to his candidacy but he has not allowed that to retard the expression of his attitude.

"UNDUE HASTE" UNFOUNDED

Great stress has been laid by the opponents of the London treaty upon the speed with which the advocates of the treaty are pushing it through to ratification. That might be a good talking point if it were so, but such doesn't appear to be the case.

When thought is given to the London pact it is inevitable that it should create a reference to the Washington treaty, and when it comes to talking about speed that treaty again presents itself for cnsideration.

There wasn't any such determined effort for delaying action on the Washington treaty, and yet that treaty called for a far greater change in the navy than is done by the London pact. We had suggested and were obligated under the Washington treaty to scrap many ships, some of them in the process of construction, and we were about to enter upon a policy of limitation in which there was much hope but no experience. The treaty was before the foreign relations committee but 17 days and received but eight hours of debate.

With the London treaty we had had the good results obtained from the Washington treaty as a guide. It is an extension of those benefits but it got 53 days of consideration before the foreign relations committee and it has already had about 55 hours of debate. Thus the claim that the treaty is being railroaded through congress falls of its own weight. Both in committee and in the senate it has received consideration for a much greater time. It has been debated from every conceivable angle and stands in the position of being delayed rather than hastened. It is not often that a treaty which has received such countrywide approval is given so much time by the senate. There is no ground for any talk about undue haste. Rather might stress be placed upon the unnecessary delay.

IRAQ GETS A CHANCE

When, following the war, the disposition of certain territory was under consideration by the league it was decided to create mandates and in that region known as Iraq, or perhaps more familiarly known as Mesopotamia, the British were placed in charge. They had waged a long and costly campaign there and since taking charge under the mandate it has been forced to large expenditures in order to maintain peaceful conditions and to carry on develpments.

Thus it can be appreciated that the British are satisfied over the treaty which has been concluded which gives independence to that territory when it joins the league of nations in 1932. Then it will assume full charge of its affairs under the agreement and the treaty recently negotiated and signed by the British will continue for a quarter of a century. It is provided that after 20 years a new treaty may be negotiated to safeguard air routes and British communicatins and in case of any disagreement it will be referred to the league council.

While there was a willingness on the part of the British to cast off the financial burdens which the mandatory control in Iraq involves, there was opposition from the religious minorities. They are skeptical about results, but for the most part British sentiment is favorably disposed to the action taken. There will be an exchange of diplomatic representatives and Iraq will be given a chance to show under the treaty terms what it can do for itself. What the future holds in store no one knows. Everyone has a right to his own views and it remains for Iraq to so direct its affairs that there will be satisfaction over the course adopted. That, however, may be much easier said than done.

SPEAKING OF REST CURES

It had been a busy Thursday for me. Busy—but not any more so than Wednesday had been, or any other day of the week. The days were all alike. They followed each other in a grim head stenographer and I expected succession of endless labor. I was soon to become "right-hand" helper to the president himself. That meant more drudgery, more responsibilities, more interruptions—and I was tired.

There was one thing for which I was thankful, I had two days of a rather chopped-up vacation still to spend and right now I was on the way to enjoy them with Eleanor Rogers. Eleanor had been secretary to the president a few years ago—the very same president who was now piling work onto me. Eleanor had escaped. She was married now and lived in a cosy little suburban bungalow—a wife and mother with no "job" to worry over. I sighed as I left the steaming train and started trudging up the hill toward the Rogers house. Eleanor was a lucky girl!

"I think," I confessed to myself, "that the very next time Donald asks me to marry him I'll say 'yes.' We'll have a nice little home of our own and a flower garden, and——"

But here was the house and I stepped up and rang the bell.

The next morning we were seated at the breakfast table. Eleanor was holding the baby on her lap and feeding him his farina as she laid her plans for the day.

"After we straighten up the house and wash the dishes," she said, "and I give baby his bath and wash out a few things and bake a cake, you and I'll sit down and have a real old-fashioned visit while I do the mending. I've been wondering how things are progressing at the office."

"Oh, they're getting along about the same as usual," I sighed; "there's plenty of work to do. The next time Donald asks me I think I'll say 'yes.' I'm sick and tired of all this drudgery."

"I poured Eleanor's coffe and set it in the exact center of the table out of the baby's reach. Eleanor gently extricated a fork from the baby's chubby little hand and then continued feeding him his farina while her coffee cooled in its cup.

"It's not only the work," I hastened to explain, "but it's the responsibilities. Those men need watching every minute!"

"Mother!" came a muffled voice from the hallway. I recognized it as that of Eleanor's eldest. "I'm going now."

"Bobbie!" called his mother as she left the table to warm the baby's milk. "Where are you going so early?"

"Why, to school, 'course!"

"Come here; I want to see you first."

Bobbie came and stood in the doorway, cap on his head, giving longing glances toward the front door.

"Did you wash?"

"Uh-huh!"

"Sure?"

"Mother, if you don't believe me, just come and look at the towel!"

Eleanor arose from the chair with the baby under her arm and the three disappeared in the general direction of the bathroom. Fifteen minutes later a clean and shining Bobbie started off to school.

"It's not only the responsibilities," I hastened to defend my decision as I poured Eleanor a fresh cup of coffee to replace the first, "but its' the interruptions."

"Mamma, I wanta get up."

Eleanor turned her attention toward the bedroom door just as the baby picked up his farina dish and dumped its contents on the floor.

"Just a minute, Joan," she called, "and mother'll will be in to dress you."

Eleanor sighed as she rose once more from her chair and deposited the baby in my lap.

"Speaking of rest cures," she called back to me as she disappeared toward the bedroom, "if it's a rest cure you want, don't expect to find it in married life!"

I gazed down at the baby. He had blue eyes and a cute little tuft of yellow hair on top of his head. He reached up and grabbed for my hair. He was laughing—and I laughed, too.

"Darlin'," I confessed aloud, "I believe your mother is right. If it's a rest cure I want I'd better not marry at all!"

"Honey," explained Donald ecstatically the following evening as we sat before the fireplace, "I'd just about given you up. I thought you never would consent to marry me. Did some good fairy whisper in your ear?"

"Why, yes!" I admitted as I looked into Donald's blue eyes. "It was a little fairy—a fairy who eats farina!"

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 20—The observations of Calvin Coolidge, the Bystanders distinguished colleague in the "colyuming" business, that if American money exported annually by tourists stayed at home it might provide half a million folks with jobs paying $1,000 a year, seem to have fallen lightly on congressional ears.

Perhaps his remarks came too late. Several senators and a flock of representatives were a-sailing the seas for foreign parts the day it was published.

More are to follow. Having to sit up with the naval treaty alone kept a number of senators from boarding ship, among them James Watson of Indiana.

Senator Watson is not sea-minded, it seems. He boasts that he never has been on a boat, not even a rowboat. The waters for which he holds master's papers for every sort of craft down to steam rollers are purely political.

Wife's Orders

But the Indianan is under sailing orders from higher authority. Mrs. Watson has prescribed a sea voyage, so he'll sail.

He'll go on a voyage of discovery to Europe when and if the senate actually quits for the summer.

It will not be a sight-seeing trip, just a six weeks' jaunt across and back to rest the senator for the political storms of the coming fall elections.

He had a near nervous crack-up back in those distant farm relief days in the senate which preceded the tariff era and the naval treaty epoch. That time he went to Florida for a rest.

To Philippines

Watson's colleague, Robinson, also plans a sea-going summer. He's heading the other way, however. A lone-handed tour of the Philippines is in prospect with a fall study of conditions there, from independence to tariff, in mind.

An Indiana friend of the Bystander's sees significance in this Robinson jaunt. He recalls that the late Senator Beveridge of the same state made a similar Philippine tour back during the "imperialism" hullabaloo days.

When he got back, Beveridge did a six-hour report to the senate on what he had seen and heard, and also disclosed himself as "off" the administration reservation on Philippine issues of the day.

"That's not the only Robinson-Beveridge parallel," said the Bystander's friend. "Sometimes I think Robinson must be modeling himself on the Beveridge political career."

YOUR HEALTH

Indigestion

By Henry N. Tihen, M. D.
Wichita, Kansas
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The newspapers today report the death of Mr. Smith, one of the prominent citizens of the community, who died suddenly last night of "acute indigestion." If one inquires more closely into the history of this sudden death the family is able to give the information that Mr. Smith had begun to notice shortness of breath on exertion, a little pain in the chest, and some fullness in the stomach region perhaps as long as a year ago. Mr. Smith diagnosed his own case as "indigestion." In spite of some urging from the family he had not bothered to consult his physician. Two weeks before his death the "indigestion" had been becoming worse, so Mr. Smith had dropped into a drug store and purchased a bottle of patent medicine recently heavily advertised in most of the newspapers of the country as of great value in all cases of "indigestion." Mr. Smith explained to his family that he didn't want to take the time to see his doctor and anyway this patent medicine probably would clear up the condition. Had Mr. Smith consulted his doctor as long as a year ago, his doctor would have told him that his indigestion was really heart disease and suitable treatment might have saved or greatly prolonged his life.

The newspapers today likewise carry a report of the death from appendicitis of Miss Jones, a popular young college student. Miss Jones had had occasional attacks of abdominal distress during the past year, which she and her family called "indigestion." These attacks usually subsided after a few days and the family thought it would be unnecessary expense and trouble to consult a doctor. One of these attacks began ten days ago but did not subside as usual after a few days. Finally when a doctor was consulted after a number of days the diagnosis of a general peritonitis from a ruptured appendix was made at once. Then in spite of the best possible treatment, the condition was past the point where treatment could be recovery.

These two cases illustrate two of the causes of indigestion. Indigestion is a term loosely applied to almost any kind of distress in the abdomen; therefore naturally the cause of the indigestion must be determined. The symptoms loosely designated by the term indigestion may be produced by gall-stones, heart disease, appendicitis, ulcer of the stomach, cancer, food poisoning, and by many other diseases. Therefore, if you are having "indigestion" consult your physician. Go into the condition with him carefully to determine the cause of the symptoms. Do not make your own diagnosis—do not do your own prescribing—do not be too busy to consult your doctor.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Careless Young Rat

The cost of carelessness is high!
You can avoid it if you try.
—Old Mother Nature.

Egret the White Heron was becoming quite accustomed to his strange home, which was, as you know, Farmer Brown's barn. Farmer Brown's Boy had made a pen for him there. He had made a pen by simply putting a wire door across an unused horse stall. There Egret was very comfortable. Sometimes Farmer Brown's Boy took him out and gave him a chance to walk about. It was funny to see him. He was very stately about it. He would lift his feet high with each step. Once in a while he would jump up in the air in the funniest way.

Of course, Egret didn't quite understand what was wrong with him. He know that there had been the bang of a terrible gun, something had hurt him, and when he had tried to fly one wing was quite useless. This was all he knew about it. Of course, he didn't understand how very lucky he had been in having Farmer Brown's Boy find him just when he did. Now the wing was better, and each time that Egret was taken out and given a chance to try it he knew that it was better.

Meanwhile he made the best of things. Farmer Brown's Boy brought him fish every day. This was very nice, but Egret felt that it would be much nicer to be able to catch his own fish.

"It isn't just the fish," thought Egret. "These fish are just as good as any I could catch. It's missing the fun of catching them. I should like to do a little fishing and a little hunting."

Now, some of the family of Robber the Rat, were living in Farmer Brown's barn. Of course, those rats knew that Egret was there. In fact, they had had a look at him the very first night that he had spent in the barn. The older rats didn't like the looks of Egret's long bill. No, sir, they didn't like the looks of that long bill. So they kept away; and they warned the young rats that if they were wise they would keep away. For a while the young rats heeded this good advice. Then some of them became bolder and would stop to peek into the pen where Egret was. Some of the boldest would even go into the pen, but they always took care to keep a safe distance from Egret and his long bill.

There was one young rat who got in the habit of stopping in that pen every night. There was something about that big white bird that interested him. He just couldn't go by and not stop to look. He was very quiet about it. He thought that he wasn't seen. He thought that that big white bird was asleep. But Egret wasn't asleep and Egret did see him. That is, he saw him sometimes. Sometimes it was so dark that Egret didn't see him, but he knew right where he was. Other times when the young rat came early and there was still a little light Egret saw him clearly.

"One of these nights I'll get that fellow," said Egret to himself. "I'll wait until he grows careless. He will grow careless. Most people grow careless after a bit."

So Egret bided his time, and it came about just as he had expected. That young rat did grow careless. He actually sat down with his back to Egret. Yes, sir, that's what he did. He had been watching Egret, and finally he turned around and, instead of running out immediately, he stopped and sat down. That young rat never knew what happened. So, sir, that young rat never knew what happened. But Egret had a late dinner that night and the young rat was never seen again. You may draw your own conclusions.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Trumbull Electric Mfg. Co., Plainville

This company was organized as The Trumbull Electric company of Hartford, January 31, 1899. The capital stock was $2,000.

The business was moved to Plainville on October, 1899 where it has since been located.

On January 23, 1903 the name was changed to The Trumbull Electric Manufacturing company.

On February 6, 1911 the capital stock was increased to $500,000, consisting of $200,000 preferred and $300,000 common. The preferred stock was taken up in May, 1927.

On the same day J. H. Trumbull was elected president, F. T. Wheeler, vice president, Henry Trumbull, secretary and treasurer. Since this time the only change made in these offices was the election of C. W. Jones as secretary April 28, 1924 and on his resignation February 1, 1927, S. S. Gwillim was elected secretary.

To begin with the company manufactured a ceiling rosette and small wiring devices, Mr. Wheeler being in charge of the mechanical end of the business, Henry Trumbull in charge of production and J. H. Trumbull the financial and sales departments. For a number of years J. H. Trumbull was the only salesman the company had.

From the manufacture of rosettes, the company gradually branched out and made other porcelain wiring devices, including receptacles, plug cutouts, porcelain and slate base knife switches, panelboards and switchboards, safety switches and motor control switches.

Their manufactured product is sold through electrical wholesale distributors throughout the United States, and their export business is handled largely through the International General Electric Co.

Last year the Trumbull Electric company acquired a controlling interest in the A. G. Electric company of Seattle and Los Angeles where factories are operated in the manufacture of equipment similar to that produced in the Plainville and Ludlow plants. The capital stock of the A. G. Electric Mfg. Co., is $500,000.

At present the manufacturing plant at Plainville occupies approximately 200,000 square feet of floor space with about 550 employes. A branch porcelain factory is located in Trenton, N. J., and a factory for the manufacturing of panels and switchboards is operated in Ludlow, Ky.

Branch offices are maintained by the company in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago and San Francisco. Twenty-five salesmen are employed.

Knee-Length Wraps

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Knee-length tunic coats without collars are a brand new form of evening wrap.

Made on lines which flare from the waistline to the knees, the tunics are the most ambitious version of the peplum style makers have produced as yet.

Taffeta and stiff lace are favored for the flared coats. They have three-quarter sleeves, as a rule, or long sleeves slit to the elbow.

Bad Breath More Than Social Error

Almost everyone is coming to realize nowadays that we usually have to go further than the mouth to find the real cause of bad breath. Bad breath is now regarded as a warning that something is wrong with our health—usually a badly clogged up system. When this is the case, by all means take some reliable laxative—preferable the delicious mint-flavored Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative.

Feen-a-mint is specially designed to bring about thorough, distress-free bowel action and to help in cases of headache, coated tongue, billiousness and general bad health arising from constipation.

Because you CHEW Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the QUANTITY swallowed as upon the thoroughness of ITS DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE AILMENTARY TRACT.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the HEALTH LAXATIVE. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

IS it any wonder that your youngster is nauseated if he is suffering from worms, poisoned with their secretions and robbed of nourishment? Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

NORWICH COMPANIES BACK FROM NIANTIC CAMP

Members of Battery B and Combat Train, 192nd field artillery, Connecticut National Guard, of this city, returned home Saturday noon from two weeks' encampment at Camp Trumbull, Niantic. Capt. Meredith Lee was in command of Battery B and Capt. William R. Denison had charge of the Combat Train. Only one prize was brought back by the Norwich boys, Battery B winning the tug of war contest. None of the men suffered any mishap at camp.

The clang and rattle of the caterpillar tread tractors as they maneuvered over the hard surfaced street announced the arrival of the troops, coming in through Water street, and then into Shetucket and rounding Shannon corner to come down through Franklin square and up Franklin street to the McKinley avenue armory. The companies started for home from the camp at 6:30 in the morning.

Due to the quick time made in the return from camp, dinner was served at the state armory. This afforded the soldiers a better meal than they would have obtained if camp had to be made along the route.

With fine weather prevailing most of the time the 192nd was able to put in considerable time in drills and maneuvers, including three overnight expeditions in which the regiment was drilled as a war strength battalion, each time under a different set of officers.

Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Colchester Ukranian church, Miss Jean Luchak, of Manhattan, N. Y., was united in marriage with Stephen Chop, of Palmertown. The ceremony was performed by the Ukranian priest, of Colchester. The matron of honor was Mrs. J. W. Woodruff, of Rockport, Texas. The maid of honor was Miss Sophie Chizik, of New York. The best man was Valentine Ross, famous runner for the New York Graphic in New York city. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin princess effect trimmed with maline. Her flowering veil was arranged in cap shape. She wore a string of pearls and carried a bouquet of white lilies and lilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honor wore yellow satin and carried yellow roses.

The frock of the maid of honor, Miss Sophie Chizik was flesh tint satin with which she wore a horse head hat. She carried tea roses. The three bridesmaids were Miss Anna Gontaryk of New York who wore green satin trimmed with green maline, Miss Helen Tynchak of Norwich, in a gown of peach net and Miss Jean Hanchuck, of New York, who wore orchid satin with marline trimming. Each carried a bouquet of tea roses.

COMBINED AGES NEARLY 200 YEARS

NONOGENARIAN BROTHERS TOGETHER FOR 97TH BIRTHDAY OF THE OLDER

Two nonogenarian brothers, Chauncey W. Johnson and Samuel Johnson, were together here Sunday to celebrate the birthday of the first named, a custom which they have annually carried out for a considerable period. Chauncey was 97 on Sunday and Samuel will be 95 on the 17th of next November.

Accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. F. Stearns Edick of Dumont, N. J., with whom he makes his home, Chauncey came here Saturday and they are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Johnson of 21 Lincoln avenue, where Samuel makes his home with his son, Henry D. Johnson.

There was a birthday dinner Sunday and in the afternoon the two brothers, with Mrs. Edick, motored with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson to revisit scenes of their boyhood and to call on friends and relatives. Among those whom they visited was Deacon A. A. Baker of Colchester, who will be 95 next Saturday, while another interesting incident of the trip was a visit to Columbia to see Chauncey's youngest great great niece, Norma Elizabeth Wolff, just two weeks old.

The two brothers were born in Exeter Society, town of Lebanon, sons of Ebenezer and Ruby Clark Johnson, whose family numbered ten children. These two brothers were the seventh and eighth in the family list and it is something of a coincidence that their lives have run much in the same lines in a business way and that they are the last of the children to survive.

Chauncey was a school teacher in his earlier years, but in 1863 came to Norwich, where he and his brothers, Samuel and Gilbert, bought out the grocery store business of Palmer Smith which was then in the Rockwell building, corner of Main and Market streets occupying a part of what is now the J. M. Young & Sons store on Market street.

In 1864 Chauncey entered the hotel business by taking over the American house and from then on he followed this line as long as he continued in active business life. In the spring of 1871 he bought the Wauregan hotel business, continuing there for five years, and subsequently he was connected with hotels in Kentucky, Ohio, Rhode Island, New York and at Watch Hill, until he gave up active business life a little over ten years ago. Besides his daughter who is with him here, he has one granddaughter, Mrs. John Ross Marshall, and two great grandchildren, John Ross Marshall, Jr. and Judith Fay Marshall.

Samuel Johnson also had a long career in the hotel business, which he entered about 1885, having previously been in the coal business in this city on what was the Vaughn lot on Franklin street, which is where The Bulletin building stands now. He was in the hotel business in New Haven, New Britain, Ansonia, Westerly, Watch Hill and Narragansett Pier up to 1920 when he lost his eyesight. For a number of years past he has made his home with his son on Lincoln avenue.

EXPECTED TO RECOVER AFTER DRINKING CREOLIN

In a fit of depression Mrs. Antoni Poreda, about 45, of No. 9 Fifth street, attempted to commit suicide about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon at her residence, by drinking the contents of a 3-ounce bottle of creolin. It is understood that the act was committed while members of the family were in the house. Late Sunday evening Mrs. Poreda was in a conscious state and was reported to be in a pretty fair condition. She is expected to recover.

Shortly after the bottle of poison was emptied by Mrs. Poreda, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve was summoned and immediately upon arrival at the home gave preliminary attention. She was then rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital, where further attention was given her and it was said that it is likely she will recover.

Trolley Waiting Room Discontinued

The Connecticut Trolley company has discontinued its waiting station next to Nowatzky's on Franklin square, after having been located there for four years. Previous to that time it was in the Sellas building on the square for many years, and had been maintained by the company for its patrons, whom it found no longer used it. This was one reason why it was closed and because of steps taken to curb expenses.

Heat Prostration Victim

James Murphy, over 70, of No. 52 Franklin street, was the first victim of heat prostration during the current terrific heat spell, being overcome by the heat on Saturday. A call was sent in for the W. W. Backus hospital ambulance, which responded, but its services were not needed as Dr. John W. Suplicki was summoned and revived the man.

NO LIABILITY FOR AUTO DAMAGED AT MYSTIC BRIDGE

Even though the operator of the bridge at Mystic might have been at fault in the operation of the bridge on July 4 and caused damage to the automobile owned by Leland Balch of Lowell, Mass., there is no liability on the part of the state. The state highway commissioner, John Macdonald, has been so advised by Assistant Attorney General Bernard Kosicki.

Singularly, two claims were presented to the highway department for damages to automobiles over the holiday, by the claimed negligence in the operation of the Mystic bridge, G. Raymond Ledyard of Mystic claimed that the windshield of his automobile was smashed when his car crashed into a gate at the bridge on July 3, which, he asserted, was suddenly closed in front of the automobile. The attorney general finds this accident was caused through the faulty operation of the Ledyard car.

The damage to the Balch car was caused when, after he had received a signal to proceed on the bridge, the gate was lowered and a heavy chain attached ripped two holes in the top of the car. This accident seems to have been caused, in the opinion of the attorney general, through the negligence of a state employe in the operation of the gates, but there is no liability on the part of the state, and the only recourse on the part of Balch is to the claims committee of the legislature.

TO STREW AHEARN'S ASHES ON OCEAN FROM PLANE

The body of Roy Ahearn, stunt pilot who was killed at Teterboro flying field near Hackensack, N. J., Wednesday, while attempting an outside loop in a small airplane will be cremated and the ashes strewn from a plane into the Atlantic off the Florida coast, in compliance with his wish, according to Mrs. Ahearn, who arrived at Hackensack from Hollywood, Fla., Saturday to make arrangements for the funeral.

Mrs. Ahearn told Chief of Police Siccardi of Hackensack that the flier on several occasions when discussing airplane accidents had asked that this disposition be made of his body if he were killed in a crash. Funeral services were held Saturday in a funeral home in Hackensack and Mrs. Ahearn plans to leave for Florida with the ashes in a few days.

Ahearn was the aviator who did stunt flying and took up passengers about a year ago from Beebe's field on Gallows hill in this city. He also did flying from the Groton airport.

"NUMBERED MAN" SCHEME PRODUCES MOB SCENE

There was close to a mob scene late Saturday afternoon in front of the Palace theater when a group of boys intent on finding one of the "numbered men" from whom to get passes to the play of that name at the theater, accosted a colored deacon from one of the West Side churches who had come to the Palace to ask a donation for his church.

When the boys rushed at him in their eagerness, he thought he was in a holdup and his hands went up in the air, while they started to search him, but he broke away and ran with the boys in pursuit until he took refuge on a trolley car.

Although they were wrong in guessing he was a "numbered man," they were right when they tried it on Officer John Donovan and some of the taxi drivers, whom Manager R. R. Hamilton had supplied with passes for distribution to those who located the right "numbered man."

Health Means Clear Skin
"For nine years I was troubled with acne. I tried everything I could think of and everything people told me but it didn't do any good. Last winter a nurse where I was working told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build up my system from the inside, so I did. When I had taken three bottles my face was 95% better. I kept on and now I haven't a single pimple on my face, chest or back."—Mary L. Heinitz, Carrington, North Dakota.

McFARLANE TAKES METRO OPEN TITLE IN PLAYOFF WITH JOHNNY FARRELL

ELMSFORD, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—A garrison finish enabled Willie MacFarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., to beat Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., by two strokes in their 36-hole playoff for the Metropolitan open golf championship today.

Trailing by a stroke at the end of 33 holes of play, MacFarlane drew level at the 34th, took a one stroke lead at the 35th and added another stroke to his advantage at the home hole. He covered the 36 holes in 142 to 144 for Farrell. At the conclusion of the regular 72-holes of championship play yesterday, Farrell and MacFarlane wound up in a tie at 280.

The two former national open champions, MacFarlane in 1925 and Farrell in 1928, engaged in a great shot-making duel in the play-off. Both covered the first nine holes in 34, one under par. MacFarlane gained a one stroke lead at the tenth and another at the thirteenth but Farrell levelled the count with a three at the sixteenth where MacFarlane needed five. The next three holes were halved, each coming home in 36 for an 18-hole total of 70.

MacFarlane went into a three-stroke lead on the first four holes of the afternoon round. Farrell cut this down to one, however by the time the turn was reached. MacFarlane turned in 35 to Farrell's 36.

The Mamaroneck star evened the count at the twenty-ninth with a par four and, after the 30th and 31st were halved, went to the front with a par four at the 32nd where MacFarlane was trapped off his second shot.

With the finish only five holes away, Farrell looked to be "in" but MacFarlane levelled the match once more at the 34th with a birdie three. Farrell got into trouble on both the last two holes and needed fives while MacFarlane was down in four in each instance.

SHYMAS SPLIT EVEN WITH SAINTS IN WEEK END BILL

The Shyma team split even in the week end series with the St. James team of Danielson, shutting out the Saints 4 to 0 on Saturday but had the game at Danielson on Sunday stolen from them, 13 to 12. Sammy Raymond pitched brilliant ball for the Shymas in Saturday's game, striking out 9 and allowing but 5 scattered hits.

Sunday's game at Danielson was more or less of a farce and was marred by crude umpiring. The Shymas outhit the Saints 20 to 13 but they were out-umpired by the Danielson official who made ground rules and other rules to suit his fancy. The umpiring was of such a calibre that the management of the Shymas declare that the team has played its last game in Danielson. The scores:

CARDS HAND BROOKLYN A 15-6 TRIMMING

BROOKLYN, July 20—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals pounded four Brooklyn pitchers hard to inflict a 15 to 6 beating upon the slipping National league leaders today. Their 17 hits included home runs by Watkins and Frisch. Wright hit a home run for Brooklyn.

The Robins got off to a two run lead in the first inning but the Cardinals pounded Clark out of the box with a seven run assault in the second frame, after which the St. Louisans were never headed.

Catcher Al Lopez of Brooklyn and Pitcher Flint Rhem of St. Louis were both put out of the game by Umpire McGrew early in the proceedings.

BASS-CANZONERI BOUT TOPS BOXING THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, July 20—(AP)—Another dull boxing week finds Benny Bass' ten round clash with Tony Canzoneri the outstanding bout on the national schedule.

Bass and Canzoneri head an all-star show at Philadelphia tomorrow night. They have met once before, Canzoneri gaining a close decision over the Philadelphia slugger in a 15-round struggle in Madison Square Garden that gained general recognition for Tony as featherweight champion of the world. Since then Tony has lost his 126-pound crown and Bass has won one—the somewhat synthetic junior lightweight title.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday—At Philadelphia, Matty White, Philadelphia, vs. Mickey Doyle, Pittston, Pa., Emory Cabana, Philadelphia, vs. Joey Hatfield, Philadelphia, and Allie Wolff, Brooklyn, vs. Tony Tedesco, Philadelphia, all 6; at Coney Island stadium, New York, Jack Gross, Philadelphia, vs. Eddie Benson, New York, and Ted Sandwina, Sioux City, vs. Al Walker, New York, all heavyweights, each 10; at Dexter Park, Brooklyn, Eddie Murdock, Tulsa, vs. Freddy Huber, New York, welterweights, and Willie Lamorte, Newark, vs. Blas Rodriguez, Mexico, bantamweights, each 10; at Louisville, Paul Swiderski, Syracuse, vs. Al Friedman, Boston, heavyweights, 10; at Boston Braves Field, Paul Pantello, Chicago, vs. Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., heavyweights, 10.

Thursday—At Cincinnati, Bat Battalino, Hartford, vs. Cecil Payne, Louisville, featherweights, 10.

GIANTS POUND OUT 13-5 VICTORY OVER THE CUBS

NEW YORK, July 20—(AP)—The Giants spotted the Champion Cubs four runs in the first two innings, but walloped their way to a 13 to 5 victory. As the Cardinals clouted out a victory over Brooklyn, the Cubs kept pace with the Robins.

Both starting pitchers were rapped hard, but Mitchell who relieved Fitzsimmons for the Giants, blanked the Cubs for the last six innings to get credit for the victory.

Fred Leach led the Giants at bat with four hits, one of which was a home run. Hack Wilson found Fitzsimmons for his 27th homer of the year in the third inning. He was the first man at bat.

GRANT WINS CLAY COURT TENNIS CROWN

ROCK HILL TENNIS CLUB, Kansas City, July 20—(AP)—Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, today won the national clay courts tennis singles championship, defeating W. F. (Junior) Coen, of Kansas City, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Bobby Grant lugged home the Noyes trophy yesterday, and he would have taken home the clubhouse and the Norwich inn if they had been up for prizes.

The curly haired youngster from Hartford was the cream of the field of the tournament and swung a mean golf club. The brilliance of Grant in the tournament was rival only by the brilliant display of golding stamina by A. H. Chase in eliminating Dow Ahern.

One of the other outstanding players of the tournament was Young Gil Smith of Staten Island who romped through his matches in fine shape. The 15-year-old boy playing a sterling game and in a few more years it will take a Bobby Jones to beat him.

Bill Skelly, in commenting on the final match, said that he made just as good shots and just bad shoots as the finalists, the only difference being that they had more good shots while he had more bad shots.

Bert Gager, in comparing his drives with those of Grant, remarked that his drives were too short on one end.

Frank Murdy, who was an interested spectator during the tournament, had a very unique philosophy of the game. When told that Bobby Grant had shot a 71 Frank said, "Yes, and he had to walk 18 holes to get a 71. Why I can go out and get my 71 in four holes. Why walk eighteen?"

The tournament was very well conducted and the prizes which were sterling silver were exceptionally handsome.

U. S. DAVIS CUP PLAYERS DISPOSE OF ITALY

AUTEUIL, France, July 20—(AP)—Dividing the last two singles matches, America's youthful Davis cup tennis team brushed aside Italy today, four matches to one, and gained the challenge round with France.

George Lott of Chicago gave America its fourth successive victory in the series by defeating Georgio de Stefani, ambidextrous Italian, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, but the final point of the tie went to Italy when Baron Humbert L. de Morpurgo, ace of the Italian team, defeated Wilmer Allison of Ft. Worth, Texas, 7-5, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Today's matches were in the nature of exhibitions, for the United States had clinched the series by winning the doubles yesterday.

The challenge round against France, holders of the cup for three years, will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM BEATS VELVETMEN TO EVEN TAFTVILLE VILLAGE SERIES

Ray Connors, highly trauted Providence college hurler on the mound for Army and Navy, proved that he was the type of pitcher that experts said he was, when he let the J. B. Martin down with 7 scattered hits, fanned 10 and enable the service boys to draw on even terms in the series with their village rivals.

Connors pitched splendid ball throughout the contest and with the exception of the 4th, when the Velvetmakers scored their only tally, was complete master of the situation.

Lindner, on the other hand, was hit hard and often, being touched for 11 solid hits, 5 of which went for extra bases.

J. B. Martin was first to score. Liberty opened the 4th with a single, Cimmy laid down a neat bunt, but Connors threw it into the stands, Liberty stopping at third. Murphy drove a long sacrifice fly into center to score Nap, with the only run the Velvetmakers could make.

In the next inning Yerrington got a boundary belt over the left field fence to knot the count at one all, but not for long. In the very next stanza, Lacroix and P. Finn singled, Lamory laid down a bunt, forcing Finn at second, Dugas doubled scoring Lacroix, S. Finn got a pop single over second and Lamory and Dugas tallied to make the day's total four. Dugas and P. Finn divided the batting honors. The score:

MONTVILLE INDIES WIN EASILY FROM COLORED GIANTS

The Montville Independents outslugged the New London Colored Giants Sunday afternoon at Caulkin's field at New London, by a score of 14 to 10 which proved to be a free hitting contest. Auwood and Nortosky led the hitting for the Independents, Nortosky collecting a double and two singles. Walter Auwood, star of the 1920 Robert Gair team, came back into harness for the first time in ten years and collected four singles out of five trips to the plate. Sheldon and Fulford led the Giants, Sheldon collecting two homers one trip and a double; Fulford collecting 3 singles. The score:

MALE BASS WATCHMAN OVER NEST AND YOUNG

Who is more of a home-body, Mr. or Mrs. Bass? Which parent deserts home and children for other fields, leaving family responsibilities to its burdened mate?

Supt. John W. Titcomb of the department of fish and game epitomizes the piscatorial situation with the comment, "It's a case where nobody works but father.

"It is well known to anglers that the male bass, both largemouth and smallmouth (and this pertains to sunfishes also), protect the nest while the eggs are incubating and for a short period after the fry have hatched, after which time the young scatter to forage for themselves," he explains.

A warning to anglers that a great deal of damage to tomorrow's stock of game fish may be done by not throwing back the bass hooked during the closed season when the bass is protecting its nest is given by Mr. Titcomb. While protecting the nest, the bass resents any intrusion and will seize almost anything dropped upon the nest. The closed season is from fall until July 1. The bass will take even an unbaited hook dragged over it, and the capture of the males is easy and without sport.

For the destruction of every adult bass thus removed from the nest there is a conservatively estimated amount of destruction of from 500 to 25,000 eggs or fry. In normal seasons in this state the spawning season is over by July 1, although in cold water lakes it may extend to the middle of July.

Bass are not indigenous to Connecticut waters, and were introduced here indiscriminately, the first about 50 years ago. They thrive only in suitable environment which includes temperature and proper food, and where the environment is not perfect the fish does not provide the best of sport. The superintendent points out that in the largest natural lake in Connecticut, Bantam lake, fishermen seek out the bass in certain isolated spots where the species find conditions best.

The responsibility of the male bass includes not only the rearing of the young but the building of the nest. When the shelter is constructed on the bottom, he goes courting and brings back the lady of his choice, but their domestic happiness is short-lived. When the eggs are deposited on the pebbles, the male takes complete charge of the establishment and the female leaves, apparently with few regrets.

He remains on guard day and night without eating or sleeping, fanning away small particles which would smother the spawn. The latter hatch out in a few days. The nursery period follows, when the young are helpless, and after a week or ten days they are ready to go out for a swim with daddy and learn to forage for themselves. The young live on plankton for about 25 days, and then become cannibalistic.

ROYALS CLASH WITH THERMOS TONIGHT

The Royals, the only team in the City league to upset the Thermos Bottle in the current chase, open the sixth week of play tonight with the leaders. With the exception of the Royal contest, the Pottlers have found the going easy in the championship chase and boast nearly a 200 point lead as the schedule nears the half way mark.

The official standing to date is as follows:

Thermos	6	1	.857
Royals	4	2	.667
Citizens	4	2	.667
Italians	2	3	.400
Smoke Shop	1	5	.167
Ideals	1	6	.143

Mike Panek, pilot of the Royal outfit, is confident that his club will again spill the leaders this evening. He has groomed Tommy Simcox for the contest and the "old master" will start in where he left off three weeks ago. On the other hand Bill Hastedt is certain that his club will wipe out the Royal blot by administering to the runners-up a severe lacing.

The remainder of the schedule for the week is as follows:

Tuesday—Italian club vs. Smoke Shop.
Wednesday—Polish Citizens vs. Ideals.
Thursday—Royals vs. Italians.
Friday—Smoke Shop vs. Ideals.

STORRS CONTEST HENS ARE SLACKENING UP

As should be expected the pullets in the 19th Storrs egg laying contest are decreasing in egg production from week to week. This week's lay which amounted to 4,170 eggs or 59.5 per cent, is 121 eggs less than last week and only 87 eggs less than for the corresponding week a year ago.

The birds now have a grand total of 161,177 which is a lead of 1,253 eggs over last year. This, of course, means only a little over one egg per bird which indicates that the birds in the present competition must continue to lay at a good rate in order to exceed the previous year's total.

This year for the 37th week the heavy breeds captured first and second places while last year for the same period the Leghorns made a clean sweep. A pen of Barred Rocks owned by Pratt Experiment Farm from Morton, Pa., was an easy first for the week with a lay of 63 eggs. Second honors were distributed amongst a pen of Barred Rocks and a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned respectively by R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., and Edward N. Larrabee of Peterboro, N. H. These two pens shelled out 62 eggs apiece.

There were no less than six pens tied for third place, five pens of White Leghorns and one of Barred Rocks. The White Leghorn entries are Hanson's Leghorn Farm of Corvallis, Ore., Alfred J. O'Donovan from Katonah, N. Y., Hollywood Poultry Farm of Woodinville, Wash., Cloverdale Poultry Farm from Cortland, N. Y., and Steelman Poultry Farms from Lansdale, Pa., while the Barred Rocks were bred by James Dryden of Modesto, Calif. These six pens laid 48 eggs each.

Fourth honors were also bunched consisting of four pens of Leghorns and one of Barred Rocks. The Rocks are entered by Spring Brook Poultry Farm of South Wethersfield, Conn., and the Leghorns by George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Mich., Toivonen Leghorn Farm at Girard, Pa., Peetoocee Poultry Plant from Telford, Pa., and William J. Boyle of North Norwich, N. Y. These pens all came through with a score of 57 eggs each.

All the pens seem to be batting at about the same rate except in the Barred Rock class where we find that a pen owned by Pratt Experiment Farm of Morton, Pa., has jumped into second place thus relegating the pen owned by R. Walter Bishop of Guilford, Conn., into third place.

A pen of Rhode Island Reds from Peterboro, N. H., is the first pen of that breed to reach the 2,000 egg mark. This makes two pens of birds in the contest that are heading towards the 3,000 egg goal.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts West Cornwall, 1541. Jack Wrennal Barton, Nr. Preston, Eng., 1661.

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 1936. Pratt Experiment Farm, Morton, Pa., 1524. R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, 1821.

White Rocks—E. H. Ricker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 1743. Adam F. Poltl, Hartford, Wis., 1589. Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 1515.

Rhode Island Reds—Edw. N. Larrabee, Petersboro, N. H., 2049. F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1934. F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1952. Homestead Farms, Newtown, 1947.

White Leghorns—Toivonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 2217. Steelman Poultry Farms, Lansdale, Pa., 1975. Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 1941. Hollywood P. Farm, Woodinville, Wash., 1931. Bournedale Farm, Millerton, N. Y., 1903.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Freedom or Death!" Wildly rings the cry through the prison yard. In the cells tier upon tier takes up the dreadful cry—"Freedom or Death!" Let us hack our way out of here, or let us die! We do not care!

This is the spirit of "Numbered Men," that thrilling new picture of prison life which the Palace theatre is now presenting to its patrons. Here is a film that gives the true and terrible story of life behind the bars. One senses the mad longing for freedom, the insane desire to fight one's way out into the clear air, where the grass is green and the horizon is one's only barrier. There is hopelessness and despair and mad plotting in this film, for it is the saga of men who have grown so desperate they have nothing further to lose except their lives, and they care not if they lose them.

Come to the Palace but be prepared for strong drama. This is no picture for mollycoddles. It is strong, stern stuff. Warner Brothers have spared neither time, money, nor talent to make this the real prison picture of the decade. Here for the first time we get an accurate and shuddering picture of what goes on in the minds of men condemned to live behind bars.

Come and see the tremendous cast which has been gathered for this screen masterpiece.

Beginning Wednesday and for the next three days, the Palace presents another top notch double feature bill. One of the pictures is the new musical romance, "Not Damaged," with beautiful Lois Moran, Robert Ames and Walter Byron. The other is "Pardon My Gun," an all talking and singing rodeo comedy starring Sally Starr and George Duryea.

WOMEN SEEK MEMBERSHIPS IN HOUSE OF LORDS

LONDON, July 20—(AP)— The fight for women in the house of lords is being agitated once more in English feminist circles.

Viscountess Rhondda, one of Britain's leading business women, who has supported the question for more than 10 years, is canvassing several peers and peeresses in their own right, who would be eligible to sit in the lords.

In this way she hopes to prepare a favorable reception for a bill which Lord Astor may introduce in the fall.

Lady Rhondda fought the matter through the courts 10 years ago, but the Earl of Birkenhead, who then was lord chancellor, ruled against her claim that she was entitled to a place in the house of lords.

Lady Rhondda and other women who are peeresses in their own right, frequently have been urged to stand for the house of commons, but most of them have refused on the grounds that their membership in that body might compromise their fight for women in the lords.

Crush Long Gloves.

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Long gloves for daytime wear should be worn crushed down at least two inches below the elbow, says a male dressmaker of influence.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Nearly all produce continued to move very slowly on the morning's market with low prices prevailing on practically all produce. Beets, carrots, cabbage and squash were difficult of disposal even at the low prices, and only beans of fancy grade would attract attention. Sweet corn was quite plentiful and in good demand. Offerings were principally the white, but the yellow will probably be on the coming week. Native tomatoes and cucumbers are still in light supply.

Native Astrachan and transparent apples were more plentiful and fast improving in size and quality. Blueberries were quite freely offered but the season for raspberries is about at an end.

Shipped in potatoes, cantaloupes, peaches and plums were liberal.

Eggs were firmer in the better grades. The arrival of summer visitors from neighboring states appeared to have a marked effect upon demand and price trends.

Liberal supplies of native produce of excellent quality are available at the retail stores at prices no one man afford to pass by.

A FEW BUSINESS EXECUTIVES SEE SIGNS FAVORABLE TO RECOVERY OF INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)— Business activity was at ebb tide of midsummer during the past week, but the stock market professed to feel the first faint currents of the seasonal upsurge which normally becomes pronounced after Labor day.

While the stock market's reputation as a forecaster of business trends has been seriously damaged during the past year, this latest note of optimism was at least sufficient to cause a little more cheer in business circles.

Executives of a few large corporations—notably Radio, DuPont and Montgomery Ward—ventured to state that conditions seemed favorable to recovery.

The great steel industry continued to drag along at about 58 per cent of rated capacity.

Coppers statistics for North and South America showed a moderate gain in stocks during June, despite the price reductions and curtailment of production. The price for red metal was rather widely quoted at 11 cents a pound by the end of the week, a drop of half cent, other non-ferrous metals were somewhat firmer.

Commodity prices, on the whole, were still under pressure, although several observers thought the decline appeared to be flattening out. The grain and cotton markets displayed a firm tone late in the week, in response to unfavorable weather.

Credit remained extremely plentiful at this center, and there was some further easing of the situation in other centers.

A slight firming of longer maturity credits, however, gave rise to predictions that the bottom of the decline in money rates had been reached, at least in the New York market.

WILLIAM WARREN'S ADDRESS BOTTLING ESTABLISHMENT

George Black, of the Delaware state police has requested the New London police to maintain a lookout for a young man who claimed to be William Warren, of 24 Hamilton street, this city, and who escaped from the police in Wilmington, where he was being held a prisoner for the New London authorities on a charge of automobile theft. The state police hold a warrant for Warren's arrest on charges of larceny and breaking jail. Warren, it is believed, is a fictitious name for his name does not appear in the city directory nor is he known here. The Hamilton street address is not a residence, but a bottling establishment. The young man is described as being 27, about five feet, seven inches in height and weighs about 135 pounds, of dark complexion, dark, curly hair. When he escaped from jail, Warren was attired in a blue shirt, brown trousers and shoes. Warren stole a Ford sedan in this city last Thursday night and Ludwig Slock, the owner, has started for Wilmington to claim the auto.

Football experience proved of aid to Bruce Turner, fourteen-year-old Reidsville, (N. C.) youth, in capturing a burglar. Going home after midnight, Turner encountered a giant as he opened the door. The prowler shook Turner off and started to make his escape. Turner floored the man with two flying tackles and sat on the prowler until members of the family came to his aid.

POETRY

On Being Splashed With Mud By a Motor-Lorry

For one wild moment all was red,
And I was mud from toe to head;
Then, as I scraped myself, I said:—

"O, driver and that stoker pup,
Who filled for me this bitter cup,
I hope your beastly thing blows up!

I hope you get a skid that wrecks
The whole machine and clears the decks;
I hope you break your wicked necks!

I hope that vengeance, stern and just,
May fall on all concerned: I trust
The firm that owns the thing goes bust.

I hope its trade is dead as dead,
I hope that bankruptcy's ahead;
I hope its chairman begs his bread!

I also hope the fates may bring Within this ruin's widening ring
The firm that made and sold the thing.

I hate the bus, I hate its crew,
Its owners, makers, hirers, too;
I hate them all,—I do, I do!

And nothing that is bad can be
Too bad in any small degree
For those who splashed this mud on me!"

By this the thing was out of sight;
However, I perceived a slight
Improvement in my wretched plight.

—"Lucio," in Manchester Guardian.

The Country Road

Little, winding country road,
Wandering along,
Far from noisy city streets
With their crowded throng;

Hesitating for a while
By a wayside pool,
Paddling with dusty feet,
In the waters cool;

Buttercups and daisies catch
At the ragged hem
Of your tattered gown, and you
Sweetly nod to them.

Big trees arching overhead
Shade you for a while;
Friendly farmsteads, now and then,
Greet you with a smile.

Shadowy with fading light,
Wet with morning dew,
Little, winding country road,
May I walk with you?

—Margaret H. Tomkins, in the Detroit News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Jones—You say you never wake up your wife when you get home? How do you do it?

Smith—Oh, my wife never sleeps.—Exchange.

"Do you ever agree with your wife?"

"I did once, when our house was burning down and we both tried to get out first at the door!"—Nebelspalter.

"John," whispered Mrs. Singerton, straightening up in bed, "what's that noise in the library?"

"Must be history repeating itself!" muttered John drowsily.—Exchange.

Writer—I sent you the manuscript of my new book the other day. How do you like it?

Publisher—It contains much that is good and much that is new. Its shortcoming is that the good is not new and the new is not good.—Detroit News.

Mrs. Parsons—If woman was given the credit she deserves I don't think man would be quite so prominent in the world's history.

Mr. Parsons—Quite true, my dear. If she could get all the credit she wanted he'd be in the workhouse.—Exchange.

Piute Pete—Hey, Sam. Is that the wife ye ordered o' that there mail order matrimony agency?

Husband of the Skinny Person—Yeh, but dern it, the post office ruined 'er when they run 'er through the cancelin' machine.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"I heard you were out on strike, O'Brien."

"Oi am; I struck for shorter hours."

"And did you get them?"

"Oi did not. Oi'm working the whole twenty-four hours now."

"What at?"

"Looking for work."—R. R. Magazine.

Young soothsayer to her client:

"I see by your hand that you will marry!"

"Wonderful!" said the girl.

"You are engaged to a man named Leslie Smith," continued the soothsayer.

"That's really uncanny!" gasped the girl. "How can you discover that name in the lines of my hand?"

"Lines?" cried the soothsayer. "Who said anything about lines? You are wearing the ring that I gave back to the fellow three weeks ago."—Lustige Blaetter.

KALEIDOSCOPE

According to census statistics, Los Angeles' oldest citizen is an Indian, who gave his age as 130.

Ducks hatched in incubators are not allowed to go swimming until they are seven weeks old, in order to wait until their feathers are well oiled.

A German professor has evolved a method of obtaining sugar, for feeding animals, from waste wood, and then converting the residue of the wood into briquettes for fuel.

Harold Berryman was half ashamed of himself when he bid up to $10 to obtain two barrels of "unsight and unseen" household articles sold from the auction block at Billings, Mont. But shame was soon replaced by pride and joy when he discovered the barrels contained coin-silver plates and fragile china worth at least $500.

A new kind of plywood, which is said to be as hard as stone, has just been patented at Stockholm, the invention of two Swedish engineers, J. A. Gustafsson and Harry von Eckermann. Exhaustive tests are said to have proved that this material, which can be manufactured from any kind of wood, produces sparks when struck with a hammer. The hardness of the plywood is caused by a special chemical compound with which the surface of the wood is treated.

AUTO FOR BATHHOUSE GETS VISITOR ARRESTED

New London, July 20.—Mary Tangardy, Springfield, Mass., was among the crowd today at Ocean Beach and like thousands of others desired to enjoy the bathing, but unlike the multitude of diversion seekers she did not desire to obtain a bathhouse in which to disrobe. Instead the woman used an automobile to don her bathing suit and in so doing she was discovered and arrested by Patrolman George Bruhns. The woman furnished a bond for her appearance in the police court Monday. Two other bathers, a man and a woman, were fined in court three weeks ago for using an automobile as a bathhouse.

MONTVILLE

Austin C. Kellogg, of Uncasville, operating a Chevrolet truck, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer Howard F. Lamphere on a reckless driving charge, on complaint of A. P. Rayside, Mercer building, New London. His case will be heard Monday at 9 a. m. before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church.

William Phillips of Montville, operating a Dodge sedan owned by his father, George Phillips, was arrested late Sunday afternoon by Officer Lamphere, who witnessed the accident at Uncasville Four Corners, for failing to grant right of way. Phillips collided with a car operated by Edward T. Johnson, of 15 Rockland street, Wethersfield, Conn., and owned by Adolphus Griffin of the same address. The accused will explain Wednesday at 11 a. m. to Justice Church.

The second annual outing and field day for the employes and their families of the Uncasville-Shelton Co., was held Saturday at the Vasa Country club ground, at Poquonoc, Groton. A chicken dinner was served at noon to about 400. A program of sporting events followed the dinner. Early in the evening, clam chowder was served which completed the schedule for the enjoyable day. Kaneen furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000. Kaneen and Edward F. Bell, the latter proprietor of a small grocery store, 97 Green street, were arrested last Thursday by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harry W. Avery, of Windham, when a search of the premises of both stores was made, upon a warrant issued by Commissioner Corcoran after a stool pigeon, Henry Russell, of this city, had made oath that he had purchased liquors of both Kaneen and Bell. In Kaneen's market was found a small quantity of gin and in the grocery store was found a pint of whiskey, which Bell contends was there for his personal consumption. Bell will be given a hearing before Commissioner Corcoran tomorrow afternoon.

CHICAGO'S SOCIETY GIRLS MIX CAREERS AND PARTIES

CHICAGO, July 20—(AP)—Chicago society girls find time to mix business careers with parties.

Betty Scriven of the socially elect began selling automobiles. She transferred her activities to a travel bureau, and her knowledge of Italian, French and German served her well.

This 21-year-old girl has her own secretary, and this summer she has been in Europe for the bureau.

"I buy my clothes and accessories with my salary," she explained.

Pauline Wolff left a Michigan boulevard shop, as assistant to the manager of the women's apparel department, to be married. Another society girl, Virginia Skinkle, succeeded her.

Emily Hamill created a sensation in social circles when she joined a traveling stock company that appeared in country towns "under canvas." The one-night stands fitted her for Broadway productions.

Betty Dixon, a debutante, and Jean Stevens of an aristocratic family were members of the Goodwin theatre company.

Marcia Masters, daughter of the author, Edgar Lee Masters, is selling advertising; Elizabeth Linn is in the sales department of a La Salle street bond house, and Elizabeth Rumsey is in a loop book store.

MRS. GANN ANSWERS "BIDS" PERSONALLY

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Mrs. Edwrad Everett Gann has taken care of all social engagements for her brother, the vice president, herself and husband during the past busy season.

She has written personal notes of acceptance or regret and a telephone call from her often reminds the vice president, busy at the capitol, of a dinner or luncheon date.

She is now preparing to re-open the Gann home in Cleveland Park for at least a part of the summer while the vice president is busy at his home in Topeka, Kansas.

16 BUTTON GLOVES MOSTLY BUTTONLESS

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Sixteen button gloves are the prescribed length for evening wear.

But the fact that glove lengths are measured in buttons does not mean that there are buttons on the glove. The majority of long gloves are buttonless or have five buttons at the wrist.

Sunburn Lingerie.

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Sunburn tinted lingerie of sheerest chiffon is an offering of the last moment here.

Nightgowns, chemises and dance sets are made from mousseline de soie of the shade which comes closest to matching the sunburn.

Fine lace of the same tint provides the trimming.

Brown and Green For Summer.

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Midsummer ensembles which an important dress house recommends for wear at race and garden events at fashionable beach and country resorts are cool green organdy or Swiss embroidery set off with hat, shoes and gloves of tobacco brown.

FALL HAT BRIMS WIDER; VELVET BERETS POPULAR

PARIS, July 20—(AP)—Advance winter millinery provides style talk of the moment, with hat brims the subject of conversation.

New brims are wide, judged by modern women's standards, and frequently are tilted at dizzy angles several inches above the edge of the crown.

The hiatus between crown and brim edge is a nesting place for trimming in the form of ribbon or dabs of fur. Occasionally flowers are tucked under the brim.

From their shelter they provide a touch of color near the face and relieve the sombre black.

Black and white are combined in many ways in advance autumn hats.

Black velvet berets with touches of ermine seem likely to replace to a degree the jersey and white pique berets of summer.

The velvet berets are draped a little more than their predecessors, and many are anchored to a bandeau with ribbons which tie in the mid-back or at the side.

Many black velvet hats with touches of white were worn by ultra-smart women at the week of racing at Auteuil and Longchamps.

One model which evoked comment was a combination of white straw brim and close fitting black velvet crown. The brim, of rough straw turned downward at an easy angle and was mounted several inches above the bandeauline.

NEW FURNITURE MARKED BY SIMPLICITY OF DESIGN

CHICAGO, July 20—(AP)—Simplicity marks the furniture that will go into the well-dressed home this fall and winter.

The semi-annual furniture show here reveals that furniture designers have departed from "gingerbread" designs. There are some designs, particularly in English designs, where elaborate carving is shown.

Eighteenth century designs based on the furniture "masterpieces" of Sheraton, Hepplewhite and Chippendale, predominate. Early American also continues in popularity.

The trend in upholstery fabrics is toward plainer designs and more subdued coloring.

CLUB HEADS UTILIZE AIRPLANES ON TRIPS

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Miss Marion McClench, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, has traveled 1,000 miles by airplane in the last year.

Recently Mrs. John Sippel, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, predicted that the travel required of a club president soon would necessitate use of planes. She makes many trips in this way.

Miss McClench, at the close of her first year as president, has traveled nearly 33,000 miles visiting clubs and making addresses, using nearly every mode of transportation.

WOMEN NOT WINNERS IN 1930 LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Women were not the chief winners in legislation enacted in 10 states during the 1930 sessions, the women's bureau of the department of labor finds.

There were few laws passed for their benefit, though New York amended its hour law so that factories and mercantile establishments must allow a weekly half holiday if women employes work more than eight hours any day during the week.

Any overtime in connection with the 48 hour, six day working week, is also forbidden.

Malayans Like Perfumes

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—There is no bear market on perfumes and cosmetics in British Malaya. Exports of these products this year may eclipse the high record of last year when the Malayans doubled their 1928 exports from the United States.

Organize Cotton Clubs

SELMA, Ala., July 20—(AP)—Inspired by action of London women who enrolled Queen Mary in their cotton club, Mrs. M. J. Lenoir is working toward organization of women's cotton clubs in Alabama. Club members would wear cotton clothing.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A very good cleanser for tarnished silver is to use a piece of raw potato, dipped in baking soda.

The best way to singe fowl is to pour a little wood alcohol in a saucer and light it. This method will not leave soot on the flesh.

To keep the daily paper from blowing away, get the carrier to snap it into a spring clothespin, fastened to the porch railing.

When you are basting roast beef, a tablespoon of brown or white sugar added to the gravy improves the flavor and color.

A slender vase can be cleaned on the inside by fastening a piece of an old sponge to a stick and pushing it down into the vase.

If gold fish become ill, the probability is that they have been over fed or not kept clean. Lack of fresh water will soon kill them.

The flavor of tea can be greatly improved by thoroughly drying the peel from an orange or lemon, and placing this peel in the tea container.

To keep green vegetables from boiling over, drop in the center a piece of dripping, the size of a walnut, when they begin to boil.

Chop corned beef very fine, using a little of the fat of the meat. Season with a little French mustard and spread be tween thin slices of whole wheat bread.

Salt should never be added to stews, soups and boiled meats until after they are cooked. If put in at first it toughens the fiber of the meat and takes out the juices.

If there are squeaks in the porch swing, try wrapping the hooks with pieces of thin leather or other suitable material that will not wear through easily.

When clinkers form on the lining of a stove, shake the fire down until you have a bed of hot coals, then burn four or five oyster shells on the coals and the clinkers will soon disappear.

CHEESE-EGGS

Eggs, scrambled with cream cheese make a delicious dish. Melt a cake of cream cheese in butter, and when the mixture gets hot, pour in six eggs, beaten with a little milk. Stir thoroughly all the time it is cooking and serve very hot.

KETTLE

Put a few marbles in the kettle when cooking catsup or relish. The heat will keep the marbles moving and prevent the ingredients from sticking to the bottom of the kettle. It will save you so much watching.

NEW CASSEROLE

Before baking in a new casserole, put it in a large kettle of cold water, bring slowly to boiling point and boil several hours. It prevents cracking.

BROWN ROASTS

To crust a roast with a deep brown hue, have your oven very hot when you pop the roast in, then lower heat. This crusts the roast and keeps the juices in.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

To relieve the painful sting of mosquito bites, bathe the parts with spirits of camphor or witch hazel.

For relief from prickly heat put a large handful of Epsom salts in a basin of lukewarm water and bathe the affected parts.

Scratches should be treated at once to prevent infection. Cleanse with boiled water and follow with an application of tincture of iodine.

Milk used on the face to improve the complexion will not cause hair to grow. After thoroughly cleansing the face, apply the milk liberally and allow it to dry on. Do this at night before going to bed, and in the morning wash it off with warm water. Follow with a cold-water rinse.

CARDS HAVE CONCAVE SIDES

Whether it is the influence of an age devoted to new efficiencies or whether it is a search for novelty, we discover that playing cards have had their sides caved in a bit. The shape proves a boon in the matter of gathering up a miscellaneous assortment of cards to shuffle and makes them easier to hold. Of course, it changes their faces very little. A good no-trump hand remains the same, even with concave side cards.

SOAP AND WATER FOR SAFETY

There are many good methods of polishing silver, but thorough washing with soapy water and rinsing with clear scalding water, should always be the last steps in the operation. This is especially important if a patent silver polish is used, as many such products contain sodium cyanide or other chemicals.

Recently the Chicago Department of Health issued a warning against this newly discovered source of danger when 400 poisonings in the city were traced to the presence of silver polish on table silver. Occupants of private homes as well as patrons of clubs and restaurants were among the victims.

This shows the need for higher cleanliness standards in the kitchens of our homes and in public eating places. Even the best of food may imperil our health unless it is cooked in clean vessels, served in clean dishes and eaten with clean utensils.

DECORATIVE WALL PAPER

If your plain closet doors seem terribly plain, try decorating them with some very pretty border wallpaper and shellacing them. Use a fine edge around the border paper and it gives the impression of a framed picture.

CAREFUL PACKING

If you pack your clothes with tissue paper filling out the shoulders you will find that they are ready for wear without pressing upon arrival.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Polo shirts are popular in sports circles and are worn by every member of the family.

Organdie has developed into one of the best of the season's materials for dance, dinner and tea frocks.

Ruffled gloves are new when they are in fine suede. An elbow length glove shows three small ruffles at the top and the glove is washable.

Pique is in wide use—for neckwear, for sports clothes, for hats, suits and accessories, not forgetting the boutonniere.

Bracelets of practically every type are smart, the preference being for heavy effects. Those strung on elastic so that they form a cuff are extremely smart and most often of crystal.

IN BLUE AND BLACK

A really enchanting evening frock is composed of wide bands of black and blue laces alternating in horizontal stripes. The frock is made up over a blue silk slip, while the narrow shoulder straps are made of black lace over flesh color. The whole effect is decidedly intriguing.

BY THE SEA

A picturesque costume for the sands consists of a bolero jacket and a wide, wide skirt worn over an ordinary bathing suit. The costume is of striped material with green and yellow predominating. The skirt is long enough to reach the ankles.

ORGANDIE SUIT

The ultimate in feminity and summer coolness is expressed in the organdie suit, a brand new vanity women are putting their stamp of approval on. A navy blue one, made with flaring skirt and fitted and flaring jacket, has a white organdie gilet with hand-drawn vestee, collar and four-inch sleeves.

ORGANDIE SLEEVES

A pink handkerchief linen dress, cut princess, with very full, flaring skirt and pointed V neck, has tiny puff sleeves of white organdie, tied half way to the elbow with narrow bands of pink linen.

CAPELETTES FOR SUMMER

It is no whimsicality of the couture to add grace to the coat silhouette by means of capes, capelets and the once-famed bolero. These details have been popularized and will be seen repeatedly this season, but they mark this a period of definite revivals. Popularity in the sense of their constant repetition in one form or another will not, apparently, detract from their vogue. Some creators compromise by diversifications of the cape and bolero themes, executing them conservatively, which makes these details seem less conspicuous.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Perspiration stains on colored silks may be removed by sponging with lukewarm water.

Fewer flakes will be required and better suds will result if the soap flakes, used for washing, are beat into a foam with the egg-beater.

While ironing, pin a small piece of bright-colored paper to each article that requires mending and it will be found a great convenience.

Let pongee silk dry before ironing, then roll it for ironing and place it with the dampened clothes until ready for pressing; it will iron nicely.

EASY WAY TO WASH WINDOWS

The easiest way is the best as far as washing windows is concerned. In order to keep the glass panes clean and shining, household experts recommend a solution made by adding a little kerosene to a thick soap paste; this should be applied to the windows with a clean cloth or sponge and then rinsed away with clear, hot water. A small rubber hose is convenient for rinsing the exteriors.

Squeegees help to dry the windows and to prevent streaking. The long-haired variety save unnecessary bending and reaching. To add a final polish to the windows rub them thoroughly with old newspapers or a clean piece of chamois.

WAX LINOLEUM

If you wish to preserve your inlaid linoleum on the kitchen floor, do not scrub it. When it is first laid, wax it two or three times with light coats of wax, well polished. Use a dust mop daily. If anything is spilled, wipe it up at once. When washing is necessary, use only a mild soap and lukewarm water. Then re-wax. The wax will fill the pores of the linoleum and the dirt will not grind in. If your linoleum is printed, give it a light coat of varnish before waxing to preserve the pattern.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The annual bill for creams, rouge and powders in the United States is about $69,000,000.

On Jan. 1, 1929, there were only 18 licensed women airplane pilots in the United States. Today there are more than 200.

Portugal has its first corps of policewomen. Five tall and athletic young women, uniformed in blue serge with white helmets, will attend to cases of women and minors in Lisbon.

Mrs. Von Kardoff Cheimb, former member of the German Reichstag on the national liberal platform, has organized a new political party in Germany with a view to protecting women's rights.

A "Society for the Protection of Short Skirts" has been formed by a group of women in Liverpool, England. The committee will urge big shops and stores to stock short skirts for those who refuse to bow to the latest and ugliest dictate of fashion.

FURTHER DUTY

Old turkish towels make splendid scrub rags for the bathtub and washstand. They will not scratch the enamel in any way, yet are heavy enough to form a good resistance to the cleansing powder.

RECIPES

Macedoine salad: Serves six: Two cups finely shredded cabbage, one cup finely sliced raw carrots, one cup celery cut in small pieces, two oranges, one medium sized onion, chopped; French dressing, lettuce or cabbage leaves and mayonnaise. Soak cabbage, carrots and celery in cold water a half hour to make them very crisp. Drain thoroughly. Mix cabbage, orange pulp diced, carrot, celery and together. Moisten with French dressing. Arrange on lettuce or small leaves and serve with or without mayonnaise as preferred.

AMERICA'S APPETITE FOR TEA IS SLIPPING

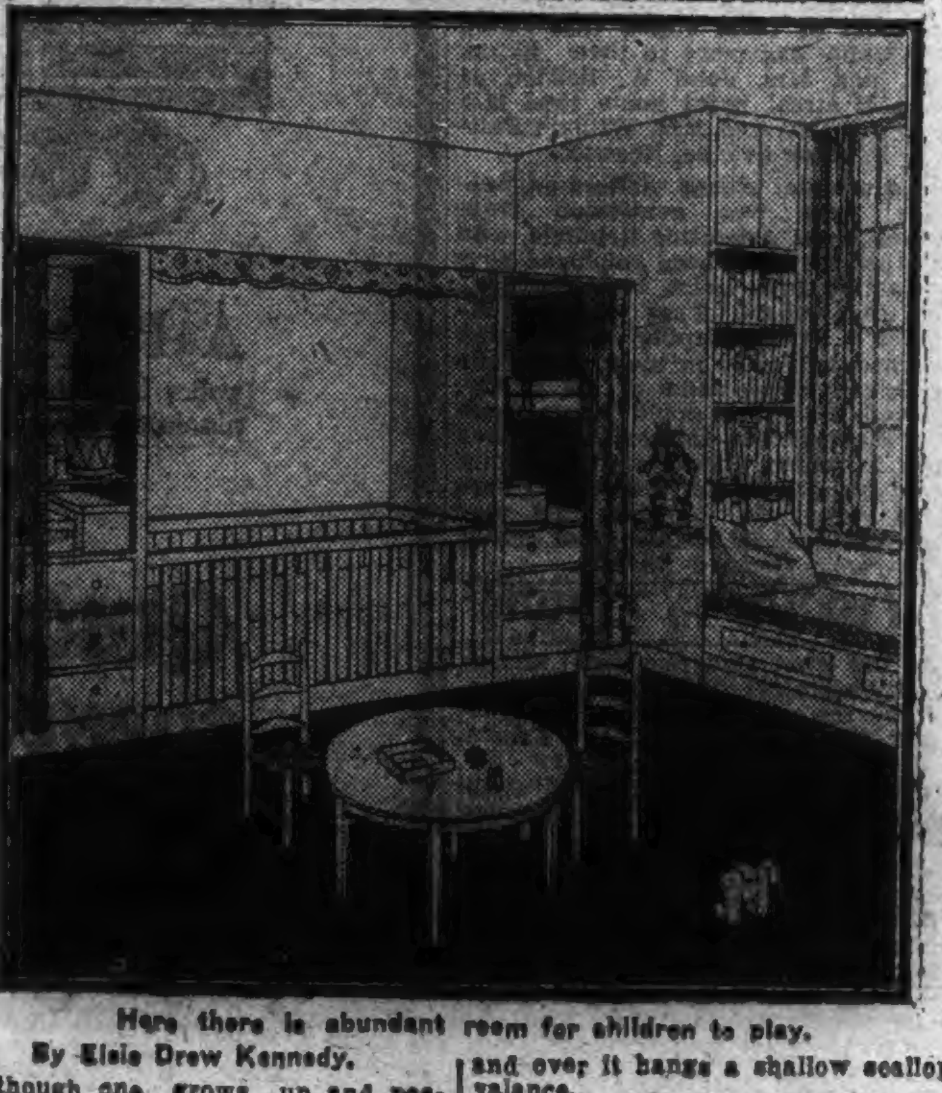
WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—The average inhabitant of England drinks about 12 times as much tea as the average American, says the department of commerce.

The Englishman now is doing a little better than nine pounds a year, with a steadily growing appetite, while the American is "weakening" at the three-fourths pound mark.

Kitchen Experts Marry

NORMAN, Okla., July 20—(AP)—Of 32 girls who were graduated this year from a home economics course at the University of Oklahoma, 10 were married before they received their diplomas and five others wed immediately after school ended.

ROOMY NURSERY HAS BUILT-IN FURNITURE



Here there is abundant room for children to play.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

Although one grows up and possesses far larger rooms, probably none can compare in gamor with the nursery.

Here, for the first time, the child is master of his own domain, surrounded by his own furniture and beloved possessions—his independence already partially established by the consciousness of proprietorship.

The planning and furnishing of this important room offer fascinating scope for the talents of the amateur decorator, both because charming effects may be attained with small expense, and because imagination and a sympathetic point of view are the most essential requirements of all.

One primary consideration is that of space, with the furniture so arranged that it will be out of the way of active bodies and scampering feet.

In the room sketched above this has been achieved by building most of it in, a modern trick particularly successful where children are concerned, since everything is made secure. It has been done in a way most calculated to delight a child.

There is the built-in bed, for instance, with the slat railing and bunk-like quality. Moreover, it presents only one side where a small child may possibly fall out, instead of three, and it escapes daytime traffic. Deep shelves and drawers flank the ends, and over it hangs a shallow scalloped valance.

Another charming feature is the broad built-in window seat extending the length of small-paned double windows that let in a flood of light. Books are placed conveniently in shelves at one end, so one may read reclining against a pillow in one corner.

In the center of the room is a round table, large enough to hold supper things or to play games on, accompanied by quaint, old-fashioned chairs with reed seats—all scaled to the small stature of the child.

The colors are gay and spirited, with books and toys providing bright accents. The walls are tinted a light orange, and the woodwork and furniture painted an apple green. The carpet, which entirely covers the floor, is in a much darker tone of that color.

Bright orange chintz hangings with amusing orange dots are made to pull across the windows, taking the place of shades, and also form decorative concealments for the shelves at the ends of the bed.

The window seat cushion is upholstered in orange crash, with green chintz binding, while the challenging Puss-in-Boots, one of a series of fairy-tale figures painted at intervals along the walls, is a perfect riot of color.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Using Rewards Wisely.

Rewards are often a help in breaking a child of bad habits or in stimulating him to make a special effort in some desirable direction. Here are a few suggestions which should prove helpful in using rewards wisely:

With a young child, make the reward follow immediately on the heels of the right action.

An older child may be required to work for a reward for several weeks but even with him, guard against the danger of making the far-away reward a dim unreality compared with the pleasure of backsliding in the immediate present.

Remember that failure to win a promised reward is likely to increase the child's resistance to doing the thing that is desired of him. Therefore only offer to reward him on terms which you feel pretty sure he will be able to meet.

Increase gradually the period of good behavior necessary to win any given reward.

Don't dangle before his hopes a particularly large and tempting reward which he can only win after a period of good behavior that would require of him a superhuman amount of effort and self-control.

Try always to make the child feel that his reward is an evidence of your approval and your wish to show it by giving him pleasure in return.

The spirit in which the reward is given will make a great deal of difference, for it is through this that you can lead him on to make greater and greater efforts even though the returns in the form of material rewards are not increased.

Indeed, as soon as possible try to make your child's improved behavior independent of all rewards save that of his improved self-esteem.

QUIET TIME IN OFFICIAL SOCIAL CIRCLES IN WASHINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, July 20—Official social life, is rather at a standstill, except as numerous summer weddings are announced. A great number of the weddings are "garden weddings", the ceremony taking place under great trees, in the midst of blooming gardens, sheltered from public view, either by great lawns, or high walls covered with vines.

Not long ago, a wedding in high judicial circles created a stir, because of the unusual circumstances that made it follow by a lapse of only 24 hours the wedding of the bride's sister.

The first affair was a brilliant church wedding; the second was impromptu, on account of the sudden orders received by the bridegroom to leave at once for a distant city, not to return till winter.

Alice Williams, daughter of Judge Williams of the U. S. court of claims, came to the rescue, when her sister, Ruth was besought by the groom, to marry without delay. So Ruth merely popped into the wedding gown and veil of Alice, whose bridesmaid she had been the day previous; wedding guests were summoned by phone, all went as merry as the proverbial wedding bells, and high society enjoyed the novel program immensely.

Two other sisters in high official circles, have been the center of attraction. They are little princesses from Siam, daughters of the minister from Siam, Major General Prince Amoradat Kridara. The young princesses bear a strong resemblance to each other and are very attractive.

Mrs. Dale Sets Pace

Just before the close of the congressional season, Mrs. Porter Dale, wife of the senator from Vermont and president of the Congressional club, set a new pace in entertaining. Mrs. Dale found the round of gay affairs was making it hard to find open dates on which to entertain. So she decided to give coffee parties at club house, during the morning hours, making them very informal, and using the telephone for invitations. Yet, they were really official affairs, and smacked strongly of genuine New England hospitality. The invitations were "come from 11 to 12." There were no cards, or any form of entertainment, but on tables were steaming silver urns of fragrant coffee, little coffee cakes, tiny biscuit with just a bit of Virginia ham tucked between their folds, somewhat after the manner of those famous biscuits that are Mrs. Gann's specialty.

Wives of senators, members of the house, wives of members of the cabinet and a sprinkling of folk from the diplomatic corps dropped in, from market or shopping, or a drive, sat and chatted over the coffee cups for an hour, then left convinced that Mrs. Dale, president of the club, had set a pace worth while following when the next social season is on.

Cost of Living for Girls

Not long ago various organizations interested in the cost of living, for girls who are wage earners, made a survey of a number of large cities, and have given out their findings. New England makes a good showing in the returns. Boston is the only city on which details are furnished. The lowest sum on which an entirely self-supporting wage earner can live with comfort in Boston, doing her own laundry and practicing economy, is $15 a week. Kansas City ranks the same, while Philadelphia makes the minimum $21.

The girls and employment included those in telephone offices, waitresses, clerks, beauty parlor employes and others whose pay usually runs about the same. Out of these small earnings the girls are urged to have at least $1 a week for emergencies.

While Boston gave $15 as the minimum wage, the statement added that $20 a week would give a girl a fair living wage. The schedules submitted included clothing, food, doctor, dentist and practically all so called "needs and charges" of daily life.

The lowest wage under the United States government, as I recall it, for similar occupations, is $1,200 a year, but I have not the figures at hand.

The Edges Like Paris

Ambassador and Mrs. Walter Edge are said to be greatly pleased with their life in Paris, where Mrs. Edge spent much time as a young girl, studying languages, when she was Camilla Sewell of Maine.

Summer weddings in the high official set in Paris are very popular, and the three little daughters of the Ambassador and Mrs. Edge are said to be in demand as ring bearers or flower maidens. The little girls take to social life as ducks take to water, but are reported to be entirely unspoiled and being brought up in a notably home atmosphere, even if in the luxurious home of a multi-millionaire, as the ambassador is reputed to be. Mrs. Edge is also a person of large wealth but charming and unspoiled in her relations with those who are less fortunate in having plenty of this world's goods.

HOMES FOR ORPHANS PLAN PUSHED BY WOMEN'S CLUB

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Caring for children in homes is no more expensive than caring for them in orphanages, Mrs. Frank Humphrey, chairman of the division of child welfare of the General Federation of Women's clubs reports.

The federation is conducting a campaign to put children in private homes. As the result of the club women's efforts a large orphanage in Cincinnati will now be used for crippled children.

Mrs. Hoover Works Puzzles

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover finds entertainment in solving jig-saw puzzles when seeking relaxation. The tiny bits of wood or card board helped pass the time while she was recovering from a wrenched back.

Pleats in Bathing Suits

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP)—Misses Jeanette and Elizabeth Hume, popular members of the younger capital set, are wearing bathing suits of bright blue jersey trimmed with white shoulder straps and white buttons.

The short blue pants have several pleats in the front. The suits are two-piece.

THE MUSE'S NIGHTMARE

In Music's darkest hour amidst the din of Canned Music in Theatres, there is still a ray of hope—THE MUSIC DEFENSE LEAGUE!

Grown in a few months to the proportions of a major public movement, the Music Defense League is carrying on the greatest cultural struggle of modern times. Millions are joining it in protest against corruption of an art by soulless mechanization.

On Saturday a special car well filled, conveyed the members of the Greeneville Congregational church Sunday school, their parents and friends to Ocean Beach for the annual picnic. The cars left the church at 9 o'clock and the smiling faces of those going testified to their delight at visiting the beach. On arriving everyone appeared to get into their bathing suit very quickly. After a basket lunch some had another dip in the water and others went out on the speed boats. Ice cream in unlimited quantities was the privilege given to the Sunday school children. They returned home at 7 o'clock in the evening. Every one arrived home tired and weary after a most enjoyable day.

BOBBY GRANT DEFEATS "CHICK" ELWELL, 6 AND 5, TO WIN NOYES GOLF TROPHY

The Noyes Trophy, the coveted prize in the annual invitation golf tournament of the Norwich Golf club, today reposes alongside of many other golf trophies in the home of Bobby Grant of Hartford. Bobby Grant is custodian of the cup for a year by virtue of his 6 and 5 victory over Charles "Chick" Elwell, of New Haven, in the finals of the tournament played Sunday. Grant won his way to the finals by a brilliant 3 and 2 victory over Max B. Kaesche, of Ridgewood, N. J., titalist in 1929 in the semi-final match played on Saturday. Elwell won his way to the finals by beating L. G. Beatty, of Glen Ridge, N. J., 2 up in the other half of the semi-finals.

The match was dominated by Grant, who, although not forced to extend himself to win, played some brilliant golf in spots. His wood shots were far superior to those of Elwell both in distance and direction. He outdrove the New Haven boy on an average of 25 yards per drive. On the greens his putter worked nicely and he had an uncanny habit of stymying Elwell at critical times. Elwell's game was far from what he is capable of playing, especially that of the afternoon round.

Grant Takes Seven In Row.

In the morning Grant finished the eighteen holes with a 78 and was one up at the halfway mark. But in the afternoon Grant started to bear down and took the first seven holes making him eight up at the 24th hole. Elwell, who had been playing very ragged golf rallied and took the eighth with a birdie, halved the ninth, won the tenth in par figures, halved the eleventh and won the 12th, but Grant ended the match on the 13th.

Morning Round.

In the morning round Grant started with a birdie three on the first but lost his advantage on the second when Elwell got a par after driving into a trap. On the third which was halved Grant got one of the longest drives ever seen on the hole, his ball traveling a full 300 yards from the tee. Grant took the fourth in par figures, but Elwell came back to win the fifth with a five to even the match. The sixth was halved but Elwell secured a birdie four on the seventh to go one up. The eighth was halved in par fours and Elwell became two up at the turn when he ran his putt down for a four after Grant had pulled his ball into the long rough at the edge of the trap. Elwell was out in 38 and Grant in 41. Both played ragged golf on the tenth with Grant winning the hole with a five. Elwell got the hole back on the eleventh with a birdie two. On the twelfth Grant drove out of bounds but was on the green in three while Elwell was on in two. On the putt for a four Grant's ball stopped on the lip of the cup. Elwell putted and laid himself a perfect stymie. In attempting to play for a half he hit Grant's ball and knocked it into the cup to make himself only one up.

Evened The Match.

With a nice putt on the thirteenth Grant evened the match and from then on Elwell was never up. Grant took the long fourteenth in par. The short fifteenth was halved in threes. The sixteenth was an exhibition of sloppy golf, Elwell smothering two wood shots from the rough. Elwell finally winning the hole to make the match even. Grant then won the seventh with a par three and the eighteenth was halved.

Afternoon Round.

Starting out in the afternoon Grant went after the match as soon as possible. Shooting par golf for the first five holes he increased his lead to six holes. He took a five on the sixth but knocked off a birdie on the seventh to get back to par again. He had a par four on the eighth which was won by Elwell with a birdie three. Grant had a five to give him 37, one over par for the outgoing round. Elwell had a 44. Grant went to two over perfect figures when he dropped the tenth by taking a five. Then he got his par in the eleventh to halve the hole. On the twelfth his tee shot went out of bounds but he was on the green in three while Elwell was there in two. This time Elwell stymied Grant and Bobby reciprocated Elwell's generosity of the morning round by knocking Elwell's ball into the cup. Grant won on the thirteenth when Elwell's tee shot hooked into the rough and he was weak on the recovery.

Grant Beats Kaesche in Semi-Finals

Interest ran high in the semi-final match between Max Kaesche, defending champion, and Bobby Grant, the golfing sensation of the Wethersfield club, as the winner of this match was conceded to be the ultimate winner of the title. Playing through sweltering heat, Grant displayed brilliant golf, while Kaesche was slightly erratic, losing a number of holes through his ragged playing. It was on the 16th where Kaesche cracked and Grant strode through to win the match. Confronted with the necessity of three holes in succession to win the match, Kaesche seemed to break under the strain.

After a 240-yard tee shot, Kaesche took a brassie to strive for distance with the result that he was over-anxious and smothered the shot. In trying to recover he topped his third and it was a matter of mere formality that he played out the hole to take a six while Grant coasted through to an easy par five, his 250-yard drive followed by a sweet brassie shot bringing him to pitching distance of the pin. He was on in three and played it safe to get his par.

Kaesche was away to a beautiful start, getting a drive that stopped a yard off the green, and he was down in four while Grant took a five. Kaesche caught the trap on his drive on the short second hole while Grant was slightly by the hole and to the left of the green. Both chipped on, Grant overshooting the hole by 15 feet only to run his putt home for a par three while Kaesche two-putted.

Kaesche went into the lead again on the third when Grant pulled his second shot into the rough at the left of the green and took a five, Kaesche being down in par. The fourth was halved in fours, each missing his putt for birdies. On the fifth Grant evened the match when Kaesche pulled his drive in the trees that made a dog-leg of the hole. He played two provisional balls but found his first in the sand trap past the trees and took a five while Grant got his par four. Grant took the lead on the sixth when Kaesche pulled his drive far to the left and was short on his second shot taking a five as Grant holed out in four.

The seventh and eighth were halved, Grant sinking a 20-foot putt on the eighth to halve the hole. The ninth was halved in fours, Grant playing a beautiful second shot from the rough. Grant was out in 37, one over par while Kaesche was two over.

Even at the Tenth.

The defender evened the match on the tenth when Grant played a weak second shot and missed a long putt for his par. The eleventh was halved in threes but Grant took the lead again on the twelfth when Kaesche was weak with his putter. The thirteenth was halved in fours and then came the break that practically decided the match.

Stymie Decides Match

Both were away to good drives on the fourteenth a 590-yard hole, Kaesche's second wood sliced to the rough and he was short on the green on his third. Grant was straight all the way and was just on the green on his third. Kaesche approached to within four feet on the cup making a perfect stymie for Kaesche. Kaesche gambled with the fates trying to sneak the ball by Grant's but he lost, his ball hitting that of Grant's and dropping it into the cup for a birdie. This seemed to disturb Kaesche more than anything else on the round for his tee shot on the short 15th was over the green but he made a brilliant recovery to halve the hole in par threes. Then came the sixteenth and the finish.

Elwell Wins His Match

Chick Elwell of New Haven won his semi-final match to enter the finals against Grant. This match was even more closely contested than the other. Elwell finally winning on the seventeenth, 2 and 1. Elwell played steady golf throughout his match the same as he did against Morton in the second round match on Friday.

Grant Wins Medal

Following the semi-finals in the championship flight Dave Morton and Bobby Grant, who tied for the medal in the qualifying round, played off for the medal, Grant winning with a 76 while Morton had a 78. Both played ragged golf on the outgoing nine, Morton having a 44 and Grant a 40. Both tightened up on the incoming nine, Morton coming with a 34, one under par while Grant had a 36, one over. The cards:

On Seduction Charge.

John Leonart, 17, of Everett street, was arrested here about 10:45 Saturday night on the charge of seducing a girl who is a minor. The arrest was made by Constable Lucius Fenton and Motor Officer Clifford Crary when the young man was found sitting on the steps of a store on West Thames street. Bonds of $1,000 were given by the young man's father for his appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

ADVISES USE OF CONNECTICUT VEGETABLES

Connecticut people can help themselves and Connecticut farmers by demanding food produced within the borders of their own state, says the state department of agriculture. Locally grown products such as vegetables are usually fresher and more palatable than those shipped in from other parts of the country.

The use of local products will result in not only providing the consumer in homes and restaurants with a fresher product but will provide a market for the Connecticut grower. This will keep the money paid for such products in circulation at home whereas money paid for shipped-in products goes out of the state and reduces the buying power of Connecticut farmers. Improved production practices have increased the production and quality of Connecticut grown vegetables. Market conditions this year are such that the future of this industry is menaced.

That the buying public is not intentionally ignoring Connecticut farm products but it is not aware that fresh vegetables right from the field may be had at no extra cost is the belief of Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham. The department finds that in the face of an increased production of Connecticut vegetables available at prices that should be attractive to consumers, the imports are annually increasing to an extent that seriously endangers the future of Connecticut's $5,000,000 vegetable industry.

WEST END COMMUNITY'S BLUFF POINT PICNIC

An all-day picnic was held Sunday at Bluff Point by members of the West End Community association, the party being transported to and from the beach by a New England bus. Bathing, boating and other amusements were enjoyed by the picnickers and basket lunches were eaten at noon.

TAFTVILLE

The annual outing of the members of the choir of the Taftville Congregational church was held Saturday at Rocky Point, R. I., as in former years. The choir members made the trip in automobiles and were accompanied by a number of their friends. Upon arrival at the shore resort, a delicious Rhode Island shore dinner was enjoyed, and later in the day the local people enjoyed the bathing and amusements at the park.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davignon and family have motored down from Montreal, P. Q., and are the guests of Mrs. Davignon's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Fontaine and family of upper Merchants avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Davignon's two sons, Francis and Joseph were already at the Fontaine home, having driven from Montreal about a week ago with Victor Fontaine, Jr., and Philip Adams, who spent their vacation with the Davignon family in Montreal.

Miss Mildred C. Yerrington of South Second avenue and Miss Gladys M. Kinder of North Third avenue have returned from a week's stay at Watch Hill, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heselton of North B street and Mahlon Wood of North Third avenue have returned from a stay of several days at the Heselton camp at Old Killingly pond.

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

Fear of continued hot weather sent many of the villagers to the beaches along the Connecticut and Rhode Island shores on Sunday. All morning there was a steady exodus of cars from the village, bound for the popular and cool shore resorts.

All the local boys who were with Battery B at Niantic for the past two weeks returned to their homes in town Saturday. While they reported a good time during their annual taste of camp life, most of them stated that Camp Tobyhanna was more to their liking.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Seddon of South B street spent some time last week with Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey of Fanning avenue, Norwich.

Two unusual village visitors on Saturday were two gentlemen from Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, who said that they had been employed by a contracting firm which built the Sacred Heart school. They were searching for a Polish family with which they boarded while in town, and while not knowing the name of the family, believed that they could locate them once they reached the school, as they knew in which direction their former hosts' home lay from the school. Both spoke very little English, but they could converse in Spanish, and one of them spoke German fluently.

NORWICH TOWN

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning, the pulpit was occupied by the retiring pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, not Rev. Harold Arnold, of Griswold, as announced. Rev. Mr. Arnold is to preach at this church, in exchange with Rev. Mr. Bailey Sunday morning, July 27th.

"Beauty is Worship," was the theme of Rev. Mr. Bailey Sunday morning.

In place of the Young People's C. E. service in the chapel Sunday evening, members were transferred by automobile to the First Congregational church of Lebanon, where at 7:30 a Christian Endeavor service was conducted with the Norwich Town members as guests. Miss Eleanor Smith, president of the visiting society was the leader.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Norwich Town and Mrs. Herbert Richardson of Main street, Norwich, attended Sunday morning the Bozrah Congregational church, when the pastor, Rev. George H. Strouse preached an eloquent sermon on "Three Sins Lightly Regarded." Three thoughts emphatically expressed were taken from 1 Kings 20th chapter. In the absence of two members of the choir, by special invitation Mrs. Richardson in place of the anthem sang in pleasing mezzo soprano "Thy Way, Not Mine, O Lord," by Dressler, the organist, Miss Alice Bishop accompanying; and at the offertory Dr. Lamb, tenor, in finely rounded tones sang, "Sail On," by Gabriel. Miss Bishop also accompanied for this number.

Master Burton J. Robbins of Norwich Town formerly of Lyme, returned from the latter place Friday evening after nearly a week's visit with a former play-mate, Monroe Beebe. Master Beebe for several days previous had visited Master Robbins at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Dean, with whom he resides.

Mrs. Herbert I. Sanderson of Willimantic was a week end visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley.

G. & E. COMMISSION ANSWERS MAYOR; APPLIANCES SALES PROFITS $1,817.59

Net profits of $1,817.59 from the sale of appliances by the city gas and electrical department in the fiscal year up to April 30, 1930, are shown by the gas and electrical commissioners in a letter sent to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in reply to his inquiry by letter of July 14.

The commissioners also reply that certain policies agreed upon in June, 1929, as to govern the conduct of the business of the department have been carried out since then, and are being carried out at the present time.

The commissioners' letter, which is sent through the secretary of the board, John H. Powers, also gives information as to certain resolutions voted by the board in November, 1929, also co-operative lines with the merchants of the city in regard to the sales of electrical appliances.

Commenting upon the communication from the board, Mayor Robbins said that it was a very satisfactory reply.

Letter From Commissioners

The following is the letter from the commissioners:

Norwich, Conn.
July 19, 1930.

Honorable Lee R. Robbins, Mayor, Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Sir:

In reply to your inquiry of July 14th relative to the six proposals in letter to Alderman Gregson, chairman; together with the additional three matters voted and all of which apply to policies governing the sale of merchandise and appliances by the department, we, the commission, feel considerable satisfaction in being able to report that all nine are and have been in force since their inception.

We do not believe it necessary to repeat here in detail the text of these nine points cited and will confine this reply to the following summary, taking up the two divisions as indicated by treating the six proposals first, followed by the three matters voted.

1. Change in volt ampere charge; accomplished by increasing the step from 500 to 600 volt amperes.

2. Co-operative advertising; accomplished by inserting newspaper and theatre advertising without name of department displayed, this applies to adds of a general nature.

3. Payments of commissions; an offer was made to any recognized dealer in major appliances as outlined in the attached memorandum.

4. Adoption of a prompt payment discount; as you know this practice has been instituted, resulting in a considerable savings to customers.

5. Accounting of merchandise sales; you will note from page four of the report of the general manager, Mr. Taggart, included in report of the commissioners for year ending April 30th last, income and expenses are shown separately.

6. Method of cash disbursements; the procedure indicated is and has been in force, assuring a complete check from the several sources of the department before authorization by a designated member of the commission.

7. Accounts to reflect earnings; a complete set of accounts are in use from which the attached schedule of earnings was prepared, you will note a net profit for the year ending April 30th as disclosed by this schedule to be $1817.59 in answer to your query.

8. Inclusion of all costs pertaining; we believe the proper amounts have been allocated to properly reflect the costs of operation, we may add that it is our intention to insist upon modern accounting practice in this respect at all times.

9. Responsibility of manager; it is the understanding of all concerned with the operation of the department, that while the manager of the sales of appliances is directly responsible for the results attained, the general manager is wholly responsible to the commissioners for this division as well as any and all matters over which he is in control.

We trust that the foregoing, together with the accompanying schedules, will answer the inquiry to your satisfaction. We are at your service, of course, to furnish any further information that you may desire.

Respectfully submitted,
Board of Gas and Electrical Commissioners
JOHN H. POWERS,
Secretary.

PATROL HIGHWAYS IN CORN BORER QUARANTINE

Motorists returning from week end forays into eastern Connecticut and the favored eastern shore district of Long Island sound confronted patrolmen of the European corn borer quarantine on 18 main automobile roads.

Each car was stopped and searched first for corn, which is the most dangerous contraband goods because the borer likes it best, and also for certain other vegetables and flowers. If any such material was found it was confiscated.

Nine roads from the shore north and west are at present under surveillance. They include all roads above New Haven. Patrolmen are on duty on the Boston Post road, the New Haven-Middlebury pike, the New Haven-Hartford pike, the Meriden-Waterbury road, the Hartford-New London route through Glastonbury and the Hartford-Willimantic route through Manchester.

By the middle of the week, the season's total of 34 stations will be established. The corn borer spread extensively last summer and 38 towns were added to the restricted area in this summer's quarantine. The regulated territory is all east of a line drawn from Branford on Long Island sound to Woodstock on the Massachusetts border, including Meriden and Berlin.

Outside that region into the "clean" territory of Connecticut, embargo is placed on corn. None is permitted to pass under any condition. Subject to regulation, the other articles named in the quarantine may be moved. Growers who wish to ship celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, and rhubarb across the line may have their fields inspected regularly for the borer, which at this time of the year appears as a dirty white worm.

STATE'S MOTOR TAXES 14TH HIGHEST IN U. S.

Connecticut has the third highest average total tax paid on motor vehicles in New England, and the fourteenth highest in the entire country, according to a survey compiled from official records by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Rhode Island, with $49.48, has the highest average total tax on motor vehicles in New England. Maine is next with $46.70. Connecticut is followed by Vermont with $43.46, New Hampshire is fifth with $41.47, and Massachusetts has the lowest, $31.96.

SENATE RATIFIED LONDON NAVAL TREATY, VOTE 58-9, AND ADJOURNED SINE DIE

Final Roll Call Came After a Dozen Reservations Had Been Voted Down—Seven Republicans and Two Democrats Voted Against the Treaty—The One Reservation Accepted By the Senate Was That Offered By Senator Norris, Which Withheld Approval of Any Secret Agreements—Senate Confirmed Nomination of Jardine As Minister to Egypt—Confirmation of Members of New Federal Power Commission Was Postponed Until the Winter Session

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The London treaty limiting all classes of ships in the American, British and Japanese navies was ratified today by the senate by a vote of 58 to 9.

The final roll call came quickly after a dozen reservations were overwhelmed. The militant band of opponents under Senator Johnson, republican, California, saw the inevitable and yielded to the heat and the dominant majority.

One reservation was adopted but it requires no new negotiations among the signatory powers and with the formal ratification of the treaty by Great Britain and Japan the document will go into effect.

Two of those who helped frame the agreement at London early this year participated in the two weeks' debate and were present to see the formal ratification—Senators Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and Reed, republican, Pennsylvania.

News of the ratification was quickly flashed to the white house but President Hoover, who had called the special session for consideration of the treaty, withheld any statement.

With the treaty contest ended, the senate adjourned the special session sine die. It will re-assemble in December along with the house for the three months short session. The next four months will be the longest time congress has not been in session since President Hoover took office.

Seven republicans and two democrats voted against the treaty, and five others were paired against it, including one republican, three democrats and the farmer-labor member, Shipstead, of Minnesota.

The one reservation accepted by the senate was offered by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, which stipulated that in ratifying the treaty the senate withheld approval of any secret agreements or understandings which might exist in relation to the pact.

This disposed of one of the big fighting points in the controversy. After President Hoover had refused to give the senate all the papers and documents relating to the London negotiations, Senator Norris introduced his resolution.

Mr. Hoover invited the senate to inspect the papers confidentially and assured the senate there were no secret understandings, but when he refused to send the documents to the legislators Senator Norris, backed by a considerable group, insisted upon the reservation of protection.

Senator Reed, one of the delegates, again assured the senate today there were no secret understandings. He agreed to acceptance of the reservation.

The heart of the treaty was regarded as the cruiser provision. Since the Washington conference of 1922, when a limitation was placed on battleships, Great Britain and Japan have far outdistanced the United States in construction of cruisers.

Under the treaty further construction in cruisers by these other two maritime nations is stopped while America builds up her fleet to an allowed limit of 18 eight-inch gun and 18 six-inch gun cruisers.

Supported by the navy general board, Senators Johnson and Hale, republican, Maine, chairman of the naval committee, waged a vigorous assault upon this provision. They insisted this country be allowed to construct more of the eight-inch gun ships, which, they argued, were the only cruisers adaptable to American needs.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking democrat on the foreign relations and naval committees, led the debate for the pact, supported by Senators Reed and Robinson, of Arkansas.

Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee was in charge of the contest. He joined in arguing against the many reservations.

Sensing the end, the largest number of senators yet to attend the special session was on the floor equipped with a refrigerating system. It was about the coolest place in the heat-enveloped capital city. Crowds were in the galleries. Mrs. Johnson, who has attended the sessions constantly as her husband made his spirited fight against the treaty, was in the members' gallery. Mrs. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state who headed the American delegation to London, sat in the diplomatic gallery.

Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, who disagreed with his country's delegation as an expert at London, sat in the gallery too. He spoke bluntly against the limitation provided by the treaty before the foreign relations committee.

Just before the roll call, Senator Johnson took the floor to laud those who fought with him against the agreement.

"It has not been a useless fight," he said. "Out of it only good can come. In bidding goodbye to it I say goodbye to it with my head in the air. God bless these men who fought with me."

The roll call follows:

For The Treaty

Republicans—Allen, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Dale, Deenen, Fess, Gillett, Glenn, Goldsborough, Gold, Greene, Hastings, Hatfield, Herbert, Howell, Jones, Kean, Keyes, LaFollette, McCullough, McMaster, McNamara, Metcalf, Norris, Patterson, Phipps, Reed, Robinson of Kentucky, Schall, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Sullivan, Thomas of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott and Watson—40.

Democrats—Black, Brock, Caraway, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Kendrick, King, Overman, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell, Wagner and Walsh of Montana—18.

Against Treaty

Republicans—Bingham, Hale, Johnson, Moses, Oddie, Pine and Robinson of Indiana—7.

Democrats—McKellar and Walsh of Massachusetts—2.

It was announced the following members not voting were paired against the treaty:

Republican—Waterman. Democrats—Broussard, Pittman and Copeland. Farmer-labor—Shipstead, Minnesota.

The following were paired for the treaty: Republican—Blaine. Democrats—Ashurst, Tydings, Bratton, Dill, Wheeler, Hayden, Stephens, Hawes and Simmons.

Of the other absentees it was announced the following would have voted for the treaty: Republicans—Baird, Cumming, Frazier, Goff, Grundy, Norbeck and Nye. Democrats—Barkley, Connally, Ransdell, Steck, and Smith.

No announcement was made respecting Senators Blease and Heflin, democrats.

SENATE CONFIRMED NOMINATION OF JARDINE

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—The senate today confirmed the nomination of William M. Jardine, former secretary of agriculture, to be minister to Egypt.

Confirmation of the nominations of the three members of the new federal power commission was postponed until the winter session after Senators Walsh, democrat, Montana, and McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, objected to their consideration.

PRESIDENT OF BETH STEEL RECEIVED $1,623,753 IN 1929

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 21—(AP)—A 3-day battle to keep secret the bonus paid to Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel corporation, ended in common pleas court today with the revelation that he received $1,623,753 in 1929.

Grace was a "hostile" witness in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with Bethlehem Steel. For two whole days and part of a third he sat silent on the witness stand while counsel argued the propriety of placing his compensation into evidence.

It was revealed that Grace received 3.319 per cent of the net earnings of Bethlehem, less fixed charges and an amount equal to the annual preferred dividend, but before depreciation. This amounted to $700,472 in 1925; $852,150 in 1926; $721,885 in 1927; $831,445 in 1928; $1,623,753 in 1929 and $701,968 for the first six months of the present year. The total for the past 5 1-2 years amounted to $5,431,684 or, including his stipulated salary of $$12,000 annually, $5,497,684.

ANNUAL SESSION OF PARLIAMENTARY UNION

LONDON, July 21—(AP)—The troubles of Egypt and Germany today, were aired for the conferees of the international parliamentary union, holding its fifth annual session here.

Dr. Paul Loebe, president of the German reichstag, who arrived in London last night, at the close of a stormy finish of the session of his parliamentary body, told the delegates that the latest crisis in his country was "just a German symptom of the international political crisis, which manifests itself in Poland and Finland and also in the difficulties in the British cabinet."

Loebe added, however, that the forthcoming general election, he was sure, would show the intention of Germany to uphold the parliamentary government.

Prof. Makram Ebeid, former Egyptian minister of finance, told the delegates that in spite of the present bloody troubles in his country, parliamentarism of Egypt had to stay.

87 YEAR OLD MAN DRANK TOAST TO 33 VACANT CHAIRS

STILLWATER, Minn., July 21—(AP)—A weary old soldier sipped a toast in bright Burgundy today, faithfully filling his covenant with the dead and writing the final chapter in the saga of the Last Man's club.

About the long table which had Charley Lockwood at its head stood 33 vacant chairs, each with a bow of black, as the 87 year old veteran of the civil war drank wine in memory of his comrades, fulfilling a vow of 45 years standing.

Completing the pattern for the ceremony, so carefully laid out long ago, Lockwood addressed his simple toast to "my comrades," and then repeated a verse read at its first meeting.

FILIPINOS DISPLEASED BY NOMINATION OF ROOSEVELT

MANILA, July 21—(AP)—Filipino politicians today expressed displeasure at the nomination by President Hoover of Nicholas Roosevelt of New York as vice governor of the Philippines because of his opposition to independence for the islands.

Six Persons Killed In English "Air Taxi"

Distinguished Party Was Flying to Croydon From France.

MEOPHAM, Kent, Eng., Ju[illegible] (AP)—Six persons, including the [illegible]countess Ednam, a close friend of the Prince of Wales, plunged to death when a mid-air explosion tore to shreds an "air taxi," speeding a party of distinguished society folk to Croydon from a week-end at Le Bouquet, don from a week end at Le Touquet, France.

Mrs. Henrik Loeffler, another woman famed alike for her beauty and the receptions she gave at her elaborate home in Grosvenor Square, Mayfair, was a victim. Mrs. Loeffler's receptions were among the most important events of the London society season.

The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava and Sir Edward Ward, who moved in the same exclusive circles; Lieutenant-Colonel George L. P. Henderson, an airman with a fine flying record, the plane's chief pilot, and Charles Shearing, 28, assistant pilot, completed the death roll.

Late this afternoon this picturesque hamlet four miles south of Gravesend was startled by a roar in the sky and a terrific explosion. Villagers who looked skyward saw the Junkers plane suddenly fly into bits.

The bodies of the occupants hurtled earthward and fell in a garden next to a cottage.

The rest of the outfit, wings, engine and cabin, were scattered about for hundreds of yards.

Today's crash was one of the worst disasters in the history of British commercial aviation, because of the prominence of its victims as well as their number. It followed closely upon another grewsome tragedy of the air on July 7 when a German Dornier-Wal flying boat in the Steppin-Kalmar-Stockholm service was forced down in the Baltic near Bornholm and broke into bits in a stormy sea. In that disaster two Americans lost their lives, Dr. John L. Burkholder, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., and Miss Ruth Patricia Northrup, of Philadelphia, whose body was recovered only last week.

Eyewitnesses agreed that today's disaster resulted from some accident while the machine was in flight. A queer feature was the finding of one of the plane's wings fully two miles from the scene where the bodies and engine came down.

Lieutenant-Colonel Henderson was breathing when villagers reached his side, but he died a few minutes later.

Investigators learned that all of the passengers, well known to each other, had spent a week end at the gay French resort. Lord Dufferin and Sir Edward had been staying over the week end at Mrs. Loeffler's villa. Lady Ednam was paying a visit to London after attending her sick husband at Le Touquet. She had not originally booked a place in the plane but finding at the last minute that there was a vacant seat had decided to make the journey.

It was stated here tonight that Shearing had done much flying in America. He returned from there in October, 1928.

Shortly before leaving the United States, he had become involved in an accident when attempting to land in a fog on Long Island.

On one occasion, it was stated here, his plane caught fire over Los Angeles. Shearing escaped mishap by using a parachute.

SHOT WHILE ON HIS WAY TO TESTIFY IN COURT

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—On his way to testify against six men charged with counterfeiting, James De Sapio, 42, of Brooklyn was shot down today as he stood on a street corner in Coney Island. Another witness in the same case was killed several days ago.

De Sapio was taken to Coney Island hospital, where he declined to name his attacker or assign a motive for the shooting. The gunman escaped in an automobile.

De Sapio was arrested with six other men several weeks ago as a member of a band of alleged counterfeiters said to have flooded Long Island towns with spurious $100 bills. All were released in bail ranging from $3,000 to $15,000. Federal agents had been trying unsuccessfully to discover the source of the counterfeit money and it was believed De Sapio held the key. He pleaded guilty and was to be a government witness.

When word of the shooting reached the courtroom, Assistant Federal Attorney Wilkinson asked that the case be set over and that the defendants' bail be increased to $50,000 each. Both requests were granted and all six were remanded to jail when they failed to provide the higher bail.

An attempt also was made to secure a statement from De Sapio, who was said to be in a critical condition.

GERMAN POLICE ATTACKED BY HORDES OF COMMUNISTS

FRANKFORT-ON-ODER, Germany, July 21—(AP)—The police, in a clash with several thousand communists tonight, barely held their own. A number of communists were injured.

The communists had staged a meeting attended by their local following and 1,700 out of town sympathizers. They attempted to surround and disarm the police stationed to watch the meeting.

Riot squads, hastily summoned, were attacked with flag poles and clubs. When the police retaliated with blackjacks, the communists bombarded them with stones, bottles, beer mugs and other objects.

It was not until the police started to use firearms that the communists ceased their attacks.

Little Rock, Ark., Plane Lead[illegible] The Air Derby

[illegible]3 Minute Lead In First [illegible]op of 5,500 Mile Flight For $15,000 Prize.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 21—Lee Gehlbach, in a Little Rock, Ark., entry, finished the first day of the all American air derby with a 23-minute lead toward the first prize of $15,000 for the fastest elapsed time over a 5,500 mile swing around the country.

The race started at Detroit this morning, with a stop at Buffalo. Gehlbach came in first on both legs. At Buffalo Robert T. Quinby of Moline, Ill., was a close second, with Herman Hamer of Chicago coming in on his tail. By the time they got here, however, Quinby had dropped back to 12th place, Hamer moving up to second, and L. H. Bayles of Springfield, Mass., edging into third.

In landing at Buffalo the official derby plane and an entry piloted by John Kruttschnitt of San Mateo, Cal., nosed over in a gusty wind but no serious damage was done and both ships continued after repairs. There was almost an accident just north of New York city, when the engine in the entry piloted by S. T. Stanton of Blackwell, Okla., faltered. Stanton was about to go over the side and release his parachute when the motor picked up. On landing, a broken oil line was found and repaired.

Sixteen of the 18 derby planes landed here in a period of an hour and 25 minutes, but the other two, flown by Harvey C. Mummert of Hammondsport, N. Y., and Edgar B. Todd of Pueblo, Colo., had not appeared two hours later when the others went to dinner. It was generally believed that they had been forced to land and had been unable so far to communicate with the night control point.

Tomorrow the fliers leave for Cincinnati at 8 a. m. (e. s. t.) and the next day they go to Little Rock. There are no scheduled way stops on either of these days.

A last minute change of plans today caused some confusion. The New York landing place had been announced as the New York city airport at Flushing, Queens, and the North Shore chamber of commerce had offered $1,000 in lap money and invited the aviators to dinner.

Today, however, Lee Schoenhair, flight referee, inspected the field before the fliers were due and telephoned them in Buffalo to land at Roosevelt field. As a result the prize and the dinner invitation were withdrawn. The fliers had dinner here.

The fliers reached this field in the following order: Gehlbach, Hamer, Bayles, J. R. Wedell of New Orleans, B. B. Smith of Portland, Ore., Stanton, Charles Myers of Cleveland, H. H. Ogden of Englewood, Cal., Joe Meehan of Ironton, O., R. A. Hosler of Detroit, William Cahill of Cleveland, Quinby, Larry Brown of Los Angeles, C. H. Coffin of Brooklyn, H. H. Holladay, and Kruttschnitt.

KILLED HUSBAND AND SON, THEN LASHED HER THROAT

GENEVA, July 21—(AP)—A farmer's wife, driven to despair by financial worries, killed her husband and 18 year old son with an ax today, set fire to their home and then ended her own life by slashing her throat with a razor.

The victims were Charles A. Anderson, 55, Kane County farmer, Willis, the son, and Mrs. Anderson, 43.

The tragedy was discovered by Charles Larsen, brother-in-law of the farmer, who slept on the second floor. Larsen said he was awakened by smoke. He descended an outside stairway and with the aid of neighbors battered in the kitchen door.

They found the farmer and his son hacked to death in their beds. The mattresses had been ignited. A bloody hand ax was on the floor. Nearby was the body of the mother, the throat slashed and under one of the beds the razor was found.

The sheriff learned that the family had had considerable financial troubles which worried Mrs. Anderson.

STUDENT SHOT RUMANIAN MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR

BUCHAREST, July 21—(AP)—A young student burst into the office of Dr. Constantine Angelescu, acting minister of the interior at noon today, and, drawing a revolver, shot the statesman twice in the body.

Physicians tonight said Dr. Angelescu was in an extremely dangerous condition and would probably die. For many years he has been prominent in Rumanian politics, having served as minister of public instruction, minister of public works and minister of the interior.

As Rumanian minister to the United States, he headed a mission there in 1917.

FIRE DESTROYED PENN. ROAD PIER IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., July 21—(AP)—A 150 foot pier of the Pennsylvania Railroad was destroyed by fire which broke out this afternoon after an earlier blaze in the structure was thought to have been extinguished. Officials could not make an immediate estimate of the damage pending a check on the merchandise destroyed by the flames.

Fire boats and land apparatus responding to two alarms kept the flames from spreading to adjoining water front property, including a plant of the Standard Oil company. Several barges moored alongside the pier was cut away by firemen and towed out of range of the flames.

SURF HOTEL, NARRAGANSETT PIER, DESTROYED BY FIRE; $50,000 DAMAGE

NARRAGANSETT, R. I., July 21—(AP)—A home made water tower and a 30 year old steam pumper manned by volunteer firemen, saved fashionable Narragansett Pier from a general fire this afternoon, when flames which demolished the Surf hotel on Beach street, were halted before they could spread to adjacent frame structures. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Fire broke out suddenly in a delicatessen store in the hotel building at 2:10 o'clock. A series of explosions originating in an oil stove preceded a burst of smoke and flame through the windows of the shop. The hotel was soon a mass of flames.

The roof of a cupola at the west end of the hotel collapsed, almost striking five of the firemen, and a 40-foot flagpole which had surmounted the hotel toppled across a 4,000 volt high tension wire in the street, bringing down a sputtering, melting mass of wire.

Trunk line telephone connections to Providence were disrupted for about three hours by the fall of wires.

TEMPERATURE OF 99 BREAKS ALL NEW YORK CITY RECORDS

City Officials Are to Permit Sleeping On Beaches and In Parks Until the Heat Wave Abates — Five Deaths From Heat Were Reported In New York, Four In Philadelphia, Four In St. Louis and Three In Baltimore—Intense Heat Wave Has Given Way to Moderate Summer Weather In the Central States.

(By the Associated Press)

The endurance contest between the sun and the citizenry narrowed down yesterday to a finish fight on a battleground which reached from Ohio to the middle Atlantic seaboard.

Rain and cooler weather revived the Mississippi river states and those farther west, and New England and the south suffered less than Sunday and Saturday, but the July tribulations of the east were increased in proportion. To the Associated Press came reports of many broken heat records, accompanied by widespread suffering.

New York sweltered through the hottest July 21 on record, with the temperature touching 99 to smash a record that had stood since 1885. City officials announced that sleeping would be permitted on all beaches and in parks until the crisis was past. One hundred and seventy six street cleaning showers were placed at the disposal of overheated children.

Five deaths resulted from heat in New York.

Baltimore, where the temperature soared to 104.4, reported three deaths and more than a score of prostrations in Maryland. Baltimore authorities found it necessary to forbid lawn sprinkling to conserve water.

Philadelphia saw the mercury exceed 100 degrees for the second time in three days, with scant relief in sight. Four deaths and a score or more of prostrations was the toll.

Harrisburg, Pa., marshaled its forest fire fighters to guard against the possibility of a general conflagration in wooded lands because of the long dry spell. Thirteen blazes had been extinguished and more were expected.

Atlanta citizens, suffering under a boiling sun, told stories of how corn popped in the fields and eggs hatched without the assistance of the mother hens.

At Richmond, the mercury again soared over the century mark. Four died of prostrations in St. Louis after three successive days of 100 degrees or more.

MODERATE WEATHER IN THE CENTRAL STATES

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Moderate summer weather today relieved the central states of the intense heat that had prevailed for three days with temperatures of 100 and more.

Generally, the thermometer registered in the 70's today and in the western edge of the plains states, it was lower. The hot wave has swept on to the east, leaving many deaths and much material damage in its wake.

There were reports of rain in several regions and showers were predicted in other areas. Grass was burned under the glaring sun, but it was good growing weather for corn in most places.

Crowds still sought the lake shore and summer resorts, and many of the fatalities were due to drowning while courting the coolness of bathing beaches. The beach crowds in Chicago, which had a few hours' respite Saturday night while a breeze blew from the lake, broke all records and kept the police and the life guards busy for long hours.

So hot was it Sunday, that not half the usual number of motorists were on the roads and even the golf trains were not crowded as is the custom on a Sabbath.

The forecast in Chicago was for continued mild weather.

REPORTS OF HEAT WAVE THROUGHOUT NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, July 21—(AP)—New England which has been on the edge of the heat wave for several days, today managed to steer clear of real torrid temperatures with but a few exceptions. The day was just another sticky July day with intermittent thunder and lightning storms clearing the atmosphere at nightfall.

Pittsfield, was evidently the hottest place in this section during the day. An official temperature of 95 was recorded there.

Storms broke over Boston at dusk and sent a humidity, that had been slightly above normal all day, sky rocketing from 53 to 93 in ten minutes. It returned to lower readings almost as quickly later. The showers also visited the northern sections, New Hampshire and Vermont welcoming them, although the temperatures during the early part of the day in these sections were unusually low.

The highest temperature in Boston, was 79 at 2:15 p. m., EST.

Connecticut, like Pittsfield, in the western part of Massachusetts, provided exceptions. New Haven and Waterbury registered near record temperatures. New Haven reported a reading of 100, the hottest day in four years, and Waterbury set a high mark for itself for the year with 101.

BREAK IN HOT WAVE PROMISED BY TONIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) — The end of the nearly nation-wide heat wave was predicted by the weather bureau tonight, with indications that the break would spread as far east as the Appalachian Mountains Tuesday and to the Middle and North Atlantic States by or during Tuesday night.

ENDURANCE PLANE PILOT WAS OVERCOME BY HEAT

AN OIL TANKER SEIZED WITH $500,000 WORTH LIQUOR

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—An oil tanker which drew attention to itself by acting unlike an oil tanker was a $500,000 liquor prize of the Coast Guard today.

The Coast Guard cutter Seneca came upon the tanker, under tow of the tug Victory, 21 miles off the Jersey coast yesterday, and it was those 21 miles that made Capt. J. J. Hudson send a boarding party over the rail.

For Capt. Hudson knew that ordinarily oil barges hug the coast rather closely and he suspected that the tanker might have gone out in an effort to avoid notice.

Ten men were taken prisoner on the tug and barge. The boarding party seized 2,700 cases of liquor of an estimated retail value of about $250,000 and 150 kegs of malt worth $50,000 but convertible into $150,000 worth of whiskey. The tug and tanker were valued at $100,000.

IN Hollywood, beauty is not accepted as a gift of the gods and casually dismissed. Lovely women of the screen must rely upon professional beauty experts to keep their skin flawless for the tell-tale camera.

Perhaps that is why laws regarding beauty practice are so stringent in California. Every beauty shop owner in this state must be a licensed operator, and must know, thoroughly, how to care for the skin.

You can appreciate, then, the importance of this fact: 76 of the 80 beauty shops in Hollywood advise their patrons to use Palmolive Soap as the best means of keeping skin lovely between salon treatments. These 76 shops care for all the well-known stars of the screen. They are the Hollywood authorities on beauty culture! And all 76 of them consider Palmolive best!

The Hollywood treatment

The twice-a-day treatment advised in the Capital of Screenland is the very same method urged by the great beauty specialists all over Europe and America. Here it is:

Massage a lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water gently into the skin for about two minutes. Rinse this off with generous applications of warm water, then colder and colder. That final cold water rinse closes the pores, acts as an astringent.

You could use no finer daily care than this. And use Palmolive for the bath, as well. Millions do, all over the world. It costs no more than ordinary soaps, you know.

DANIELSON

GATEHOUSE AT WAUREGAN MILLS DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 21.—The gatehouse over the canal of the Wauregan company's mills at Wauregan was destroyed by fire and the four gates quite badly damage this afternoon. The loss was estimated at close to $12,000.

A request for help was telephoned to the Danielson fire department, the Captain Put Engine company responding. The gatehouse had been practically destroyed before the arrival of the Danielson firemen, who ran into a peck of trouble trying to hook up their lines and thereby lost about twenty minutes of extremely valuable time, for they could have contributed, working with their usual efficiency to reducing the damage to the gates.

The gatehouse was in process of being re-shingled at the time the fire broke out. It started in some shingles lying on the ground near one end of the gatehouse, which sat astride of the canal and covered the heavy gates that control the flow of water for the mill company. Before workman engaged about the place could find means of trying to stop the fire it had spread and had gone out of hand.

Members of the Atwood Hose company of Wauregan responded to an alarm and battled the fire, but saving the gatehouse proved quite impossible. The theory is that the fire was caused by someone smoking about the destroyed building.

The damaged gates are going to create a heavy item of expense in rebuilding. Each of the four is eleven feet square and six inches in thickness. They are built of yellow pine. The stubs, as they may be called, protruding at the tops are burned, as are other timbers that enter into the construction about the gates.

J. Arthur Atwood of the Wauregan company said after the fire that to the best of his recollection there was no particular fire insurance policy covering the gatehouse itself, though he was under the impression that the building and gates were covered in some of the blanket policies carried by the concern.

The fire was watched by hundreds of people.

It was given out today that J. F. Gardner, Jr., agent of the Quinebaug company mills here, will succeed C. M. Robinson as agent of the Wauregan company mills, effective on Mr. Robinson's retirement August 1. Agent Robinson resigned his position the past week to enjoy a well earned rest after 38 years of experience in textile manufacturing.

Agent Gardner will continue in his present capacity at the Quinebaug mills as well as being agent of the Wauregan mills. He has been with the Quinebaug company as agent for the past 16 years, and rates one of the most capable and successful men filling similar positions in southern New England.

The funeral of Mrs. Matilda LaPointe was held this morning from the home in Central Village with a high mass of requiem at All Hallows' church in Moosup at 9 o'clock. Rev. Philip Massicote, the pastor, was celebrant of the mass, many attending. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery at Dayville. The bearers were Joseph LaPointe, Charles LaPointe, Charles Roberts, George Roberts, Joseph Paradise and Fred Metevier. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Numbers of Danielson people will go to Douglas, Mass., this week for the annual camp meeting, a very considerable delegation representing the Nazarene church. This is one of the oldest camp meetings in the country, this being the 56th annual meeting. Sessions will continue through to Monday of next week, July 28. Numbers of outstanding preachers are scheduled to be heard some of them coming from as far away as Los Angeles. A quick and easy route to the camp from Danielson is via the Providence state highway to Chopmist hill, twelve miles east of here, thence through Chepachet and Pascoag. Practically all of this distance can be covered over good state highways.

This town's outstanding social event in aid of the Nurses' home fund for the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam is in the informal dance to be held at Wildwood park next Wednesday evening. The impression appears to have gone out that this is to be a highly formal event, which is far from being the case. The dance will be informal, everyone is invited and the local committee is very anxious to have a large attendance.

Cars operated by P. Alfred Bonneville of 54 Woodstock avenue, Putnam, and Arsene Johnson of New London crashed practically head-on early this afternoon on Elmville road a short distance north of the state police barracks. There were no personal injuries of consequence, though Johnson, whose car was carrying a Maine registration, received some minor cuts and scratches on one hand.

A group picture of the original Wauregan Grays taken upon the occasion of their reunion on the Fourth, when they played the famed Jewett City nine of more than a quarter century back, came out splendidly. Dozens of these pictures will be prized as souvenirs by fans who knew the players when they were in their prime.

Miss Beatrice Geer, an operator at the central telephone exchange, is visiting in Boston this week.

There was a high speed exodus from this community shortly after one o'clock this afternoon as a "33" alarm called out the fire department for a fast run to Wauregan to battle a fire at the gatehouse of the Wauregan company mills. Firemen gave the word as to where the alarm was calling them, and out went the cars at top speed. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at the Danielson barracks, detailed three of his officers to go to the fire and control traffic conditions in the vicinity.

Bernard Casey, clerk at the Danielson postoffice, and Howard Withey, one of the city carriers, are having their annual leave of absence from duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cayen are en route to Detroit in their car on a vacation trip and will visit many points of interest en route.

A board fence that had been somewhat decrepit has been placed in good repair by the selectmen at the southerly boundary line, at the rear of the town hall property. A steel ceiling also is being installed in the cell room of the police station in the building.

The heat wave renewed its assault today, running the mercury up to 93 degrees in Danielson during the early afternoon. It so happens that many mill workers are on vacation this week, and they were appreciative of their freedom from their usual duties under the circumstances.

Several of his little friends were invited to join with Warren A. Tanner, Jr., the past week for the observance of his tenth birthday. The group attended the theatre and later was served refreshments at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Tanner.

It is understood that the state fish and game commission is to do considerable restocking of trout streams in this part of Windham county during the next few weeks, replenishing the supply of fish depleted during the open season that closed with the coming of this month.

There will be attendance from Danielson at the Canadian-American association outing to be held at Bacock's grove on the banks of the Quinebaug river near Plainfield next Sunday. Attendance is expected from various New England states. A program of sports will be included in plans for the day.

An outing and picnic for members of the Sunday school of the Union Baptist church at East Killingly was held at Claude Moran's grove near that place on Saturday.

JEWETT CITY

WATER CARNIVAL PLANS ARE WELL ADVANCED

P. W. Chase says that the non-swimmers in this section are in decided minority. The Ashland bathing beach, always popular, appears to be even more so this summer with every good swimming day looking like Coney Island, out back of the club house. Preparations are under way for the annual water carnival, sponsored by the Ashland club with Mr. Chase in charge. It is planned to engage a special attraction of some kind and in all probability the local aquatic fans may be given opportunity to see Esther Morrison, New England's high board diving champion. Although there are plenty of swimmers and diving artists right here, Mr. Chase may have a few champions from the outside. It has also been thought that a boat parade would prove an added attraction.

This (Tuesday) evening on the Fisk grounds, Lloyd Jarvis' All-Stars will play the Fisk team.

BROTHERS IN QUARREL ARE GASHED WITH SCYTHE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 21. — Two brothers, Joseph and Michael Kaminski, were locked up in the police station this evening, following a fight in which both men were so badly cut with a scythe, which was the principal weapon, that Dr. F. E. Rainville was obliged to dress and sew up several bad wounds. Ill feeling over a matter some years ago in which a sum of money is involved, has never been settled between the two men, although there has been previously several fights and one court case.

As near as can be learned Joe hit Mike over the head first with the snath of the scythe. Michael then grabbed the blade and one hand was badly cut. In the mix-up that followed, as they fought to obtain the weapon he received a long gash in one arm. Joseph owns the one-time Charles Johnson farm in Lisbon and is employed here in the Aspinook machine shop. Officer William Howeson of Lisbon made both arrests. The men will be brought to trial before Judge Earl Palmer in Lisbon Tuesday.

Warden E. J. Jodoin, after being confined to his home for two weeks, was able to be down town Monday, being well on the road to recovery.

The mercury flirted with the lower 90s Monday, but with the humidity at normal the wilting features of Saturday were absent.

Mrs. Duncan MacKay of Lisbon is entertaining Miss Margaret MacKay, a niece from Glasgow, Scotland.

NAUGATUCK WOMEN KILLED WHEN CAR HITS TREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 21.—Bonnada Lombardi, 41, of 2 Cotton Hollow, Naugatuck, Conn., who was killed, when the car operated by Elmira Lombardi, her husband, went out of control and crashed into a tree about two miles from here. Their son was riding on the front seat with his father. They were en route to Woonsocket, R. I., and when they were rounding the turn about two hundred yards west of the Gary school house they went onto the soft shoulder of the road and lost control of the car. Mr. Lombardi tried to right the car and the car swung across the road and went into a tree. Mrs. Lombardi suffered a fractured skull which resulted in her death a few minutes after she arrived at the Day Kimball hospital. Mr. Lombardi and their son received a few minor cuts and bruises and as far as is known now neither is seriously injured. They were riding in a Ford coach when the accident happened. The accident was investigated by Officer James Carmody of the Danielson state police barracks.

CRAGAN PRESENTED ON BOGAS CHECK CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 21—At a session of the city court this afternoon Arthur Cragan alias George Grayson of Spencer, Mass., was charged with the fraudulent issuing of checks. Cragan is charged with passing two bad checks in Putnam, one of which was passed at the Putnam Inn. The check was drawn against the Home Bank and Trust company of South Manchester for $38.80. Another check for $29.75 was passed in Putnam but it was not revealed whom he defrauded with this check. The case was adjourned until Friday morning at nine o'clock. Prosecuting Attorney Eric Johnson said that by Friday morning he hoped to have the witnesses that have gone to other parts of the state in town and that he would press four counts against the prisoner, two charges of passing bad checks and two counts of forgery. The bail was set at two hundred dollars but as the prisoner was not able to furnish it he was held.

It was said today that the Salzberg Silk Co. of Putnam was operating 133 looms at the present time. The Salzberg Co. hopes in the very near future to bring all of their Fall River plant to Putnam because the labor conditions here are much better than in Fall River.

The new road that is being built between the Grove cemetery and Putnam Heights is practically finished and is now open to the public. The road will join the Providence pike just below the Children's home. The workmen at the present time are putting up the fences and fixing the shoulders of the road. It will be a shorter route for the people in the southern end of Putnam to go to Providence and it will be much better than the old route over School street.

Miss Veronica Coffee of Hartford has returned home after spending a week with her cousin Miss Alice Rogers of Pomfret street.

A large group of the people from Putnam went to Boston and New York on the excursions which were run by the railroad. The majority of them went to the ballgames and the rest went to the beach. Coney Island was the most popular beach with the group that went to New York and Revere drew a large number of the excursionists who visited Boston.

There have been no further developments in the deal for the Novelty Manufacturing company to occupy the Adams mill in Putnam. It is hoped that something will be definitely learned within the next week. It is thought that they will locate in Putnam if they can procure a lease on the property at a reasonable figure. Mr. Adams, the head of the Adams company, was in town last week but he would not say whether the two companies had come to an agreement or not.

Mrs. A. Vonsiatsky, of Thompson, who is chairman of the drive for $25,000 for the erection of a nurses home at the Day Kimball hospital, announced that plans are underway for a carnival to be held in Putnam either in August or September. The people of Pomfret are to give a White Elephant fair in the middle of August the proceeds of which will be donated to the fund. The Broadway success "Nothing But the Truth" which is now rehearsing, is under the direction of Charles Swain of Pomfret and will be given in five towns. Boxing bouts will be given in Danielson in the early part of September for the benefit of the fund and it is hoped to procure some of the better known boxers of the east to perform. The tennis tournament which was held on the Fourth of July was such a success that another will be held at Thompson on Labor day. There will also be a golf tournament on that day.

The quotas of the different towns as agreed on by the committee members of the towns are, Putnam $5,000, Danielson, $5,000, Pomfret, $6,000, Thompson, $5,000, Woodstock, $2,500, Brooklyn, $1,000 and Eastford $500. The fund up to this morning had reached $4,500 and there is quite a sum which has not been turned in from the recent benefits.

The sixty-eighth annual meeting of the incorporators of the Putnam Savings bank was held this afternoon at two o'clock. The Putnam Savings bank is the oldest bank in Putnam and is one of the largest of its kind in Windham county. The last year of the bank has been very successful and the bank is stronger than ever. The officers that have been elected to serve during the following year are: President, Ernest B. Kent; vice president, John F. Reardon; secretary and treasurer, Arthur F. Hughes. The following trustees were elected to act for the next year, Alfred Brousseau, George D. Clark, Oscar Bonin, Ray C. Bosworth, George C. Dugas, Claus Hapstram, Thomas Hanley, Arthur F. Hughes, Bert Johnson, Luther M. Keith, Ernest B. Kent, Fred Munyon, John F. Reardon, Samuel Reynolds, Melancthor Riddick, and Joseph B. Stoddard.

Mr. F. Gordon Caffery of Providence spent the wek end with his mother at her home on Pomfret street.

The work on the new Cargill Trust company is progressing very rapidly now after being delayed for quite a time because of not being able to get the materials with which to decorate the inside. The staging that the painters were using was taken down today and after the work has progressed a little more an opening date can be set by the officials of the bank.

Putnam was unusually lucky over the week end with no arrests and no accidents. It is not very often that the city can go through a week and with no blemishes on its record.

J. Dyer Potter, the treasurer of the Cargill Trust company is back at work after a week's vacation.

The baseball fans of this town are quite disappointed as a result of the two town teams losing their games yesterday. The Silk Sox were defeated yesterday by the Z. P. R. K. team of Webster who are at present leading the Southern New England league. If the Silk Sox had won the game yesterday it would have put them in first place and they would have had an easy time of winning the pennant this year but by losing the game they drop down to third place and all hope for the pennant seems lost. The way the teams stand in the league at present is: Z. P. R. K. of Webster, Slaters of Webster, Silk Sox of Putnam, St. Joseph's of Webster, Quinebaug and the American Legion of Grosvenordale.

The Putnam Independents journeyed to Willimantic yesterday and lost an eleven inning game to the West End team by a score of nine to eight.

Miss Regina Hebert, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hebert was married at eight o'clock this morning to Henry Duchesne son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Duchesne. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. John Mathieu at St. Joseph's church in Grosvenordale.

The couple were attended by Henry Hebert, brother of the bride and Henry Duchesene Sr. The double ring service was used.

A reception was held at the home of the bride but it was restricted to the immediate families of the bride and groom. The bride wore a long dress of white duchess satin, trimmed with maline. She carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. For travelling she wore a tan dress with a blue wrap. They have gone to Boston on their honeymoon and will make their home with the groom's parents on their return.

Bronze tablets along the highway leading from Pomfret to Brooklyn contain much information pertaining to Gen. Israel Putnam, Eastford's distinguished son, General Nathaniel Lyon, gave his wealth ($30,000) his services, his military genius and his life in defence of his country, yet there is not by the roadside, close to his modest and neglected marble monument, even a marker to show tourists and pedestrians that they are on hallowed historic ground.

Your Cigar

A chemist says he's analyzed a very good cigar,
And learnedly tells us just what its ingredients are;
Acetic acid, prussic, too, phenol, and nicotine,
Some sulfuretted hydrogen, a dash of picolene,
Valerianic acid and ammonia, so he wrote,
With acid proprianic, and a trace of creosote.

But he didnt' find the essence that will set a mind at peace,
And he overlooked the tincture that gives care a swift release;
He missed the oil of happiness that keeps the fire a-gleam,
And doesn't mention how the smoke will float you to a dream
Of happy days and good old friends, until in it you trace
The graces and the dimples of a well-remembered face.

He didn't find the reason why so many fancies are Wrapped up in such a package as that very same cigar;
He found a small-sized drugstore, but somehow he couldn't catch
The comfort that one can secure if he applies a match;
And though he found the acids and the other queer-named stuff,
He couldn't find the pleasure that there is in every puff.

Sunflowers

My tall sunflowers love the sun,
Love the burning August noons
When the locust tunes its viol,
And the cricket croons.

When the purple night draws in,
With its planets hung on high,
And the attared winds of slumber
Wander down the sky.

Still my sunflowers love the sun,
Keep their ward and watch and wait
Till the rosy key of morning
Opes the Eastern Gate.

Then, when they have deeply quaffed
From the brimming cups of dew,
You can hear their golden laughter
All the garden through!

TREATY RATIFICATION

One of the best bits of news the country has received for months is the announcement that the United States senate has adjourned without date. That will be recognized throughout the nation as a decided relief and one of the great regrets will be that when it assembles in December for the short session its makeup will be much the same as of recent date, regardless of what is vote on election day.

The vote of 58 to 9 shows upon what feeble ground the senate has been kept in session for nearly two weeks and a half. All this time has been devoted to the London treaty, ratified by more than a six to one vote. It has been confidently expressed during all of the special session that there was an overwhelming majority for the treaty. It has been known that sentiment throughout the country was strongly for the acceptance of the pact and yet the wee minority has been putting up a hopeless and obstructive fight against the wish of the senate and against the desire of the country.

There was even a determined effort made to prevent the senate from voting upon the ratification of the treaty. Efforts were directed toward delay until winter. Reservations and changes were offered with the idea of confusing the situation. That wasn't the interpretation which the movers placed upon them but that was the effect desired. Strong hope was placed on the success of the suspicion which the objectors tried to cast upon the papers which the president refused to turn over to the committee or the senate. It failed as it deserved.

The country has cause for satisfaction that there were sufficient senators in attendance to prevent any recess or postponement before action could be taken. It has reason to be satisfied that the treaty has been ratified and that this country has taken the lead in giving its approval to the limitation agreement. Knowing that it was within the power of the senate to keep the special session within bounds, there isn't so much sympathy for the senators and their stay in Washington during the hot weather as there might otherwise have been. Nevertheless it is well that the minority has had its say and resorted to all its tricks to prevent ratification. It made a non impressive fight and despite the heat was snowed under. It is well. Once more the president has won.

TREE SITTING YOUNGSTERS

When authorities insist there must be a stop put to many of the freak endurance tests in which children are participating there can be no surprise.

It is quite evident that the idea of such stunts has been gained from the endurance flights and the pole sitting exhibitions. Between the two there is no comparison. Remaining in the air for a record breaking period in a flying machines proves the value of the motor for long distance use, the ability to refuel in the air, the skill of the operators as well as the courage and endurance of the fliers cooped up in small and cramped quarters.

There is nothing about the pole sitting stunt that displays any skill beyond that of subjecting oneself to uncomfortable inconveniences. There is endurance involved but it contributes nothing to scientific development. And as for sitting in trees for several days or a week or more there's nothing inspirational about it.

The wonder is that the parents have left it to the authorities to put a stop to such foolishness. They should have displayed a reaction that would have promptly ended it, yet there are instances where they seem to have given it every possible encouragement and it is possible that they even instigated it.

Pole sitting or tree sitting is much like the see sawing and rope jumping stunts. If there is a real ambition to do something the time might at least be devoted to something constructive. Those boy tree sitters might better employ their time seeing how long they could hold a job, how many quarts of berries they could pick, how much wood they might split and pile up, how many dollars they could earn doing errands.

We can imagine what their reaction would be if such a proposition were to be put up before them by their parents and yet it would be far more creditable to their parents if they did that very thing instead of contributing their efforts to providing food and comforts for the youngster who is sprawled on sofa pillows up in a tree. There is nothing for fond and doting parents to be proud of in such exhibitions.

AIDING SHIP CONSTRUCTION

While it is the desire of this country that the government dispose of the ships which it constructed during the war to private interests, it is also the desire that shipbuilding be revived. That was manifested when legislation was adopted by congress which made it possible for those interested in such construction to obtain the necessary funds from the government at a low rate.

Anticipation doesn't always result in realization, but in this instance there are figures to support it. According to the quarterly report of shipbuilding in Lloyd's Register of Shipping we have not overtaken Great Britain and Ireland in the amount of ship building, but we have cut down the difference between the amount which they are doing and what we are doing by 300,000 in comparison with the same quarter last year. That means appreciable progress.

What gets further attention in that quarterly report is the fact that it shows we have replaced Germany as the second largest shipbuilding country. That is no mean accomplishment. Germany is a big shipbuilding country. It always has been and for it to be set back into third place because of the gain in ship construction in this country is most unusual.

This country has a total of 288,163 gross tons under construction according to the year's second quarterly report. This isn't so much in excess of the first quarter, being only 15,000 larger, but it is a gain and from the plans which are being discussed it represents activity which can be expected to continue. It represents a doubling of the tonnage under construction a year ago and evidences the help which federal legislation has given to this industry.

American shipbuilding has been operating under big handicaps. They have not all been removed but the new life that is being shown indicates that private capital is responding to the stimulating legislation. Apparently it is going to help the situation materially but one thing is sure and that is that there is not that hesitancy on the part of private enterprise to get into the shipping business that was manifested a few years ago.

DANGEROUS LOW FLIERS

The protest which has been made to the state police against the practice on the part of certain aviators in flying so low over the beaches near Milford as to frighten the bathers would appear to be justified.

This would appear to be a stunting exhibition by some irresponsible flier who takes delight in seeing how close he can come to the helpless individuals and get away with it. He is engaged in showing off in a manner that not only violates the flying laws of this state but subjects humanity to needless alarm.

However much it may be looked upon as clever flying by those engaged in it and however much it may be claimed that there is no danger to those in the water, it is quite evident that there is no justification for it and there is no telling when something will happen or the plane will fail to respond and the unexpected and undesired will happen. If such does occur there is no protection for those underneath. They must take the consequences of someone's recklessness. It will then be too late to provide any preventive.

It was several years ago that the dangers of low flying were recognized when certain aviators tried to do much the same stunt over the course of the Yale-Harvard race on the Thames river. They didn't fall but they did alarm many along the four mile stretch of the river, so much so that prompt measures were taken to stop it and it has never been repeated. What might have happened had no attention been paid to it we do not know. We are thankful that no chance was provided to find out.

The demonstrations at Milford have been such that nothing short of a prompt stop to them should be thought of. Those fliers who are willing to take such chances with their own lives that they endanger others raise the query as to whether they should be given permission to fly. The Milford protests should produce prompt action.

WHAT THE TRUNK TRICK DID

M. Alfred Michaelson was elected by the seventh congressional district of Illinois to represent it at Washington in the 67th congress and he has been reelected every two years since then and would unquestionably have been nominated and elected to the 72nd congress in November under ordinary circumstances.

Congressman Michaelson is a dry, was elected as such, voted as such and in the recent primary ran as such. He it was who took a trip to the West Indies and upon his return the government authorities seized his trunks but one of them had sprung a leak. In the trial that followed a relative came forward and claimed that he was responsible for the bothersome situation and the matter was disposed of in that manner for the time being, but when the congressman came up for renomination the situation was used against him.

It was a heated contest. He was opposed by J. C. Moreland, republican and wet, and when the ballots were counted Michaelson was declared the nominee. With a recount called for and granted it has been disclosed that the count developed many frauds and it has now been declared that Moreland has received the nomination.

What this district might have done under ordinary circumstances in a contest between a wet and dry candidate is not clearly indicated. What it did when the contest was between a suspicious dry and a pronounced wet has been disclosed. Congressman Michaelson managed to get away from the damaging charges that were raised against him in Florida but his district didn't back him up. Either it doesn't care to endorse his leaky trunk or it may have changed its mind on the wet question. At any rate it seeks new representation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Have sympathy for the fellow who is pushing a lawn mower.

Senator Johnson thinks he knows no way to fight for his country except to die, but opinions will vary as to whether such fighting is for it or against it.

It is the advice of doctors that Senator Borah take a two months vacation. There are some who would not restrict the time to two months.

It wouldn't surprise us at all if we are furnished an account of that promised flight of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and parents to Maine, written by the young man himself.

At Boston an auto has been found parked on a railroad track. Well, that is where many men have gone to sleep permanently, not having had the luck of being found before being hit, as the auto was.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, July 21—Members of congress familiar with the broad knowledge and practical experience of Representative Tilson of Connecticut, along the line of parlimentary laws, are much pleased over what they hear, to the effect that the republican floor leader of the house has been appointed by Yale university as special lecturer on parliamentary law, and will give a series of lectures next winter. They will in no way interfere with Tilson's duties in congress.

Col. Tilson has often been asked by clubs to give talks on the laws and the rules under which congress acts, and this new duty he will assume, is right along that line and cannot fail to be a popular and important phase of Yale instruction.

Members of congress left behind in Washington are as scarce as hen's teeth, as they say down in Maine. Senators a'plenty are here or in the offing, the SOS messages sent out by President Hoover to round up votes for the London treaty brought administrations senators back-a'running.

Several senators had taken the opportunity to fix early July for their wedding dates, but Mr. Hoover was unsympathetic and recalls from honeymoon trips have been the order of the day.

Probably none caused so much social stir, as that of Senator Smoot of Utah, and whom the president recalled from his wedding trip almost the day of the marriage. Moreover as Smoot is a high official in the Mormon church and Hoover a staunch Quaker the wedding journey ending at the white house caused many a good natured comment.

Two tribal chiefs from the Fiji islands have been in Washington the past few weeks, as missionaries of the Seventh Day Adventists. They have attracted much attention, dressed in native "Sulus" which are short skirts worn over the leggins, and topped by Americanized shirt, neckties and collars, wearing their hair somewhat long, and yet it stands up straight and very bushy. The men created a sensation even here at the capital where we meet Indians in blanket and feathers; servants at various embassies and legations in native costumes, at every street corner.

The parents of the two Fiji missionaries are said to have been cannibals. They speak but little English, but Jaili Tikowale, the leader, wanted to pay a compliment to the capital of the nation, and turning to his escort remarked, "Very becoming, your capital city." Anything beyond that required an interpreter.

The mixture of native and acquired costumes reminds one of the visit here several years ago, of a distinguished Chinese official of high rank. He was accompanied by his wife and two daughters, still girls in their teens. They came just in time to attend a white house reception to diplomats on the forenoon of New Year's day. Entering with the ambassador from Japan, in broad daylight, they were the center of attention. The gentleman from Japan wore a conventional American-made suit; his wife was in complete Japanese dress; the two girls had been impressed with the great freedom of American girls—so, though their dresses were the straight, one-piece garment of Japan, made of beautiful figured silk, they had bobbed hair and it stood out bushy and big all over their little heads, while their tiny feet had discarded Chinese foot wear, and they minched their way along in spike heeled shoes of the most approved flapper style. But they seemed radiantly happy at having achieved American customs during their second week in this country.

Washingtonians can but regret that the old time picturesque distinctive national dress of those from oriental countries has given place to the conventional American clothes. We miss the wonderful gowns worn by the first Madam Wu, and the even more wonderful clothes of Minister Wu Ting Fang, as they paid formal daytime visits or attended state receptions in the highest official circles.

And what about those former Russian ambassadors, who drove round the city in marvelous carriages brought from Russia, and driven by huge coachmen, wearing immensely tall Russian hats? Nowadays the automobiles of foreign ambassadors can't be distinguished from those of the plain American citizen, unless one gets, by chance, a peep at the monogram on the door.

And all this brings back to mind the day we attended a tea at the Chinese embassy, years and years ago, when little Madam Wu frank her tea with cream and sugar, to please American tastes, while we struggled to balance the tiny cups and sip it clear, trying to carry out Chinese custom.

And that in turn suggests a wonderful card party Minister Wu gave at the legation—it had not then been raised to an embassy—and to which about 100 women of high society were bidden. No men were invited. Did Madam Wu appear at the party? No indeed, that was quite out of the question from a Chinese viewpoint. While the ladies and the minister from China, played cards and feasted in the great drawing rooms, little Madam Wu, carefully guarded by companions of her own sex, remained on the floor above and slyly peeked through the great balustrades of the main starcase. Etiquette required her to remain in seclusion at such an affair.

And only today we read that the present Ambassador Wu, son of the former ambassador, is making an automobile tour of the White mountains, accompanied by Madam Wu, staying at hotels, mingling with the world, with seclusion a thing of the past.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, secretary of the treasury under Wilson in 1918, is keen of wit and ready of retort. He had a candidate for the naval academy at Annapolis, who had passed the examination in scholarship with high marks only to be rejected because "he has not a sufficient number of permanent teeth." Glass was informed by Secretary of the Navy Adams. Quick as a flash Glass shot back with this poser "Is the navy expected to bite the enemy?"

But Glass found Adams was right, under the rules no fellow without a full "natural set" need knock at the door of the naval academy. His fate is sealed.

If you merely glance at Representative Roy FitzGerald, member of congress from Ohio, you would not pick him out as an athlete, or guess mountain climbing and deep sea swimming his strongest card. He is tall and of ample proportions. Yet it is of official record, FitzGerald has swam the Hellespont, in Greece, Leander fashion; has swam the Tiber, explored the pyramids, and climbed Mt. Ranier to the height of 10,000 feet.

YOUR HEALTH

Nasal Sinuses

By Vance P. Peery, M. D.
Kinston, N. C.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Possibly the most frequent source of pus or germ absorption is in and about the teeth. The tonsils and adenoids are second. The nasal sinuses, which are bony cavities located in the front part of the skull, all communicating with the nose for purposes of drainage and aeration, can be placed third in frequency.

Infection or trouble in the sinuses can give the same serious troubles, such as heart, stomach, kidney, lung or joint diseases, as infection in the tonsils, in or about the teeth. Trouble in the sinuses is more liable to exist undeterred than some other points, because the sinuses are not exposed to casual inspection.

Not all serious sinus troubles give pain or headache. An acute sinus affection is liable to afford pain sufficient to suggest seeing a doctor. The chronic affections may give discharge from the nose, either pus or watering in character, or a driping in the back part of the throat, which is responsible for repeated desire to clear up the throat, or "hawking."

Sinus infection is one of the causes of nutritional disturbance in the young, such as, underweight, pale anaemic color, poor appetite, failure to thrive. This follows head colds, lagrippe, the diseases of childhood such as measles, scarlet fever, etc. Some older people who never feel quite up to par, with lack of energy, etc., are improved when a sinus involvement is sought, discovered and eradicated.

Every case of rheumatism, certain heart, kidney, lung, liver and stomach troubles should be studied by a competent doctor with the X-ray to rule out of focus of infection in the sinuses. The sinuses being close situated near the eyes makes it imperative that an M. D. be consulted when eye symptoms are in evidence. Many cases of blindness have their origin in these cavities when they are diseased. The matter of fitting glasses may be a simple matter, in an attempt to alleviate the ordinary advertised symptoms of eye strain, headache, dimness of vision, etc. Fitting glasses to correct an error of refraction only involves the elementary principles of physics. Searching out the cause of that error is not a simple matter, and the solution is not to be found outside of a competent doctor's office. One who is trained in anatomy, physiology, pathology of not only the local field, but the general systemic condition as well should be consulted.

Sinus disease is one of frequent causes of brain abscess, meningitis and other serious conditions which have a high mortality.

Any head cold, chronic cough, post nasal drip, should not be allowed to run along without investigation.

Halitosis, which has received publicity in public advertising, may be due to disease in the sinuses. A diagnosis is essential. Go to a competent doctor for a periodic health examination twice a year. It will cost you more than the price of a bottle of some mixture, or some friendly free advice, yet in the long run you get exactly what you pay for, and a safe and comfortable average is only obtained in anything by going about it in the correct way.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 21—It remained for one of that house triumverate of Ruths, Ruth Bryan Owen, to be the first American woman legislator delegate to the Interparliamentary Union.

Mrs. Owen sailed in July for London to renew many an old acquaintanceship of the years she spent in London as the wife of a British army officer.

Curiously enough, although Mrs. Owen is the first American woman lawmaker to be a delegate to the union, she is not either the first woman or the first American born woman to know that honor.

It goes to Lady Nancy Astor, Mrs. Owen's American-born British colleague of the house of commons. Lady Astor came to the United States in that capacity and set up a great commotion among the Washington women most active in urging full feminine participation in the business of government.

Ship Expense

The Florida "congresswoman," as they probably refer to her down south in defiance of the congressional edict that members of the house should be styled representative and not congressman, selected a British liner for her journey, and therby faced the necessity of footing her own transportation bill.

As a result of the tiff between members of the delegation to the London naval conference and Comptroller General McCarl, it now is a well established rule that government trips across the Atlantic must be made on American flag ships if Uncle Sam is to foot the bill—unless no American ship with a sailing date fitting into necessities of departure and arrival time is to be found.

That being true, Mrs. Owen's house colleagues of the American delegation to the Interparliamentary Union gathering in London went on an American boat, sailing direct from New York for London.

Included were veterans like La Guardia of New York, Britten of Illinois, Montague of Virginia and Temple of Pennsylvania. Theirs was a ten-day journey on this particular ship, while Mrs. Owen on the British ship could leave behind them and still beat them across to fill speaking dates in London.

In Hospitals

Some 15 years ago now, Mrs. Owen did war work in London hospitals. She there was associated with an American woman doing her volunteer bit at the same hospital.

Today one is a house member with senatorial yearnings and the other is Mrs. Herbert Hoover, first lady.

ROMANCE

It was Saturday morning and a long line of subscribers were waiting for books; Saturday was a busy day at the library. Every time Helen Reed returned from the shelves she would glance anxiously down the line; it was 10:30 and Walter Chadwick was in the habit of arriving promptly at 10.

Although they had grown to be the best of friends over the counter, Walter had never mentioned his occupation, but Helen knew! He was writing a romance of the Civil war!

Lives of generals, histories, diaries, anecdotes, anything pertaining to that period he was ever in search of and Helen would glow with pride when thinking of the part she had played assisting to gather material! She had delved into dusty archives and brought forth unfamiliar titles; she had studied old catalogues, new catalogues and book lists until her eyes ached.

She would thrill to the finger tips anticipating the time when the finished product would appear in all the glory of print. Walter was always so grateful for this help, she nourished a faint hope that the romance might be dedicated to her!

That Walter never mentioned his work was due, she was convinced, to modesty; geniuses were ever modest.

When she had finally given him up in he dashed, obtained "The Battle of the Iron Ships," then out he ran. It was now 11 o'clock and it was Helen's off hour. She had previously made an arrangement to meet her mother at a department store.

Reaching this destination, Helen went up to the waiting room and as the sole unoccupied seat was on a couch next an old gentleman she sat down.

"Quite a crowd in the store today," remarked the old gentleman.

"Indeed there is," returned Helen.

"I like to watch folks," he asserted genially. She observed that he was a fine-looking man and oddly enough there was something familiar about him, although she was certain she had never before seen him.

"Are you a business woman?" he presently inquired.

"Yes," replied Helen.

"I admire the independence of the modern young woman!" he declared enthusiastically. "Never could sympathize with the croakers who are always bemoaning 'the good old days' when there was no place for a female outside the home," he chuckled a bit, then added, "perhaps you're a stenographer?"

"No, I'm employed at the library."

"Must be interesting work."

"It is," Helen agreed. "Coming in contact with so many people all bent on the same errand, one can in time tell just about what type books will be on each list."

"The library helps me pass many pleasant hours."

"Strange I never happened to attend you!"

"Oh! I never go there myself," he explained; "my grandson—a fine chap if I do say it—goes for me. Here's a book he just fetched," tapping a volume lying on the couch. "I'm pretty old and can't get around as spry as I used to." He then went on to explain that when a lad he had run away from home, enlisted in the army and fought through the Civil war. Now reading books of that great strife was his hobby.

With sinking heart Helen took up the heavy volume. It was "The Battle of the Iron Ships!"

Instantly all the fine fancies so ardently cherished fell shattered in a thousand fragments! The erstwhile budding genius she had invested with the romance of authorship was merely another of the thousand and one subscribers! Alas—

"Sorry to have kept you waiting so long, granddad!" a well-known voice interrupted Helen's meditations, "but—why, Miss Reed!" ejaculated Walter Chadwick surprised.

"You recollect the old proverb, Walter, that pleasant company makes the road short?" granddad inquired. "It also makes waiting short."

A little later, when Walter and his grandfather were leaving, Helen, watching them as they walked off, was noting the proud and confident manner in which the older man leaned upon the younger, when suddenly Walter glanced back. The message that flashed from his handsome eyes melted Helen's disappointment; her gloomy thoughts rolled away like mist before a summer's sun and she smiled happily.—Chicago News.

CHILD TRAINING

TOO MUCH ASSISTANCE

Lenora Bailey

"Jean, you're doing that all wrong. Come, let mother do it for you."

Jean had been strenuously endeavoring to lace her little shoes. She stopped and frowned at her mother's words, but reluctantly did as she was told.

"Come in, Mrs. Conner. I had to stop my work to finish dressing Jean. Now, dear, run along and play."

While the two neighbors visited pleasantly as friendly neighbors will, Jean got her scissors and an old catalogue and began to cut out pictures in her crude, little-girl way.

"Why look, Jean, you are cutting off the woman's head! Let me do that for you!" exclaimed her mother.

"I declare, Mrs. Conner, it just worries me almost to death. Here Jean is five years old and it seems to me she can't do anything for herself—she can't cut out her dolls, she can't dress herself and she can't color the simplest little pictures. I wonder if she is awkward or dull or what is the matter?"

"Oh, she is all right, Mrs. Mills. Just don't try to hurry her progress too much; don't expect her to be perfect and she'll do nicely."

"Yes, but your little Betty does so much better, it seems to me. Her paper dolls look so neat. Then, too, she always dresses herself—now doesn't she?"

"Yes, in all her play dresses she does. I sometimes help if things are complicated. I tie her ribbons for her."

"Well, I have to do almost everything for Jean," sighed Mrs. Mills. "I get discouraged about it all."

"May I be quite frank and tell you what I think is wrong?"

"Surely you may, I'll be so glad to know. You won't hurt my feelings at all, and perhaps if I get your viewpoint it will help me to solve the problem."

"Well, frankly, I think you have fallen into the habit of doing too much for Jean."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, instead of telling or showing her what is wrong and letting her correct the error, you undo all her work and do it over again your way. So the next time she meets the same difficulty she is no more capable of conquering it than she was before."

"I wonder if I do help too much. I suspect you are right. I guess I've been too impatient, and it is much easier to do things for her than to show her how to do them."

"That is a difficulty that most mothers have to meet. Of course it is much easier and less nerve-wracking to do the thing oneself than to explain to the child how it should be done and then to watch the little fingers slowly accomplish what could be done for them in such a few seconds. I noticed you and Jean a few minutes ago when she was cutting out her dolls so awkwardly. She didn't look as if she really wanted you to do it for her and I wouldn't be surprised if you thought her unappreciative of your efforts to help her."

"Yes, I did."

"It is all because the child's natural tendencies urge her to do things for herself. We mothers sometimes unconsciously try to 'go agin nater' as old Aunt Susie would say. The only wise way is to let the child learn by doing, confident that mother is always ready to give just the right amount of help when it is needed."

Little Talks on Thrift

Resources Back of Individual Basis of True Prosperity

"It would seem to me that the best advice anyone could give to the American people today would be to tell them to spend money freely. It is the free spending of money by the public that brings prosperity."

This is a portion of a letter recently received by this writer. No doubt the opinion here expressed is shared by many.

It is obvious, of course, that when people generally are not spending money, less money is in circulation. It is also just as true that over-spending by the people brings about conditions of inflation and economic unsoundness. Nothing is ever gained economically by people buying things they do not need. Nothing is ever gained economically by people refraining from buying what they should have and can afford.

It should be quite apparent that the widespread spending of money for things people do not need or cannot afford represents economic waste. Such conditions, therefore, cannot rightly be called the basis of prosperity. Manifestly the prosperity of a nation must rest on the purchasing power of the people. When people have resources back of them they are individually prosperous and are able to buy what they need but if they are continually spending money for things they do not need and cannot afford—indulging in wasteful habits—they cannot permanently prosper.

At the same time we must not overlook the fact that the standard of living of the American people is steadily improving. The base necessities of life are not enough. We have our rightful conveniences, our comforts, our small luxuries. In this way we are developing new industries and furnishing employment for more people and more capital. All of this is within the meaning of true American progress and true American thrift. For America never goes backwards.

One of the chief values of thrift is that it develops judgment in the administration of one's personal affairs. And this judgment must be used by us at the present time in deciding the proper balance to be maintained between spending and saving. We should not cultivate habits of miserliness, neither should we spend beyond our means. We must not be unmindful of the fact that we are dealing with problems of the future as well as the present. No man has a right to pauperize himself today and jeopardize his future economic independence under any circumstances or for any reason whatever.—By S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Tubular Products Company, Southington

The Tubular Products Co., established in 1920, is an outgrowth of The Miller Metal Works Co., established originally in Jersey City in 1909. For many years The Tubular Products Co., and their predecessors, The Miller Metal Works Co., manufactured various tubular specialties principally for the automotive industry, such as intake manifolds, oil delivery tubes, wiring conduits and work of that nature.

The company was originally founded by James Acton Miller, who was later succeeded in the presidency by John H. Bradnack. Upon acquisition by The Tubular Products Co., Samuel Munch acted as president in association with Walter M. Weil, vice president, Edgar Weil, secretary and Benjamin S. Munch, treasurer and general manager.

About ten years ago The Tubular Products Co. started the manufacture of various specialties in which tubing was the principal commodity. These items include a portable shower bath, which may be affixed in the home without employing a plumber, and a complete line of smokerstands and ash receptacles of the improved type which prevent the escape of disagreeable smoke and odors into the room.

At the present time The Tubular Products Co. operates two distinct divisions—one, the automotive tubular line and, the other, a special line consisting of the above products.

IRON GUARD ATTEMPTING TO INVADE BESSARABIA

VIENNA, Austria, July 21—(AP)—A situation reminiscent of the war days prevails on the principal roads and highways of the Maramuresh and South Bukowina districts leading to Bessarabia, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported today.

All railway bridges leading to Bessarabia, particularly those in and around Jassy Andradutl, are in control of troops in view of the attempts being made by the Iron Guard to invade Bessarabia. The nationalistic youth organisation led by M. Codreanu, is chiefly composed of school boys and college students.

Similar stringent measures are being taken by the authorities, local and national, to control the tour of the country now being made by Danila and Nicolai Totu, anti-semitic agitators. The refusal of local officers to grant permission to these two to stop off at various towns has partly quieted the alarmed Jewish population.

The Jewish members of parliament have requested an immediate audience siting carol.

BISHOP JAMES CANNON, JR., MARRIED TO HIS SECRETARY

The bishop and his bride today were aboard the Steamship Arlanza, enroute to Madeira and Brazil. The bishop is 65 and Mrs. Cannon between 40 and 45. They are due at Madeira Wednesday, for a brief stop.

Mrs. McCallum was said to have been the bishop's secretary for about a year, coming here recently with him and staying with Sir Henry and Lady Lunn. She had not been well, and their friends, looking forward to a marriage at home, were vastly surprised when the news was made known.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Manuel L. Santos.

At 2 o'clock Monday morning the funeral of Mary L. Moody wife of Manuel L. Santos, was held at her residence, No. 173 Whipple street, many relatives and friends attending. The services were conducted by Rev. Henry B. Harris, pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church, and there were numerous beautiful floral tributes. Mrs. Jackson sang Safe in the Arms of Jesus. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery and the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Harris. The bearers were Joseph Delgado, Manuel S. Pina, Antonio Silva, Manuel Pina, Joseph Gunsalve and Joseph Williams. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker C. A. Gager.

Rev. Frederick C. Baker.

With a large gathering of mourners in attendance the funeral of Rev. Frederick C. Baker was held Monday afternoon with a brief prayer at his home, No. 11 Lincoln avenue, conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church, followed by services at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church at 2 o'clock. Previous to the services at the church, which were in charge of Rev. Mr. Genter, who was assisted by Rev. John Pearce of the Willimantic Camp ground, Waldo Newbury, the organist, played several selections. Both clergymen spoke briefly of the fine character of Rev. Mr. Baker and Rev. Joseph Cooper, the pastor, delivered the eulogy. He said in part:

Rev. Frederick Charles Baker built up a reliable character at the very beginning of his Christian and ministerial life of forty years. All through the years he "wore the white flower of a blameless life" and was a "good minister of Jesus Christ."

He was good in the fundamental basis of his religious life. Two marks of that religious life stand out distinct, certainty of conviction and joyousness of expression. He was good in his mental interpretations of Christian truth and did not change his doctrines for the passing hour. He was no sloven in his study but a hard worker and a good preacher. Bold in what he believed, he was clear in statement, spiritual in atmosphere, Scriptural in matter. Everywhere men and women were profited, informed and comforted by his ministry. Good in his acceptance of responsibilities outside of his own pastoral charge, he was one of the most useful men this conference ever had. He was twenty years publisher of his annual year book, ten years treasurer of conference claimants fund, twenty years secretary of the Willimantic Camp Meeting association. These were onerous tasks envolving persistent industry in assembling facts, accuracy in details, and sympathetic contacts with the many peoples whose interests were at stake. Good in his wide appreciations and social interests, he was alive to all the varied service of the church in its contacts with the life of the world outside. Good in his lovable fellowship with folks, he was fond of social life, and mixed freely, yet with reserve, with all sorts and conditions of men. Not in boisterous hilarity did he join in the life around him but in a quiet friendliness that showed the charm of his appreciative spirit. He never forgot he was a minister of Jesus Christ. In dress, in attitude, in speech, in accordant deed, all were attuned to this great conception of ministerial responsibility and dutiful relation. He was everywhere the Christian man, the Christian gentleman who bore about with him the mark of his high calling.

Burial was in Hickory street cemetery and the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Genter. The bearers were J. B. Stanton, Rev. George W. Potter, George W. Armstrong and Albert Boardman. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertakers Henry Allen and Son Co.

MONDAY THIRD SUCCESSIVE DAY OF TROPICAL HEAT

Norwich struggled through its third successive day of tropical heat Monday. Saturday was bad enough with The Bulletin thermometer showing 90 for the highest of the day, accompanied by an overplus of humidity. Sunday was more bearable, because humidity was absent, but the thermometer stayed at 90. And Monday was worst of all, for the thermometer shot up to 92 and humidity came back with all its life-sapping power.

The unusual thing about the heat Monday was that the highest marks were measured late in the day, as the thermometer was 82 at noon, had reached 88 by 3 in the afternoon and two hours later was at 92. This mark was held until 8 o'clock, when the temperature began to drop and by midnight it was 85.

In The Bulletin editorial rooms it was 91 most of the evening, but an hour after midnight it had dropped to 88.

JUDGE'S MEMORANDUM ON BOARDMAN'S TAX APPEAL

The memorandum of decision by Judge Allyn L. Brown in denying the appeal taken by Albert and Horace Boardman from the board of relief was as follows:

This is an appeal under section 1240 of the general statutes from the action of the board of relief of the town of Norwich in fixing at $7,000 the assessment upon the appellants' "goods, wares and merchandise" used by them in trade in said town for the year ending Oct. 1, 1929, pursuant to section 1214. The appellants allege and claim that this valuation is "unfair, unjust, inequitable, unlawful .... discriminatory .... excessive and .... disproportionate to other assessments" of similar personality in the town. First of all in considering this appeal, it is to be had in mind that the appellants are entitled to no relief unless it appears that they are "aggrieved" by the action complained of. Further, as is obvious and is suggested in the briefs of counsel on both sides, until the contrary appears by the evidence in the case it is to be presumed that the board of relief acted properly, fairly and lawfully. Therefore, in order for them to prevail the burden rests upon the appellants to prove by a fair preponderance of the evidence that they have been aggrieved in one or more of the respects alleged.

As the case has been presented, two fundamental propositions of fact are claimed by the appellants to have been established by the evidence, upon each and both of which they say that they are entitled to relief: First, that $7,000 is in excess of the "true and just value" which section 1197 provides is the rule of valuation to be applied, and second, that the similar stocks of goods, wares and merchandise of two other taxpayers in the town engaged in the same hardware merchandising trade as are the appellants, are assessed below the respective true and just values thereof. I briefly refer below to the evidence relating to these two points which are the vital issues of fact or determination.

As to the first, without referring to all of the evidence relating thereto, it is sufficient to point out that according to the testimony of Albert Boardman, one of the appellants, the first and only inventory taken by them in years was that of early June, 1930, which disclosed the value of the then stock at cost to be $9,217.16. Deducting from this amount $3,686.98, the admitted total purchases by the appellants from Oct. 1, 1929 to June 1, 1930, leaves $5,530.18. The admitted sales during this period totalled $6,121.75, and it is undisputed that the goods were marked up 50 per cent to sell. Deducting, therefore, 33 1-3 per cent thereof from $6,121.75 leaves $4,081.17, which added to the above $5,530.18, equals $9,611.35 the actual cost of the merchandise on hand as of Oct. 1 1929, which the evidence shows was less if anything than "the average amount of goods kept on hand for sale during the year" then ending. Adding thereto $14, the conceded value of the fixtures, brings the total actual value of the proerty included in the $7,0000 item complained of, $9,752.35. The evidence so discloses to a mathematical certainty that the appellants have failed to establish the first proposition above referred to.

As to the second the appellants laid in evidence the records of the assessors of the appellee town, showing the assessment valuations of the stock and fixtures of the other two taxpayers referred to for the year 1929, and supplemented this with the testimony on direct examination of the appellant Boardman that upon the estimated floor space of these concerns, but without any claimed actual examination made of the stock at any time, or knowledge of the changes in the extent thereof during the year in question, it was his opinion that in each instance the actual value of these stocks was substantially in excess of the assessment values above mentioned. On cross-examination Mr. Boardman very frankly admitted what was obviously the fact, that his testimony as the value of these stocks was simply "a guess." Appreciating apparently that such testimony affords no evidence upon which this court can predicate a finding under the law, the appellants in their brief suggest in support of their contention, first, that the court can take judicial notice of the fact in controversy, and second, that the appellee's failure to introduce evidence of the value of these stocks warrants a finding upon this matter in their favor.

The statement of the first contention, the fact in question being the average value of two fluctuating stocks of goods over a year's time and running into many thousands of dollars, refutes itself. The fallacy of the second is obvious when it has had in mind as already stated that the burden of proof is on the appellants, and that the evidence in question was just as much within the power of the appellants as of the appellee to produce. The appellants have failed to establish that these other two stocks are assessed below their true value.

While the conclusions above stated as to these two outstanding questions of fact seem to me to conclusively dispose of this appeal upon its merits, certain other claims of the appellants in the light of the evidence call for brief comment. Chiefly these relate to the effect of the application of a rule of valuation for assessment purposes they claim to have been proven used by the appellee, on the basis of 75 per cent instead of on that of 100 per cent which the law calls for. While such a method of valuation, if used by the appelle, was at least technically incorrect, the discussion of the supreme court of the pursuit of such a course does not support the contention of the appellants that ipso facto the assessment against them was rendered void and of no effect. And since a 25 per cent deduction of $2,438.09 from $9,752.35, the true value of the appellants' stock and fixtures above stated, leaves $7,314.26, an amount $314.26 in excess of the $7,000 valuation appealed from, it is clear that this valuation could not be excessive even under the 75 per cent rule. In so far as the appellants' contention that even if this is true, still they are aggrieved because the valuations in the case of the other two taxpayers referred to are far less than 75 per cent of the actual value of their respective stocks, is concerned, what has already been said as to the evidence bearing upon these valuations applies with equal force and a priori leads to a conclusion for the appellee in this connection.

The appellants further claim in their brief that the assessments against them is void because the assessors "delegated their power to an outside agency not recognized by statute" whose act the valuation was and not theirs. The only evidence upon this point came through Assessor Prothero called as a witness by the appellants. He testified on direct examination to having visited their store and viewed the stock and fixtures, and to his board's having received certain figures relating thereto, from the appraisal company employed by the town to assist in its work the preceding year. He further testified on cross-examination, after stating that the board had some 300 retail stocks upon which to place a value in making up this grandlist, that the values so fixed were derived from the best information the board could obtain and were based upon an application thereto of the common sense of its members. The appellants' claim in this regard is not sustained by the evidence.

For the reasons above stated I conclude that the appellants are aggrieved in none of the respects alleged. Therefore, their appeal is dismissed and the action of the board of relief is affirmed.

BASS WITH NICKED TAIL CAUGHT AFTER FIVE YEARS

Here is a fish story that comes out of Lisbon that takes its place with the best of them, either authentic or false. This is an authentic tale, it is believed. Carl Krauss of Lisbon caught a large mouth black bass in a pond in Voluntown Saturday afternoon that weighed 6 pounds and 6 ounces upon official scales. It was on exhibition in the windows of the Hanover-Curland store on Franklin street and was reported to be the largest bass taken this year.

His brother, Lawrence, was fishing in the same pond five years ago with Robert Winchester, also of Lisbon, but at that time it was a violation of the law to take bass, as they were out of season. It so happened that on that day a bass took his bait and it was landed. It weighed just seven pounds by a pocket scale that they had with them. The large fish was then released by Mr. Krauss after part of the tail was cut off for a souvenir.

The bass that Carl Krauss caught Saturday was also minus a section of the tail and it is presumed that it is the same fish that his brother got several years ago. The reason for the decrease in weight is based upon the fact that when it was first caught and marked that it was carrying a large quantity of spawn.

That is why the fish weighed 10 ounces less than it did several years ago.

Arkansas Woman Greatly Pleased With Her New Figure

Read how Mrs. Willa Pugsley of Arkansas gained nearly 5 pounds in less than 20 days:

"McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets have worked wonders for me. Have nearly finished the second box feeling better in every way and have taken on nearly five pounds of flesh much to my delight. I can recommend McCoy's to do all they claim."

A New Jersey boy gained 10 pounds in 21 days; a New York mother and daughter gained 7 pounds. And in fact, men, women and children everywhere are gaining new weight, strength, vitality and energy from McCoy's.

The reason is that McCoy's have the same marvelous flesh-forming vitamins as liquid cod liver oil; and in this respect are hundreds of times richer than even milk, butter, eggs or cream. The vitamins are directly extracted from Norwegian cod liver oil and sealed under a pleasant sugar coat.

Read Lee & Osgood's remarkable MONEY BACK offer—McCoy's are guaranteed to give any man, woman or child the increased weight desired or purchase price refunded. Just ask for McCoy's—60 tablets 60 cents.

The enrollment of the Boy Scouts now exceeds 500 and the need of a camp for local council scouts has become a real one.

NICKERSON PROVES MASTER OF THE VETERAN SIMCOX AS THERMOS WINS

Aided and abetted by two glaring errors which came in the second inning of one of the sweetest games to date, Mike Nickerson won a pitchers' battle from Tommy Simcox at the campus last night and his club, the Thermos Bottlers, increased their lead in the City league chase at the expense of Mike Panek's Royals. Two runs, the indirect result of Morowsky's errors in the second, were the only tallies of the contest.

Before and after the fatal second, both hurlers pitched shut-out ball and kept their hits well scattered. During the entire contest Nickerson gave 7 bingles and Simmy one less. Mike whiffed five and Tommy three.

As previously mentioned the Thermos did all of the scoring in the second. Mullins was the first hitter and went to first after being tagged with a pitched ball between the shoulder blades. He stole second while Nickerson was striking out and when Cummings threw to first after collecting Hull's grounder, he started for third. After tagging his sack, Morowsky, the Royal first baseman, made an attempt to nip Mullins and in doing so heaved the ball into the third base bleachers. The runner scored. Blinderman got a hit into short right and on Normandin's double to left went to third. N. Lemieux, the next Thermos sticker, poked one to Hal Cummings and the latter heaved to first for the putout. Morowsky again slipped up and Blinderman counted with the second tally. A moment later Lemieux closed the inning by being caught stealing second.

The honor roll players for the evening, in addition to the pitchers, were Cummings and Kozlersky of the Royals and Blinderman of the Thermos on the offense, and the short stops and second basemen of both clubs afield. Each of the mentioned hitters connected twice and the fielders all handled their chances perfectly. The score:

Tonight's Game

The Smoke Shop and Italian clubs, two of the most bitter rivals in the circuit, provide the action in the City league at the campus tonight. In their first round game the Smokers beat the Italians and will take the field this evening, confident of repeating. The members of the DeFronzo clan, on the other hand, are certain that they will avenge the only Smoker win of the season.

The 1929 champs have won but one game this year and that has been at the expense of the Italians.

For the benefit of those who do not know or whose memory has failed, nearly half of the players in the Italian lineup were members of the O'Brien outfit last year. The fact that the junior club copped off at least four of their men has never been forgotten by the Smokers. Some of the West Side men have threatened to pound Lefty Lucier, their 1929 mainstay, from the hill if Mike DeFronzo starts him this evening. There is little doubt but that Lefty will work so we shall see what will happen. Either Gert or Magnan will pitch for the Smokers.

H. N. S. TAKES 11-INNING GAME FROM STERLING

Sunday at Sterling the Jewett City H. N. S. took a spectacular 11-inning game from the Sterling team, 4-2. The game was replete with thrills and covered by exceptional fast playing, four double killings being executed, three by the H. N. S. Lefty Whitford, on the mound for Sterling, held the Jewett City boys to three hits and no runs until the ninth. In this inning the H. N. S. bunched several hits to knot the score at 2-all. With three men on and one out in Sterling's half of the ninth, Bernal tightened and forced two Sterling men to pop up. Going into the 11th the H. N. S. put on a batting rally to score two runs and win the game. These two teams meet at Ashland Park, Jewett City, this coming Sunday and a fast game can readily be expected. The score:

MALONE BLANKS GIANTS AS WILSON HITS TWO HOMERS

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Hack Wilson's big bat coupled with Pat Malone's steady pitching gave the Chicago Cubs a 6 to 0 decision over the New York Giants today. It was the second shut out handed the Giants this year, the other being by Dazzy Vance of the Robins.

Wilson poled out his 28th and 29th home runs of the season off Tiny Chaplin, the Texan, in the fourth and sixth innings while Malone held the Giants to eight hits and did not issue a base on balls during the eight innings he worked. He retired in the eighth because of the intense heat and Charlie Root finished the game. Eddie Farrell also hit a homer for the Cubs, which, coupled with the two by Wilson scored five runs. Parmelee, who relieved Chaplin at the start of the eighth, forced the sixth run across the plate with three consecutive bases on balls, preceded by a single. The score:

P. N. A. C. RALLIES TO NOSE OUT ITALIANS

Staging a rally in the seventh inning which netted five runs, the Polish National Athletic club came from behind and nosed out the Italian Young Men's club Monday evening, 8 to 7.

Although the game was very loosely played, a total of 14 misplays being made, it proved interesting to watch. Both teams threw away chances to win the game on several occasions but it was this very uncertainty that put interest in the contest.

The I. Y. M. C. scored three in the first on a hit batsman, a couple of walks and a single by Connell. There was no more scoring until the fifth when the Polish club tallied twice on a couple of walks and singles by Watters and Koslowski. In the sixth, the Italians piled up a substantial lead, scoring four runs on but one hit. In this frame, Watters, the Polish twirler, twice struck men out only to have them safe on first through errors by the catcher.

After practically throwing away the game, however, the Polish club went out in the next inning, scoring the necessary five runs to win. With two out and the bases full and the score tied, Watters won his own game with a single to left field.

Important Game Tonight

All followers of the Junior league will no doubt be on hand tonight at the Duwell field when the Elks meet the Rotary club in the most important game played in the league to date. These two teams are considered about the strongest in the league and there has been much debate about the city as to which has the better nine, and the best way to settle the matter is on the diamond tonight. The Rotary's stock went up last Thursday when they disposed of the strong Duwell team 18 to 4, while the Elks looked no less impressive on Friday when they overwhelmed the I. Y. M. C., 23 to 1. Another feature that is bound to be interesting is the expected mound duel between Caron of the Rotary and Fuller of the Elks. Both pitchers have been going great this year and have been very stingy with the hits they have meted out, Fuller already having a no-hit, no run game to his credit. What will happen when these two teams and star pitchers get together is a question that can only be decided by going over to the Duwell field tonight and take in the game which is scheduled to start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

BROWNS RALLY IN 6TH TO BEAT WASHINGTON

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 21.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, aided by a five run rally in the sixth inning, took its second successive game of the series from Washington here today, winning 6 to 4.

Stewart, who went the route for the Browns, allowed ten hits but scattered them throughout the contest. Although held to five safeties, the home club bunched their hits and took advantage of the nine passes given them.

The Senators did not lose any ground in the American league race as the Philadelphia Athletics also lost.

RUTH'S 35TH HOMER HELPS YANKEES BEAT INDIANS

CLEVELAND, July 21.—(AP)—Edwin Wells won his eighth game of the year, Babe Ruth cracked out his 35th home run and Gehrig and Rice added circuit drives as the Yankees defeated Cleveland 7 to 3 today.

Ruth's over the fence drive came in the third with a teammate on base and Miller on the mound while Rice connected in the sixth while Miller was still pitching. Gehrig found the range against Belve Bean in the eighth for his 28th homer of the year.

Wells had the Indians at his mercy with the exception of Hodapp, who connected safely four out of five times he stepped to the plate. Miller fanned Ruth and Gehrig each twice. The score:

If you folks feel as warm as I do you won't bother to read what I write so I won't write it.

A cheerful thought for a hot day: Remember the old place with the swinging doors where you used to stop in and put your foot on the brass rail and order up a good cold glass. And the bartender would pass over a glass frostily coated and filled with a delicious amber fluid. Boy, didn't that go right to the spot on a hot day like this?

Don't shoot, I was only fooling.

SWEETLAND PITCHES BRILLIANT BALL TO BEAT PITTSBURGH

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—(AP)—Clever pitching by Lester Sweetland today enabled the Phils to take in the Pirates 7 to 2 in the first game of the local series.

The Shottonmen hammered Kremer for three runs in the first and added four more in the fifth to complete their triumph.

Two home runs, one by Southern and another by Whitney with O'Doul on base, gave the Phils their first trio of tallies. A base on balls for Sweetland, singles by O'Doul and Hurst, a double by Klein and a triple by Whitney accounted for the final quartet of counters. Traynor's double after singles by Grantham and Comorosky, accounted for the Pittsburgh markers. The score:

OMAHA, Neb., July 21—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian boxer and his French manager, Leon See, have been ordered by Washington immigration officials to vacate American shores immediately, Frank Paccasi, business manager for the pair, stated here today.

Paccasi revealed the contents of a telegram forwarded here to See and Carnera from Byron H. Uhl, assistant commander of Ellis Island, N. Y., informing the pair that immigration officials had denied their request for a six months' extension of their legal stay in the United States, which terminated recently.

Carnera and his manager, he said, applied for the extension while here last week for the Carnera-Bearcat Wright fight. He said they are now en route from Cleveland to Montreal and that the telegram arrived here after their departure from Omaha. They were confident of obtaining the time extension, Paccasi said.

Sandwina And Walker Draw

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP) — Ted Sandwina, Sioux City heavyweight, and Al Walker, Harlem Negro, battled ten slow rounds to a draw at the Coney Island stadium tonight. Most of the ringside experts thought Walker had taken seven of the ten rounds. Walker weighed 194 1-2; Sandwina, 195.

Eddie Benson, New York, 191 1-2, stopped Jack Phoenix of Brooklyn, 186 1-2, in the seventh round of another ten rounder. Phoenix substituted for Jack Gross of Philadelphia.

U. S. DEPENDS ON TILDEN TO BRING THE DAVIS CUP BACK TO AMERICA

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)— After eleven years Big Bill Tilden stands tonight as the brightest single hope the United States has to regain the Davis cup from the French in the challenge round opening here Friday.

After surmounting the difficulties that arose through his writings for an American newspaper syndicate the Davis cup committee named Big Bill to the No. 1 role in the singles play only to have Tilden, who accepted "despite my better judgment, turn an ankle this afternoon in practice. Late this evening, however, doctors decided after consultation that America's premier player would be fit for the opening of the series.

"In 1919, with Bill Johnston, I went to Australia and brought back the Davis cup," Big Bill told the Associated Press as soon as the doctors' verdict was announced. "It is my fondest hope to bring it back to the United States after eleven years, and then, believe me, some one else can defend it. I am through."

Early in the day official notice came from New York that Tilden had been selected for the task of regaining the cup. That settled the issue for a few hours.

In the afternoon, while practicing with Karel Kozeluh, Czech professional, Tilden turned his ankle, limped away to a waiting automobile, and the big question mark in world tennis was again unanswered. Tonight, however, Big Bill's name was definitely on the list of players supplied by team Captain Fitz Eugene Dixon, to the French Tennis federation.

The announcement that Tilden had been selected to the team after his vigorous statements that he would not play came only as a mild surprise to the French tennis public, which had been expecting it for several days. Later, when the faithfuls watching practice at the Roland Garros stadium saw Tilden go after a high lob from Kozeluh's racquet, slip, fall, and writhe in pain, they were more sceptical.

The team, as presented to the French, stands as Tilden, George Lott, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn.

France will pin its faith for the cup defense on Cochet, Tilden's old Nemesis; Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus.

Boussus and Brugnon are France's doubles alternates and will be used against the American combination of Allison and Van Ryn on the second day unless France loses both singles Friday. If that happens Cochet and Borotra, who will carry the singles burden, also will play doubles. France is all but conceding the victory to Allison and Van Ryn in the doubles anyway.

"Is Mr. Allison going to play singles for America?" he asked. He seemed disappointed when informed that Tilden and Lott had been selected.

Both Cochet and Borotra have been practicing away from Paris, tuning their games to the highest pitches.

ROBINS DROP LEAD WHEN THEY SPLIT WITH CARDS

BROOKLYN, July 21.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins relinquished the National league leadership to the Chicago Cubs today, dividing a double header with the Cards while the Bruins were taking a single contest from the New York Giants.

The first contest went to the Robins 9 to 8 but the Cards came back in the second to win a 17 to 10 slugfest. With five homers rattling off the war clubs of the batters, the opener turned into a home run contest. Circuit drives by Mancuso, Bottomley and Puccinelli scored all of the Cards' runs but proved worthless when Harvey Hendrick poled out a pinch hit homer in the ninth with two on base and won the game.

Frisch added another four-bagger in the second game while Lee contributed one to the Brooklyn cause. The score:

CANZONERI WINS VERDICT OVER BASS IN 10 ROUNDS

PHILADELPHIA, July 21. — (AP)— Tony Canzoneri, slugging New Yorker, won a 10-round decision over Benny Bass, Philadelphia, recognized in a number of states as junior lightweight champion, in the feature bout at the Phillies ball park tonight. Bass' title was not at stake. He weighed 125 3-4 and Canzoneri 130 1-4.

The bout was marked by frequent clinching, particularly on the part of Bass, who was nearly five pounds under the weight limit of his class and 4 1-2 pounds lighter than his opponent.

Canzoneri was too strong for the Philadelphian, winning five of the ten rounds by wide margins. Bass took three rounds and two were about even. Three years ago the rugged New Yorker robbed Bass of his world's featherweight title and had his present crown been at stake tonight Canzoneri would have won it easily.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—Boston broke up the three-game winning streak of the White Sox today, winning the final game of the series, 3 to 1, behind Horace Lisenbee's fine pitching.

Lisenbee restricted the Sox to five hits, three by Carl Reynolds, and one each by Smead Jolley and Greg Mulleavy. Al Thomas was almost as good, holding the Red Sox to six hits, three of which, however, were bunched in the sixth for two runs. NICKERSON PROVES MASTER OF THE VETERAN SIMCOX AS THERMOS WINS

Aided and abetted by two glaring errors which came in the second inning of one of the sweetest games to date, Mike Nickerson won a pitchers' battle from Tommy Simcox at the campus last night and his club, the Thermos Bottlers, increased their lead in the City league chase at the expense of Mike Panek's Royals. Two runs, the indirect result of Morowsky's errors in the second, were the only tallies of the contest.

Before and after the fatal second, both hurlers pitched shut-out ball and kept their hits well scattered. During the entire contest Nickerson gave 7 singles and Simmy one less. Mike whiffed five and Tommy three.

As previously mentioned the Thermos did all of the scoring in the second. Mullins was the first hitter and went to first after being tagged with a pitched ball between the shoulder blades. He stole second while Nickerson was striking out and when Cummings threw to first after collecting Hull's grounder, he started for third. After tagging his sack, Morowsky, the Royal first baseman, made an attempt to nip Mullins and in doing so heaved the ball into the third base bleachers. The runner scored. Blinderman got a hit into short right and on Normandin's double to left went to third. N. Lemieux, the next Thermos sticker, poked one to Hal Cummings and the latter tossed to first for the putout. Morowsky again slipped up and Blinderman counted with the second tally. A moment later Lemieux closed the inning by being caught stealing second.

The honor roll players for the evening, in addition to the pitchers, were Cummings and Kozierzky of the Royals and Blinderman of the Thermos, on the offense, and the short stops and second basemen of both clubs also. Each of the mentioned hitters connected twice and the fielders all handled their chances perfectly. The score:

Tonight's Game

The Smoke Shop and Italian clubs, two of the most bitter rivals in the circuit, provide the action in the City league at the campus tonight. In their first round game the Smokers beat the Italians and will take the field this evening, confident of repeating. The members of the DeFronzo clan, on the other hand, are certain that they will avenge the only Smoker win of the season.

The 1929 champs have won but one game this year and that has been at the expense of the Italians.

For the benefit of those who do not know or whose memory has failed, nearly half of the players in the Italian lineup were members of the O'Brien outfit last year. The fact that the junior club copped off at least four of their men has never been forgotten by the Smokers. Some of the West Side men have threatened to pound Lefty Lucier, their 1929 mainstay, from the hill if Mike DeFronzo starts him this evening. There is little doubt but that Lefty will work so we shall see what will happen. Either Gert or Magnan will pitch for the Smokers.

H. N. S. TAKES 11-INNING GAME FROM STERLING

Sunday at Sterling the Jewett City H. N. S. took a spectacular 11-inning game from the Sterling team, 4-2. The game was replete with thrills and covered by exceptional fast playing, four double killings being executed, three by the H. N. S. Lefty Whitford, on the mound for Sterling, held the Jewett City boys to three hits and no runs until the ninth. In this inning the H. N. S. bunched several hits to knot the score at 2-all. With three men on and one out in Sterling's half of the ninth, Bernal tightened and forced two Sterling men to pop up. Going into the 11th the H. N. S. put on a batting rally to score two runs and win the game. These two teams meet at Ashland Park, Jewett City, this coming Sunday and a fast game can readily be expected. The score:

MALONE BLANKS GIANTS AS WILSON HITS TWO HOMERS

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Hack Wilson's big bat coupled with Pat Malone's steady pitching gave the Chicago Cubs a 6 to 0 decision over the New York Giants today. It was the second shut out handed the Giants this year, the other being by Dazzy Vance of the Robins.

Wilson poled out his 28th and 29th home runs of the season off Tiny Chaplin, the Texan, in the fourth and sixth innings while Malone held the Giants to eight hits and did not issue a base on balls during the eight innings he worked. He retired in the eighth because of the intense heat and Charlie Root finished the game. Eddie Farrell also hit a homer for the Cubs, which, coupled with the two by Wilson scored five runs. Parmelee, who relieved Chaplin at the start of the eighth, forced the sixth run across the plate with three consecutive bases on balls, preceded by a single. The score:

P. N. A. C. RALLIES TO NOSE OUT ITALIANS

Staging a rally in the seventh inning which netted five runs, the Polish National Athletic club came from behind and nosed out the Italian Young Men's club Monday evening, 8 to 7.

Although the game was very loosely played, a total of 14 misplays being made, it proved interesting to watch. Both teams threw away chances to win the game on several occasions but it was this very uncertainty that put interest in the contest.

The I. Y. M. C. scored three in the first on a hit batsman, a couple of walks and a single by Connell. There was no more scoring until the fifth when the Polish club tallied twice on a couple of walks and singles by Watters and Kozlowski. In the sixth, the Italians piled up a substantial lead, scoring four runs on but one hit. In this frame, Watters, the Polish twirler, twice struck men out only to have them safe on first through errors by the catcher.

After practically throwing away the game, however, the Polish club went out in the next inning, scoring the necessary five runs to win. With two out and the bases full and the score tied, Watters won his own game with a single to left field.

Important Game Tonight

All followers of the Junior league will no doubt be on hand tonight at the Duwell field when the Elks meet the Rotary club in the most important game played in the league to date. These two teams are considered about the strongest in the league and there has been much debate about the city as to which has the better nine, and the best way to settle the matter is on the diamond tonight. The Rotary's stock went up last Thursday when they disposed of the strong Duwell team 13 to 4, while the Elks looked no less impressive on Friday when they overwhelmed the I. Y. M. C., 22 to 1. Another feature that is bound to be interesting is the expected mound duel between Caron of the Rotary and Fuller of the Elks. Both pitchers have been going great this year and have been very stingy with the hits they have meted out. Fuller already having a no-hit, no run game to his credit. What will happen when these two teams and star pitchers get together is a question that can only be decided by going over to the Duwell field tonight and take in the game which is scheduled to start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

BROWNS RALLY IN 6TH TO BEAT WASHINGTON

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 21.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, aided by a five run rally in the sixth inning, took its second successive game of the series from Washington here today, winning 6 to 4.

Stewart, who went the route for the Browns, allowed ten hits but scattered them throughout the contest. Although held to five safeties, the home club bunched their hits and took advantage of the nine passes given them.

The Senators did not lose any ground in the American league race as the Philadelphia Athletics also lost.

RUTH'S 35TH HOMER HELPS YANKEES BEAT INDIANS

CLEVELAND, July 21.—(AP)—Edwin Wells won his eighth game of the year, Babe Ruth cracked out his 35th home run and Gehrig and Rice added circuit drives as the Yankees defeated Cleveland 7 to 3 today.

Ruth's over the fence drive came in the third with a teammate on base and Miller on the mound while Rice connected in the sixth while Miller was still pitching. Gehrig found the range against Belve Bean in the eighth for his 28th homer of the year.

Wells had the Indians at his mercy with the exception of Hodapp, who connected safely four out of five times he stepped to the plate. Miller fanned Ruth and Gehrig each twice. The score:

If you folks feel as warm as I do you won't bother to read what I write so I won't write it.

A cheerful thought for a hot day: Remember the old place with the swinging doors where you used to stop in and put your foot on the brass rail and order up a good cold glass. And the bartender would pass over a glass frostily coated and filled with a delicious amber fluid. Boy, didn't that go right to the spot on a hot day like this?

Don't shoot, I was only fooling.

SWEETLAND PITCHES BRILLIANT BALL TO BEAT PITTSBURGH

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—(AP)—Clever pitching by Lester Sweetland today enabled the Phils to take in the Pirates 7 to 2 in the first game of the local series.

The Shottonmen hammered Kremer for three runs in the first and added four more in the fifth to complete their triumph.

Two home runs, one by Southern and another by Whitney with O'Doul on base, gave the Phils their first trio of tallies. A base on balls for Sweetland, singles by O'Doul and Hurst, a double by Klein and a triple by Whitney accounted for the final quartet of counters. Traynor's double after singles by Grantham and Comorosky, accounted for the Pittsburgh markers. The score:

CARNERA ORDERED TO LEAVE AMERICA IMMEDIATELY

OMAHA, Neb., July 21—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian boxer and his French manager, Leon See, have been ordered by Washington immigration officials to vacate American shores immediately, Frank Paccasi, business manager for the pair, stated here today.

Paccasi revealed the contents of a telegram forwarded here to See and Carnera from Byron H. Uhl, assistant commander of Ellis Island, N. Y., informing the pair that immigration officials had denied their request for a six months' extension of their legal stay in the United States, which terminated recently.

Carnera and his manager, he said, applied for the extension while here last week for the Carnera-Bearcat Wright fight. He said they are now en route from Cleveland to Montreal and that the telegram arrived here after their departure from Omaha. They were confident of obtaining the time extension, Paccasi said.

Sandwina And Walker Draw

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP) — Ted Sandwina, Sioux City heavyweight, and Al Walker, Harlem Negro, battled ten slow rounds to a draw at the Coney Island stadium tonight. Most of the ringside experts thought Walker had taken seven of the ten rounds. Walker weighed 194 1-2; Sandwina, 195.

Eddie Benson, New York, 191 1-2, stopped Jack Phoenix of Brooklyn, 180 1-2, in the seventh round of another ten rounder. Phoenix substituted for Jack Gross of Philadelphia.

U. S. DEPENDS ON TILDEN TO BRING THE DAVIS CUP BACK TO AMERICA

PARIS, July 21.—(AP)— After eleven years Big Bill Tilden stands tonight as the brightest single hope the United States has to regain the Davis cup from the French in the challenge round opening here Friday.

After surmounting the difficulties that arose through his writings for an American newspaper syndicate the Davis cup committee named Big Bill to the No. 1 role in the singles play only to have Tilden, who accepted "despite my better judgment, turn an ankle this afternoon in practice. Late this evening, however, doctors decided after consultation that America's premier player would be fit for the opening of the series.

"In 1919, with Bill Johnston, I went to Australia and brought back the Davis cup," Big Bill told the Associated Press as soon as the doctors' verdict was announced. "It is my fondest hope to bring it back to the United States after eleven years, and then, believe me, some one else can defend it. I am through."

Early in the day official notice came from New York that Tilden had been selected for the task of regaining the cup. That settled the issue for a few hours.

In the afternoon, while practicing with Karel Kozeluh, Czech professional, Tilden turned his ankle, limped away to a waiting automobile, and the big question mark in world tennis was again unanswered. Tonight, however, Big Bill's name was definitely on the list of players supplied by team Captain Fitz Eugene Dixon, to the French Tennis federation.

The announcement that Tilden had been selected to the team after his vigorous statements that he would not play came only as a mild surprise to the French tennis public, which had been expecting it for several days. Later, when the faithfuls watching practice at the Roland Garros stadium saw Tilden go after a high lob from Kozeluh's racquet, slip, fall, and writhe in pain, they were more sceptical.

The team, as presented to the French, stands as Tilden, George Lott, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn.

France will pin its faith for the cup defense on Cochet, Tilden's old Nemesis; Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus.

Boussus and Brugnon are France's doubles alternates and will be used against the American combination of Allison and Van Ryn on the second day unless France loses both singles Friday. If that happens Cochet and Borotra, who will carry the singles burden, also will play doubles. France is all but conceding the victory to Allison and Van Ryn in the doubles anyway.

"Is Mr. Allison going to play singles for America?" he asked. He seemed disappointed when informed that Tilden and Lott had been selected.

Both Cochet and Borotra have been practicing away from Paris, tuning their games to the highest pitches.

ROBINS DROP LEAD WHEN THEY SPLIT WITH CARDS

BROOKLYN, July 21.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins relinquished the National league leadership to the Chicago Cubs today, dividing a double header with the Cards while the Bruins were taking a single contest from the New York Giants.

The first contest went to the Robins 9 to 8 but the Cards came back in the second to win a 17 to 10 slugfest. With five homers rattling off the war clubs of the batters, the opener turned into a home run contest. Circuit drives by Mancuso, Bottomley and Puccinelli scored all of the Cards' runs but proved worthless when Harvey Hendrick poled out a pinch hit homer in the ninth with two on base and won the game.

Frisch added another four-bagger in the second game while Lee contributed one to the Brooklyn cause. The score:

CANZONERI WINS VERDICT OVER BASS IN 10 ROUNDS

PHILADELPHIA, July 21. — (AP)— Tony Canzoneri, slugging New Yorker, won a 10-round decision over Benny Bass, Philadelphia, recognized in a number of states as junior lightweight champion, in the feature bout at the Phillies ball park tonight. Bass' title was not at stake. He weighed 125 3-4 and Canzoneri 130 1-4.

The bout was marked by frequent clinching, particularly on the part of Bass, who was nearly five pounds under the weight limit of his class and 4 1-2 pounds lighter than his opponent.

Canzoneri was too strong for the Philadelphian, winning five of the ten rounds by wide margins. Bass took three rounds and two were about even. Three years ago the rugged New Yorker robbed Bass of his world's featherweight title and had his present crown been at stake tonight Canzoneri would have won it easily.

DETROIT, July 21.—(AP)—The Tigers slugged out a 7 to 6 victory over the world's champion Athletics today, getting 11 hits off George Earnshaw, seven of which were good for extra bases.

Nash value
EIGHTS and SIXES greater than ever

Recent developments stress the fact that Nash gives more for the money

Amid all new claims and counter-claims, one fact stands out as clear and as strong as sunlight.

That is the unmistakably greater value which you get when you buy a Nash.

No other car at anywhere near the Nash price affords the pronounced advantages of Nash —including such features as twin ignition, with its greater power, speed, smoothness and saving of oil and gas.

Such a feature as twin ignition is highly important—but it is even more important as indicative of the superior engineering and of the in-built value which distinguish every Nash car.

You know Nash beauty. You may be familiar with Nash performance; Nash comfort and convenience; Nash thorough-going quality.

But until you compare what the Nash is and what it does with the remarkably low cost at which it may be purchased today—you cannot appreciate its wholly unexampled value. Come in and drive a Nash today.

Let us appraise your present car—Now

WESTERLY

TWO FINED FOR BEING DRUNK BY WESTERLY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, July 21—Special session of Third District court was held on Monday at 10:30 a. m. with Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench when court matters were disposed of as follows:

A local man was charged with being intoxicated on Main street in Westerly on Saturday. The arrest of the defendant followed his attendance at a picnic held on the Westerly-Norwich road. He was also declared to have been reported as operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor but when Westerly police were first called to Main street were unable to find him. Later on the police found him after it was said that he took a slap at his wife. When warned that he had just escaped a more serious complaint the defendant said he had nothing to say. On being found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs which were paid and he was discharged.

An Alton, R. I. man employed by Paul Babcock at Alton, was brought before the court by Sergt. Ernest F. Stenhouse of the Hope Valley, R. I. barracks of the state police. He was placed under arrest when found drunk on Main street at Carolina, in Richmond, R. I., about 10:30 p. m. on Saturday. His arrest followed a complaint of a Mrs. Wright who declared that 12 men, intoxicated were endeavoring to steal an automobile and that she was afraid when a bottle was thrown at her. On the arrival of the state police the auto was found to have been moved 40 feet down a lane leading to a road where a young boy had jumped onto the running board, turned off the switch and pulled out the key, and the accused was found sitting in the car when the state police arrived a short time later. The man said that his wife, mother and family depended upon him for support.

Court ordered the defendant to pay costs and to report to the probation officer and the case was continued with a warning that should he again be brought before the judge a maximum penalty could be expected.

BLIND CENSUS CARDS WITH ELECTRICITY BILLS

In the work of taking a census of the blind in New London county, under the auspices of the United States census bureau, the Russell Sage Foundation and the American Foundation for the Blind, one of the methods to be followed will be the enclosure of inquiry cards in the bill envelopes of all the public service corporations furnishing electricity in the area indicated. Another Connecticut area where the same collection of statistics will be carried on includes the townships of Berlin, Meriden and New Britain, each of these areas having approximately 100,000 population.

In view of the national scope of the findings and the fact that the United States census bureau will be interested in the results, special permission has been granted by each of the public service corporations to insert this card in their current bills. Householders will, therefore, receive this card within a short time with their electric light bill. All are asked to cooperate in the effort and to write on the card the names and addresses of any blind or nearly blind persons who are known to them. The sender need not sign his name, and the card requires no postage. If all who receive these cards will give the matter careful attention it will be possible to secure an approximately complete census of the blind and nearly blind in this area.

It will be noted that the names and addresses of nearly blind persons are requested. Any person who has less than two-fifths (2-5) vision in the better eye should be reported. If a person cannot count fingers correctly at ten or twelve feet, the name should be sent in. Those who cannot read ordinary newspaper print should also be included. It is only as the citizens of this district cooperate helpfully in this matter that full data can be secured. An effort will also be made through the ministers and churches to secure necessary data. If any newspaper reader knows of any blind or nearly blind person and does not receive a report card it will be helpful if they will send the information directly to the State Board of Education of the Blind, State Capitol, Hartford, Conn. All the information that is needed is the name and address of the blind or nearly blind person. Children as well as adults should be reported.

ARMY ADDS BLIND FLYING TO KELLY FIELD COURSE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. —(AP)— In hooded cockpit, students in the advanced flying schools of the air corps, Kelly field, will be taught to fly by instruments.

Eight hours of practice with stock instruments will be supplemented by lectures on "fog flying" and graduation to advanced types of airplanes.

Students will rely on an airspeed meter, altimeter, turn-and-bank indicator, compass and tachometer showing the number of revolutions of the engine. Instructors will accompany the fliers to watch for other aircraft and check the students' work.

EXPLORER SAYS NEGROES WERE ASIATIC NATIVES

PARIS (AP)—Negroes were the first people to inhabit the mystery land of Thibet, according to the French explorer, Dr. A. F. Legendre.

He maintains there is no such thing as a pure Mongolian race, and that the "yellow race" is the issue of union between a white race which went to Asia as conquerors and Asiatic natives who, he says, were Negroes.

Kitty Hawk Gets Telephone.

KITTY HAWK, N. C.—(AP)— This historic spot where the Wright brothers experimented with airplanes, is now connected with the outside world by telephone. The connection was made by stretching a cable across Currituck sound.

Matches of native manufacture in China are to be exempt from taxation to encourage domestic industry.

DROP IN STOCK PRICES YESTERDAY OFFSET ALL GAINS MADE LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Speculative sentiment and the thermometer moved in opposite directions in Wall street today. The former dropped sufficiently to cancel all of last week's gains in stock prices and to send wheat, corn and cotton tumbling. Bonds turned irregular.

Profit taking, followed by aggressive short selling, clipped an average, based on 90 leading issues of five points from share quotations compared with last week's advance of 4 9-10. It was the sharpest drop since June 24, when the market struck the year's bottom, and served definite notice that the professional bull operators still had a strong bear group to reckon with.

Most of the selling came in the last hour when earlier moderate declines on realizing were extended into net losses of 2 to 6 points in many trading favorites. The volume, however, remained under 2,000,000 shares, although the market was sufficiently active during the bear raid to delay the ticker seven minutes at the close. Final prices were generally the day's lowest, for there was virtually no covering.

The weakness of commodities and the appearance of some unfavorable second quarter earnings statements, were disappointing to holders of the long position and the easing tendencies of stocks encountered little resistance, with the result that the shorts had things their own way when their drive was launched.

Wheat closed about 2 1-2 cents a bushel lower, reflecting a disappointing export demand, a large increase in the visible supply, and reports of Canadian rains. Corn was off slightly less on the weakness of southwestern markets, good rains in Iowa and a bearish Illinois report. Cotton closed off $1.80 to $2.40 a bale in response to liquidation inspired by expectation of better weather. Raw sugar touched a new low.

Today's reaction was not unexpected, for declines are normal after periods of steadily rising prices such as the market has just experienced.

Chesapeake and Ohio, the largest railroad yet to report for June, disclosed a decrease of about 8 per cent in gross operating income and of about six per cent for the six months.

The money markets were comfortable, unchanged from last week's closing.

The pressure against stocks was well distributed. American Can, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, New York Central, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, Auburn Auto, Worthington Pump, Vanadium and Columbian Carbon lost 5 to 6 points. America and Columbian Carbon lost 5 to 6 points. American Tobacco B, U .S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Coca Cola, Radio, Hudson Motors, Studebaker, Atchison, United Aircraft, Radio Keith Orpheum, Paramount and Loew's broke 2 to 4 net. Chesapeake and Ohio yielded 6 3-4 and J. I. Case, 13.

The recent strength of Canadian exchange was reflected in the withdrawal of $2,000,000 in gold for shipment to Canada, the first exportation to the Dominion in two years. Foreign currencies were firm, sterling cables rising slightly.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—Wheat values fell quickly today, with wheat arriving here faster than at any previous time this season and with beneficial rains and lower temperatures widespread.

The market influence of big receipts of wheat in Chicago today, 1233 cars, was emphasized by a huge increase of the United States wheat visible supply, 8,394,000 bushels greatly exceeding that either of last week or a year ago. Official estimates were out indicating that stocks of domestic wheat at interior mills and elevators are 27,538,000 bushels in excess of a five year average.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady at about the day's bottom level, 2 1-2a2 3-4c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-4a2 3-8c down, oats 1a1 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a drop of 12c.

Provisions were also easier, responsive to downturns in hog values and in cereals as well.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Swift reaction in the last half hour of trading on the curb market today climaxed a day of dull trading in which the market appeared ragged and weary. Net losses of 2 to 4 points were numerous among the more popular trading issues. Aluminum company in the high priced group, broke 12 1-2.

The reaction was regarded primarily as a technical correction of the market's position after the almost steady advance of the past fortnight. The recent advance had attracted negligible public participation, and the predominantly professional character of today's activity was indicated by a turnover of only 481,900 shares.

Electric Bond and Share dropped 4 points in active trading, and Duke Power six, in a few odd lot sales. American Gas and Electric lost nearly 3, and American Super Power, Associated Gas A and Niagara Hudson, about a point. Natural gas issues mostly sagged, although Dixie Gas shot up about 4.

Cities Service, which sold up above 30 last week closed today at 28, off 1 3-4 net. Oils generally were under pressure, although losses were mostly small, save in Gulf, off 3 and Cosden, off 2. In the investment and holding company group, United Founders lost 1, Transamerica, 2, and Goldman Sachs nearly 3 points, while Intercoast Trading and the Prince and Whitely issues held steady.

Aviation issues were mostly steady, with New York, Rio and Buenos Aires a firm spot, gaining more than a point, but Aviation corporation, of the Americas, dropped 5 points. Industrials were generally heavy. Deere dropped 4 points, and several of the low priced issues reached new lows, including Nachman Spring Filled, Zonite and Hartman Tobacco, the last named dropped 4 1-2 to 5.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—The underlying strength of the listed bond market was tested today when midsummer dullness and weakness of equity issues influenced an irregular movement. On the whole, the market emerged from one of the dullest Monday trading sessions of the year with little impairment in the present high level of prices.

Fluctuations followed a narrow groove and few changes of any consequence were listed in prime investment issues at the close. The movement in the domestic section, was sluggish and some unsettlement was influenced by the reactionary turn the stock market took, with the customary shading in stock privilege bonds. During most of the day attention veered to foreign bonds, with the principal governments selling close to the peak prices for the year under moderate accumulation.

Call money remained at 3 per cent throughout the day, and rates on time money held stationary. Slackening in activity was attributed to the absence of many traders who extended their week ends through the day to escape the heat.

Dullness was apparent in the trading in railroad issues. Little important selling cropped out and offerings of standard rails, particularly those legal for savings banks, were meagre. The trend was slightly upward. While Atchison 4 1-2s lost 1 1-4 points, other convertible rails were fairly steady. Cleveland Union Terminal 5 1-2s of 1972, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, were the weakest items. Bonds of Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Hudson, Denver, and Rio Grande, and Western, and Baltimore and Ohio, were firm and some made good fractional gains.

Wider losses occurred among other classes of convertible and warrant bonds. International Telephone 4 1-2s, and Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s, lost nearly two points each. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, sagged half point and Pathe warrant 7s, dropped 1 point. Loew's 6s moved lower.

The movement of utility bonds was mostly upward. Chicago Gas Light and Coke 5s, Duquesne Light 4 1-2s, New York Telephone 4 1-2s, and Tennessee Electric Power 6s, advanced. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, and International Telephone were steady. Utility Power and Light 5s, with warrants, yielded 1 3-5 points. Federal Light and Traction 5s, reacted 2.

Among industrials, sugar company bonds were generally depressed as sugar futures reached a new low on the New York exchange. Certainteed 5 1-2s dropped 2 1-2 points, and International Cement 5s, International Paper 5s, and U. S. Rubber 5s, dropped a point or more.

The irregularity extended to foreign bonds. Government issues were the most active and tended upward. British 5 1-2s sold at the year's high and both Belgian and French issues maintained a firm trend. German bonds tained a firm trend. German bonds were steady. Rumania 7s sagged 3-4 of a point, and Italy 7s, Denmark 5 1-2s, Bulgaria 7 1-2s lost about 1-2 point each. Argentine 6s, Chile 6s, and Brazil 6 1-2s were strong. Uruguay 6s eased. Colombia Agriculture Bank 6s rose 6 points.

City of Sao Paulo 6 1-2s moved up 3 1-2 points.

United States governments were quiet with small gains the rule.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 21—(AP)—Four persons were killed, 100 injured, and 500 arrested today in riots here. In Port Said, Suez, and Alexandria, minor riots occurred.

The Wafdist party had made Cairo the storm center of their protest against the suspension of parliament and against the manner in which Premier Sidky Pasha is running the country.

The four killed were members of the mob which barricaded a street near Abid Palace and the public buildings. Among those arrested were various members of the local Wafd committee.

The rioters were dispersed by police and Egyptian troops only after firearms had been brought into play on two occasions.

IT'S BELOW ZERO FIVE MILES UP IN THE AIR

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 21—(AP)—It was 100 in the shade here today, so Capt. Boris Sergievsky taxied his amphibian out into the Housatonic river, traveled more than five miles straight up, and came back shivering.

"It was below zero up there," he said. "Ice formed on my windshield."

Sergievsky, who is chief pilot for an airplane company, attained an estimated altitude of 25,000 feet, breaking the record he already held for an amphibian with 2,200 pound load. It took him an hour and 17 minutes.

ROCKETS MAY HELP TO CHART WEATHER FOR ALTITUDE MAPS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Mapping weather of the air as successfully as weather of the earth's surface now is charted is seen by Dr. Charles G. Abbott, Smithsonian secretary, as a possible achievement of high power rockets.

Commenting on experiments of Prof. Robert H. Goddard of Clark university, who has been granted Guggenheim support in rocket work, he stressed the value of moderate-height measurements to aviation.

"Rockets at all principal airports," he said, "will be making daily measurements of temperatures, wind velocities and electrical conditions.

"At present our measurements for the aviator's air chart must be made by watching drift balloons, by sending up planes, by flying kites and captive balloons, or by estimating from observations made on the ground.

"It is impossible to get quick results on the air conditions at considerable heights in these ways. With the parachute-rocket, however, we may expect that automatic instruments will bring back their records safely within a few minutes from any desired height."

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

DROP IN STOCK PRICES YESTERDAY OFFSET ALL GAINS MADE LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Speculative sentiment and the thermometer moved in opposite directions in Wall street today. The former dropped sufficiently to cancel all of last week's gains in stock prices and to send wheat, corn and cotton tumbling. Bonds turned irregular.

Profit taking, followed by aggressive short selling, clipped an average, based on 90 leading issues of five points from share quotations compared with last week's advance of 4 9-10. It was the sharpest drop since June 24, when the market struck the year's bottom, and served definite notice that the professional bull operators still had a strong bear group to reckon with.

Most of the selling came in the last hour when earlier moderate declines on realizing were extended into net losses of 2 to 6 points in many trading favorites. The volume, however, remained under 2,000,000 shares, although the market was sufficiently active during the bear raid to delay the ticker seven minutes at the close. Final prices were generally the day's lowest, for there was virtually no covering.

The weakness of commodities and the appearance of some unfavorable second quarter earnings statements, were disappointing to holders of the long position and the easing tendencies of stocks encountered little resistance, with the result that the shorts had things their own way when their drive was launched.

Wheat closed about 2 1-2 cents a bushel lower, reflecting a disappointing export demand, a large increase in the visible supply, and reports of Canadian rains. Corn was off slightly less on the weakness of southwestern markets, good rains in Iowa and a bearish Illinois report. Cotton closed off $1.80 to $2.40 a bale in response to liquidation inspired by expectation of better weather. Raw sugar touched a new low.

Today's reaction was not unexpected, for declines are normal after periods of steadily rising prices such as the market has just experienced.

Chesapeake and Ohio, the largest railroad yet to report for June, disclosed a decrease of about 8 per cent in gross operating income and of about six per cent for the six months.

The money markets were comfortable, unchanged from last week's closing.

The pressure against stocks was well distributed. American Can, Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, New York Central, Eastman Kodak, Westinghouse Electric, Auburn Auto, Worthington Pump, Vanadium and Columbian Carbon lost 5 to 6 points. America and Columbian Carbon lost 5 to 6 points. American Tobacco B, U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Coca Cola, Radio, Hudson Motors, Studebaker, Atchison, United Aircraft, Radio Keith Orpheum, Paramount and Loew's broke 2 to 4 net. Chesapeake and Ohio yielded 6 3-4 and J. I. Case, 13.

The recent strength of Canadian exchange was reflected in the withdrawal of $2,000,000 in gold for shipment to Canada, the first exportation to the Dominion in two years. Foreign currencies were firm, sterling cables rising slightly.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—Wheat values fell quickly today, with wheat arriving here faster than at any previous time this season and with beneficial rains and lower temperatures widespread.

The market influence of big receipts of wheat in Chicago today, 1233 cars, was emphasized by a huge increase of the United States wheat visible supply, 8,394,000 bushels greatly exceeding that either of last week or a year ago. Official estimates were out indicating that stocks of domestic wheat at interior mills and elevators are 27,538,000 bushels in excess of a five year average.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady at about the day's bottom level, 2 1-8a2 3-4c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1 3-4a2 3-8c down, oats 1a1 1-4c off, and provisions unchanged to a drop of 12c

Provisions were also easier, responsive to downturns in hog values and in cereals as well.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Swift reaction in the last half hour of trading on the curb market today climaxed a day of dull trading in which the market appeared ragged and weary. Net losses of 2 to 4 points were numerous among the more popular trading issues. Aluminum company in the high priced group, broke 12 1-2

The reaction was regarded primarily as a technical correction of the market's position after the almost steady advance of the past fortnight. The recent advance had attracted negligible public participation, and the predominantly professional character of today's activity was indicated by a turnover of only 481,900 shares.

Electric Bond and Share dropped 4 points in active trading, and Duke Power six, in a few odd lot sales. American Gas and Electric lost nearly 3, and American Super Power, Associated Gas A and Niagara Hudson, about a point. Natural gas issues mostly sagged, although Dixie Gas shot up about 4.

Cities Service, which sold up above 30 last week closed today at 28, off 1 3-4 net. Oils generally were under pressure, although losses were mostly small, save in Gulf, off 3 and Cosdon, off 2. In the investment and holding company group, United Founders lost 1, Transamerica, 2, and Goldman Sachs nearly 3 points, while Intercoast Trading and the Prince and Whitely issues held steady.

Aviation issues were mostly steady, with New York, Rio and Buenos Aires a firm spot, gaining more than a point, but Aviation corporation, of the Americas, dropped 5 points. Industrials were generally heavy. Deere dropped 4 points, and several of the low priced issues reached new lows, including Nachman Spring Filled, Zonite and Hartman Tobacco, the last named dropped 4 1-2 to 5.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—The underlying strength of the listed bond market was tested today when midsummer dullness and weakness of equity issues influenced an irregular movement. On the whole, the market emerged from one of the dullest Monday trading sessions of the year with little impairment in the present high level of prices.

Fluctuations followed a narrow groove and few changes of any consequence were listed in prime investment issues at the close. The movement in the domestic section, was sluggish and some unsettlement was influenced by the reactionary turn the stock market took, with the customary shading in stock privilege bonds. During most of the day attention veered to foreign bonds, with the principal governments selling close to the peak prices for the year under moderate accumulation.

Call money remained at 2 per cent throughout the day, and rates on time money held stationary. Slackening in activity was attributed to the absence of many traders who extended their week ends through the day to escape the heat.

Dullness was apparent in the trading in railroad issues. Little important selling cropped out and offerings of standard rails, particularly those legal for savings banks, were meagre. The trend was slightly upward. While Atchison 4 1-2s lost 1 1-4 points, other convertible rails were fairly steady. Cleveland Union Terminal 5 1-2s of 1972, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, were the weakest liens. Bonds of Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Hudson, Denver, and Rio Grande, and Western, and Baltimore and Ohio, were firm and some made good fractional gains.

Wider losses occurred among other classes of convertible and warrant bonds. International Telephone 4 1-2s, and Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s, lost nearly two points each. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, sagged half point and Pathe warrant 7s, dropped 1 point. Loew's 6s moved lower.

The movement of utility bonds was mostly upward. Chicago Gas Light and Coke 5s, Duquesne Light 4 1-2s, New York Telephone 4 1-2s, and Tennessee Electric Power 6s, advanced. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, and International Telephone were steady. Utility Power and Light 5s, with warrants, yielded 1 3-8 points. Federal Light and Traction 6s, reacted 2.

Among industrials, sugar company bonds were generally depressed as sugar futures reached a new low on the New York exchange. Certainteed 5 1-2s dropped 3 1-2 points, and International Cement 5s, International Paper 5s, and U. S. Rubber 5s, dropped a point or more.

The irregularity extended to foreign bonds. Government issues were the most active and tended upward. British 5 1-2s sold at the year's high and both Belgian and French issues maintained a firm trend. German bonds tained a firm trend. German bonds were steady. Rumania 7s sagged 3-4 of a point, and Italy 7s, Danmark 5 1-2s, Bulgaria 7 1-2s lost about 1-2 point each. Argentine 6s, Chile 6s, and Brazil 6 1-2s were strong. Uruguay 6s eased. Colombia Agriculture Bank 6s rose 6 points.

City of Sao Paulo 6 1-2s moved up 3 1-2 points.

United States governments were quiet with small gains the rule.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED IN RIOTS IN CAIRO, EGYPT

CAIRO, Egypt, July 21—(AP)—Four persons were killed, 100 injured, and 500 arrested today in riots here. In Port Said, Suez, and Alexandria, minor riots occurred.

The Wafdist party had made Cairo the storm center of their protest against the suspension of parliament and against the manner in which Premier Sidky Pasha is running the country.

The four killed were members of the mob which barricaded a street near Abid Palace and the public buildings. Among those arrested were various members of the local Wafd committee.

The rioters were dispersed by police and Egyptian troops only after firearms had been brought into play on two occasions.

IT'S BELOW ZERO FIVE MILES UP IN THE AIR

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 21—(AP)—It was 100 in the shade here today, so Capt. Boris Sergievsky taxied his amphibian out into the Housatanic river, traveled more than five miles straight up, and came back shivering.

"It was below zero up there," he said. "Ice formed on my windshield."

Sergievsky, who is chief pilot for an airplane company, attained an estimated altitude of 23,000 feet, breaking the record he already held for an amphibian with 2,200 pound load. It took him an hour and 17 minutes.

ROCKETS MAY HELP TO CHART WEATHER FOR ALTITUDE MAPS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Mapping weather of the air as successfully as weather of the earth's surface now is charted is seen by Dr. Charles G. Abbott, Smithsonian secretary, as a possible achievement of high power rockets.

Commenting on experiments of Prof. Robert H. Goddard of Clark university, who has been granted Guggenheim support in rocket work, he stressed the value of moderate-height measurements to aviation.

"Rockets at all principal airports," he said, "will be making daily measurements of temperatures wind velocities and electrical conditions.

"At present our measurements for the aviator's air chart must be made by watching drift balloons, by sending up planes, by flying kites and captive balloons, or by estimating from observations made on the ground.

"It is impossible to get quick results on the air conditions at considerable heights in these ways. With the parachute-rocket, however, we may expect that automatic instruments will bring back their records safely within a few minutes from any desired height."

JUNE BUILDING SHOWS INCREASE OVER MAY

Building permits issued by the various cities and towns in the state of Connecticut during the month of June showed a gain in value of somewhat less than one million dollars over permits issued in May, according to the monthly survey conducted among twenty-three leading communities through the office of E. L. Taylor, industrial commissioner of the New Haven railroad. The increase over May was spread among eleven of the cities and towns included in the survey.

The eleven communities which showed increases in building activity as compared with the previous month were Danbury, Greenwich, Hamden, Hartford, Naugatuck, New Haven, Norwich, Torrington, Wallingford, Waterbury and Willimantic.

As compared with building permit figures of June, 1929, last month's general total was considerably less although seven of the twenty-three communities enjoyed increases. These were Derby, Hartford, Naugatuck, New Haven, Norwich, Waterbury and Willimantic.

Hartford topped the list for the month of June with permits valued at $1,712,701. New Haven was in second place with Greenwich third. Comparative building figures for June, 1930, and June, 1929, are reported in the railroad survey as follows:

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 15 sales of real estate in Norwich an increase of seven sales over the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $52,834 and $44,252.

In New London the sales of real estate numbered nine during the past week, exacting the same number as for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $173,662 and $113,425.

NEW LONDON

Work has been completed on a colonial house built for Lieut. Gov. E. E. Rogers in Chapel street. The structure is of frame construction, larger than the ordinary house and very imposing in its appearance. The plans provided for all improvements and conveniences, including hardwood floors, steam heat, built-in features, brass piping, automatic hot water heater, etc.

Work is fast nearing completion on the construction of a bungalow being built for William Gray in Terrace avenue. The house is of modern design and frame construction, with a stone foundation, 24 by 36 feet. It contains five rooms and bath and the estimated cost is $4,000. From private plans, it will have all improvements, including hardwood floors, electrical equipment, built-in features, etc. The work is being done by the day.

A gasoline service station has been completed in Broad street for the Bottinelli Monumental company. The structure is 16 by 20 feet, of concrete block construction and stucco surface. The roof is of Spanish tile, making an attractive job. All work was done by the day under the supervision of the owner.

A bungalow has been completed in Norwood avenue for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wheeler. The structure is of frame construction with stained shingle exterior and sun porch in front to the right of the entrance. The foundation is of concrete construction, 28 by 40 feet. Work was done by the day, from private plans, which provided for all improvements.

The excavation work has been completed and a stone retaining wall is now being built at Bank and Squire streets, where O. C. Racine is to erect a gasoline service station. The station is to be 24 by 30 feet, of brick and concrete construction.

The framework is going up on the edifice being built for the Zion Lutheran Evangelical church at Cedar Grove avenue and Ledyard street. The cornerstone for the building was laid with appropriate exercises last Sunday. The foundation work which is of concrete to the grade-level and brick above that, has all been completed. A parsonage being built on the Cedar Grove avenue side of the church was enclosed this week. The parsonage is of frame construction and will contain six rooms and bath.

FURNISHINGS FOR GARDEN ENJOYMENT

You may make of your garden a place of genuine enjoyment, rest and relaxation with the addition of a few seats, properly placed, says the August issue of The American Home. You will also improve its appearance, by helping to give it definiteness of form and character, and a hospitable atmosphere.

The preferred location for a seat, from the standpoint of practical usage, is one that furnishes more or less protection from the sun and undue breeziness, yet one in the full sunlight, both for occasional use and for decorative purpose, often is to be desired. Seats given the shelter or semi-shelter of a summer house, a vine-draped pergola, the spreading branches of a tree, or mere lattice-work, always are a source of particular enjoyment. Often a single seat placed before a fountain, beside a pool, or even out upon the open lawn, is delightfully effective. Naturally the outlook from a garden seat should be pleasing and pictorial whenever possible.

There are many different style and constructions for garden seats. Some, for formal gardens, are of stone, artificial or real, designed on classic lines; some are of wood, attractively painted; and others are of reed, hickory, enameled wood or metal, made in various chair and settee types.

Garden seats of the usual bench type may be made easily at home of two-inch planking. If a back is included, it should be given a somewhat backward slope for the sake of comfort. The seat must be rigid in construction, and any bracing employed should be planned on attractive, conventional lines. When finished it should be painted—preferably in white, cream, pale green, or in some color to correspond with the house wall or trim.

FOOT SCRAPERS ARE BACK AGAIN

Maybe you have noticed that the old-time foot scraper has returned to the home entrance. For many years it has been all but a memory, and there are children who actually don't know the reason for their resurrection. The passion of hand-wrought iron ornaments for the entrance has had much to do with its return, for there are many attractive designs which may be worked in wrought iron, designs which go extremely well with stair railings, grillwork and other details of the same material.

As for the usefulness of such articles it must be admitted that this is a somewhat minor factor. Foot scrapers were quite useful in the days when paved streets were unknown, and when sidewalks, for the most part, were of gravel and other ingredients which made for mud in wet weather. Then, too, in the old days, sidewalks were not shoveled down to the "quick" after a snowstorm, because to do so would mean to strip off the gravel top along with the snow.

Nevertheless, a foot scraper is a handy thing, even today with cement sidewalks and tarvia roadways the rule rather than the exception. They lend an interesting touch and when one has walked a way through slush it doesn't hurt the housewife's feelings at all to have something handy to make its removal possible.

IMPARTING LIFE TO THE LIVINGROOM

With a little subtlety in the selection of color backgrounds, for the livingroom, one may achieve the same daring that red heels and chin patches accomplish for party costumes, without in any way detracting from the general attractiveness of the room. Such elements as papers in soft violet gray, curtains of cretonne carrying a design of mauve, blue and olive green on a delicate peach background, and lampshades in pale peach and violet, assist materially in emphasizing the color scheme. With such a decorative plan in use walnut furniture is particularly appropriate.

NEW HOUSE COMPLETED ON COIT STREET

The above house was built by Contractor Homer J. Monty as an investment. The house is located on Coit street and is admirably placed on a large lot and has an attractive view from the porch of the house. It is a present day American design with [illegible] rooms and bath. The exterior is finished in colonial clapboards and shingles while the interior is in hardwood and hard plaster. The rooms are large and attractively arranged. The electric fixtures are very pretty and harmonize with the color schemes of the various rooms. The plumbing is all in brass.

BRONZE SCREENING PROVES ITS WORTH

Summer storms will soon prove just how good the wire screening used in the home really is. If screens are of bronze the home owner need not be disturbed for this material resists rust and corrosion.

Bronze screening is now obtainable in rolling as well as in the stationary form. Rolling screens are as a rule, more practical than the others for they can be stored for the winter at the top of the window. The unpleasant task of putting them in place at the beginning of the summer and taking them down in the fall is done away with. Another feature appreciated by the housewife is the fact that window cleaning is not interferred with; the screens are simply rolled up while this work is being done.

MANY FLOOR PROBLEMS ARE EASILY SOLVED

When grandmother went to housekeeping, she bought horsehair furniture for her parlor and ponderous suites for the dining room and bedrooms. There wasn't much argument or decision about it—it was simply the thing to do.

Today our ideas on furnishing and decorating our homes have changed. We need no longer conform to any one period unless we wish. Good taste is the single guide which the home decorator must have. With it, she gives her fancy full reign, following any period or group, choosing from each as she wishes, or decorating to suit herself.

The housewife's task is an easy one, with the selection of decorative materials available in every department store. The selection of pieces that harmonize is made easy by the aid of the interior decorators employed by so many department stores today, as well as the interior decorating bureaus maintained by many leading manufacturers of household materials. These manufacturers will glady supply anyone who requests the service with sample combinations of floor, wall, and drapery materials.

Decorators do not stop there, but are of still further assistance by giving advice as to room settings. Until quite recently, one of the most difficult problems confronting every home decorator was that of finding the right floor to blend with the decorations of a modernistic room. It was so important, and yet so difficult, to find a harmonizing floor. Now, however, thanks to the new ultra-modern floors that are being introduced by leading linoleum manufacturers, this problem no longer exists.

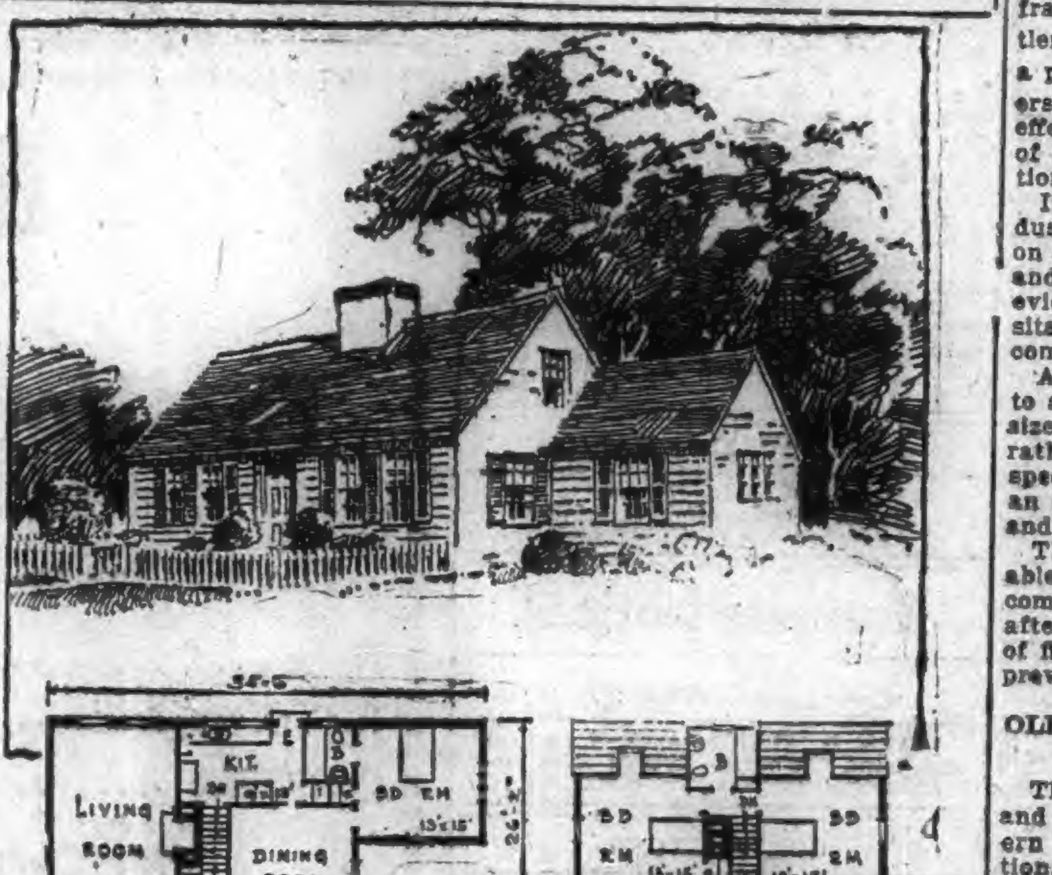
WALLPAPER NOW USED FOR SHELF COVERING

A new wrinkle for the owners of summer homes or camps is the use of wall-paper for shelf covering. When the next visit is made bring along three or four rolls of this material, and a few cans of varnish.

Cover all the shelves with the paper and then varnish it down. This practice, it is claimed, is more satisfactory than loose shelf paper and quite decorative. This same idea may also be used on the table, the varnished finish enabling one to clean the table with a damp cloth after meals. It may also be used for lampshades in the bedrooms.

Of course, it is to be expected that the paper will wear off under constant use, but is easily renewed and cheaply replaced.

AMERICAN DESIGN AT BEST IN THIS SMALL TYPE



American in every line is this colonial design, and it is both beautiful in form and economical in plan. The walls are of white clapboards, and the roof should be a dark brown. Green shutters set off the white walls and the chimney is white with a black top.

Ample light and air are provided for the living and dining rooms on the first floor, and also for the one bedroom on that floor, which is located in an extension, such as the early settlers used to add when their families outgrew the original house.

Upstairs two more bedrooms receive light and ventilation from the end windows and also from dormer windows in the roof at the rear. A bathroom is provided on each floor. Stairs and chimney rise together in the center of the house, and the chimney in this location connects conveniently with vents from the kitchen.

To carry out the colonial atmosphere of the living room furnished by the fireplace, that side of the room should be panelled and have pilasters on either side of the hearth.

The house should face to the east. If the house is to be placed across the lot the size required is about 75 by 100 feet. If placed the long way, a lot 80 by 100 feet will suffice, but is not recommended. Cost of building this home should run from $8,000 to $10,000.

In front the low white picket fence carries out still further the colonial atmosphere, and it may enclose an old-fashioned garden.

STONE WAS EARLIEST BUILDING MATERIAL USED

Stone has been recognised as a valuable material for building purposes since the pre-historic days of the cave among the rocks or in a hillside. It was a material always at hand and was liberally used during medieval times to make fortresses proof against hostile attack. In certain sections of America the early Colonists found stone available and thus we see today the Pennsylvania Dutch homes with their rugged stone walls still defying the elements after several centuries.

Stone is quarried for building purposes as either rubble stone or dimension stone. The former is of any irregular size suitable for cutting into ashlar about 12 inches high by 24 inches long. Dimension stone is cut to the sizes required by the particular building for which it is cut. Rubble is sold by ton or carload. Dimension is always figured by cubic foot.

The commonest stone construction for small residences is rubble work. Stones of varying sizes are laid up in the wall just as they are received from the quarry, the largest ones broken up with a hammer. Frequently the stones are laid in courses in which the work is called coursed rubble.

On better class work the stones for the exterior face of the wall are sometimes roughly squared with a hammer. Work of this kind is designated as "ashlar." If each course is laid with stones of uniform height it is coursed ashlar, where stones of varying height occur in the same course "broken ashlar." Expensive quarried stone cut with a chisel is called "cut work." Lime stone, granite and sand stone are generally so handled. Houses of these materials would hardly be considered small homes.

The rubble stone walls most common in the small house are laid up about 18 inches thick. It is seldom possible to work to exact thickness because of the varying sizes of the stones, but the wall must be at least this size to adequately support floor and roof loads. In laying rubble work it is desirable to have many bond stones extending completely through the wall. Portland cement mortar is best although lime mortar is often used. It is not customary to color the mortar joints in rubble stone construction, the material gray mortar giging the best appearance.

KEEP BOILER FULL IN SUMMER TIME

When the fire is drawn from a steam or hot water heating system in warm weather, and the system is unused, it is best to leave the water in the boiler and pipes as a protection from rust. Strange as it may seem, the interiors of boilers and pipes rust more easily when exposed to air than when covered with water. In the navy, boilers not in use are always kept filled with water for this reason.

Many householders draw off the water when the fire is put out in summer, and do not refill the system until the fire is built again at the approach of cold weather. This is a mistake for the reason just stated. When the water has remained in a steam or hot water system all summer, however, it should be drawn off before the fire is started in the fall, so as to get rid of rust, dirt and sediment, and the system should be filled with clean water.

CALKING OF CRACKS HAS PLACE IN MODERN HOME

Calking, or the stuffing of cracks in framing caused by shrinkage, or settlements of the building, has as much a place in the modern home as weatherstripping. Its functions are equally effective in obtaining the elimination of heat loss and stopping the infiltration of cold, soot laden air.

It is only necessary to observe the dust streaks, which are often visible on the inside walls around the window and door frames of buildings to obtain evidence of this leakage which necessitates the application of a calking compound.

As the compound must be forced into and not onto the joints it is a man-sized job and should be done by hand rather than by a "gun." One company specializing in this work maintains an installation crew who calk by hand and whose work is dependable.

The material used is an elastic, durable, adhesive and non-crumbling compound that retains its plasticity after application. Once in place a skin of film forms over the exposed surface preventing the escape of oil.

OLD-TIME FLOORING RETURNS TO FAVOR

The rejuvenation of old houses, and the increasing interest in modern homes of early European derivation, has brought into much favor the wide plank floor. When of soft wood, such floors are often painted, but the hardwoods—particularly oak—are usually treated to develop the full beauty of the grain and the rich color which time and wax alone formerly gave to old floors of this type.

A few years ago wide plank floors were either impractical, if solid wood was used, or quite expensive if laminated, or built up, planks were employed to eliminate warping. The chemical treatment used on parquetry floors largely solves the problem of wide plank floors of solid wood.

Such floors gain interest by using dovetail keys to hold together the edges of adjoining planks, with plugs—sometimes of contrasting color—to cover the countersunk screw heads which hold the planks down to the underfloor.

THEY 'BURIED' HIM TWICE BUT MIKE IS BACK—ALIVE

CRESTON, Iowa, (AP)—They started burying Mike Dolan in Oklahoma two years ago, but Mike's home by the fireside here again.

In Oklahoma, visiting his sister, he disappeared and a body was found that was identified as Mike's. So they buried him. A few months later Mike returned.

Last February a man registered as Mike Dolan, died in a hotel here. People who knew the original Mike identified him, and so did his second wife. So they buried Mike again.

Recently Mike came back from Texas where he had been working on a railroad, and two graves, one in Oklahoma and one here, thereby lost their identity.

FRANZ JOSEPH'S ROBE IN CHURCH EXHIBIT

VIENNA, (AP)—The christening robe of the late Emperor Franz Joseph is one of the curiosities in the exposition of church treasures of the imperial palace.

The robe was also used for the baptism of his brother Maximilian, emperor of Mexico, and the rest of his brothers and sisters.

Said to be the most magnificent collection of church relics in the world, it has been kept under lock and key heretofore in the Capucine church in the palace.

Many reputed relics, including a thorn from the crown of Jesus, and teeth of Saints Peter, Elizabeth, Joseph and Christopher, are in the exhibit.

WATERSPOUT CAUGHT FOR FIRST PICTURES

MIAMI, Fla., (AP)—An airplane has won a game of tag with a waterspout, and as a result the National Geographic society has the first still and motion pictures made from the air of this phenomenon of the sea.

The photographs were made between Miami and Havana by the seaplane survey party of the society, during a study of geographic features and weather conditions along Latin-American plane routes.

The plane sighted the waterspout after veering to escape a squall, advanced close to the whirling column and made pictures of the straight dark descending line that marked the formation, then its great black bulk and finally a long grayish arm that swung off at 45 degrees—its lower end whipped into thinning waterstrands.

SHOWBOAT TO OBSERVE SECOND ANNIVERSARY

NEW YORK, (AP)—Hank Simmons' Showboat soon will be two years old.

In honor of the occasion, this Columbia chain feature is making plans to broadcast a special presentation Saturday evening, July 26.

Probably one of the most popular of the CBS programs, the hour, which is devoted to the enactment of melodramatic thrillers of the past, has presented more than 100 productions since its first broadcast in July, 1928.

The program was inaugurated at the suggestion and through the efforts of Harry C. Browne, former actor, who takes the part of Hank Simmons.

Others in the cast, which has remained almost intact from the beginning includes Edith Thayer as Jane McGrew, the soubrette; Elsie May Gordon as Maybelle, the heroine; Lawrence Gratton as DeWitt Schuyler, the villian, and Browne as Hank, the hero.

SHIP FINDS OCEAN WATER DIVIDED IN THREE PARTS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Existence of three layers of ocean water was found by the non-magnetic ship Carnegie, says John A. Fleming of the Carnegie Institution.

The upper layer contains animal and plant life, the middle is a region where decomposition of organic remains is taking place, and the bottom is water from polar regions.

WEAKNESS FOR CANCER NOT ALWAYS INHERITED

BERLIN, (AP)—Belief that predisposition to cancer is not inherited from one parent is announced by Prof. Felix Bernstein, who studied cancer heredity in the United States at the invitation of the American Society for Cancer Research.

Yet he thinks predisposition is invariably the sequel of inheritance if both parents have cancer. He said that if only one parent bequeaths the predisposition, the offspring is almost certain to remain immune.

A child of two cancer parents, however, is more than likely to have the disease, providing the exciting cause is present in shape of bacteriological, chemical or physical irritant.

Capes Again For Fall

First showings of fall coats feature black broadcloth. This flare model has a unique one-sided cape of broadcloth and collar and cuffs of Persian lamb.

LIGHT HELPS AND KILLS RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES

TUCSON, Ariz., (AP)—Both life giving and deadly powers are possessed by light for red blood corpuscles.

Experiments of both kinds are reported to the Southwestern Division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by W. W. Lepeschkin.

When exposed to direct sunlight, he says, the corpuscles suffer chemical alteration of their protoplasm or living matter. Decomposition sets in soon, even after the light has been withdrawn.

"The other action of light on red corpuscles," he says, "is useful to their life. Light increases the permeability of their protoplasm to substances that dissolve in water, and therefore to nutritive substances."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Egret Goes Fishing

When you are urged to take your fling,
Beware! There always is a string.
—Old Mother Nature.

Farmer Brown's Boy likes one kind of hunting. He says it is the greatest sport in the world and I am inclined to think that he is right. It is hunting with a camera.

"When you shoot a bird or an animal," says Farmer Brown's Boy, "that is the end of it. You may have the skin mounted, but there it is, always just the same—a dead thing, no matter how lifelike it may look. But when you hunt with a camera and get a successful picture of a bird or an animal it is just as interesting, and sometimes even more interesting than if the subject had been killed and mounted. You see, in the photograph you have the surroundings as well as the subject; and, best of all, you know that that bird or animal hasn't been harmed, and that very likely you may see it again, and perhaps many times."

Now, of course, when Farmer Brown's Boy got Egret the White Heron one of the first things he did was to make a photograph of it. He made a very nice portrait of Egret, but that wasn't enough. No, sir, that wasn't enough. You see, it was just a portrait. It might have been a mounted Egret, for all any one could tell from looking at the picture. Then Farmer Brown's Boy made some pictures of Egret in the farmyard, but these didn't suit him. Whoever saw an Egret in a farmyard? The background was all wrong.

One day Farmer Brown's Boy was looking over these pictures and an idea came to him. It came to him in that sudden way that ideas have of coming. "Why didn't I think of that before?" cried Farmer Brown's Boy, jumping up and starting for the house.

When he came out he had his camera with him. He went out to the barn and got Egret. Then he started for the Smiling Pool. As he drew near the Smiling Pool Egret began to be excited. When he saw the water to began to struggle. Farmer Brown's Boy soothed him as best he could. Then he attached a string to one of Egret's legs and put Egret down in the shallow water at the head of the Smiling Pool. What do you think Egret did? What would you have done in his place? Of course, you would! Egret did. He went fishing. Yes, sir, that's what he did—he went fishing.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled as he got busy with his camera

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled as he got busy with his camera and made photograph after photograph of Egret. Egret walked along in his stately fashion on the very edge of the water. He stood for a long time on one foot, his head tucked back between his shoulders. Then some minnows came within reach and Egret came to life with great suddenness. After he got tired of fishing he went hunting frogs. All this time Farmer Brown's Boy was busy with his camera. He was getting pictures of Egret just as Egret would be in his natural surroundings.

As for Egret, he was perfectly happy. That was what he had longed for ever since Farmer Brown's Boy had caught him. It was a wonderful thing for him, and, just as if he had known what Farmer Brown's Boy wanted, he did everything that a Heron would do hunting or fishing.

When at last Farmer Brown's Boy started to get him to take him home Egret wasn't ready to go. He started to run. He had forgotten that string that Farmer Brown's Boy had put on one leg. So it was that he didn't run far, for Farmer Brown's Boy was holding the other end of the string. After that, Farmer Brown's Boy took Egret fishing just as often as he could, for he knew just how much it meant to Egret.

LYCEUM THEATRE CORP., NEW LONDON PROTESTS VALUATION OF $70,567

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 21. — The board of school visitors came into conference with the city council again this evening when the former asked for an appropriation of $1174,74 for seats and desks for the Jennings school. It was pointed out that the council had transferred considerable sums from one fund to another for repairs at the Harbor school. It had been reported to the mayor that contemplated changes in the Jennings school were to accommodate new pupils. Councilor Fox asked what the desks were to be used for. He said it was strange that the present equipment was not suitable at the present time. Councilor Miner moved that the request be laid over to the next meeting for investigation. He wanted the appropriation included in the budget and he said that because there was a surplus in the fund there was no reason why it should be spent. He said that equipment was sufficient up to a few weeks ago and that there was a sum of $1100 not included in the budget for the present year. The matter was tabled.

The bonds of the clerk and the city treasurer of $5000 each were approved.

The committee on administration reported progress on the proposed admendment to the zoning ordinance providing wharves in the harbor. Only two persons had opposed the proposed ordinance.

Changes in the zoning ordinances for 4-car garages was read for the second time, as was the sewer assessments on Ocean avenue.

The A. M. E. Zion church was granted permission to hold a tag day in August.

A committee from the Lawrence Memorial Hospital association sent a letter to the council thanking the members for courtesies extended during the bazaar, at which $7000 was realized.

Permission was given for gasoline pumps and station in various parts of the city.

Five property owners on Charles court petitioned for a change of name of the street. This was referred to the committee.

Richard Pugh petitioned for permission to establish a miniature golf course on Ocean avenue opposite the Lawrence hospital. It was represented that he was encroaching on the residential zones. A suggestion that a temporary permit be granted was refused. Pugh was given leave to withdraw.

The Lyceum Theatre Corp. represented that it had an understanding with the assessors that its property valuation would not be higher than in 1929 when it was $29,060. It is now $70,567. The directors didn't go to the board of relief so have lost the right to appeal. They said that $40,000 was more than what it was really worth. Referred to city manager, director of law and assessors for report.

Fourteen building permits were granted. Permission was requested to establish electric signs. Referred to the city manager with power.

WIFE'S SUICIDE ATTEMPT CLOSES BOOZE JOINT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, July 21.— Lottie Williams, alias Lottie Eddins, who, according to William Williams, a chief petty officer stationed at the United States coast guard, state pier, is his common law wife, attempted suicide this evening by swallowing a quantity of lysol. She is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital where it is believed she will recover. Williams is a prisoner at police headquarters, having gone there after he had ascertained that his companion had attempted her life. He was arrested, charged with violation of the liquor law, for he admitted being the lessee of the apartment and in it when the police found the woman was a large quantity of home brew and two quarts of alcohol, diluted to be suitable for serving as gin. The police shortly before 6 o'clock were informed that a woman at 167 North Bank street had attempted self-destruction. Officers who went there found the Williams woman in a semi-conscious condition. The ambulance was summoned for it was discovered that she had swallowed a liberal quantity of the poisoning. After being taken to the hospital it was learned that the poisoning undoubtedly would not prove fatal and that there was every chance for her recovery. A search of the premises revealed the existence of 72 quarts of beer and the alcohol. Later it was revealed that the woman, whose real name is Eddins, has been residing with the coast guarder, but has never been married. Williams was automobiling at the time of the woman's act and when he went to police headquarters to make inquiry about her he was locked up. Williams admitted ownership of the beer, but denied all knowledge of the presence of the diluted alcohol in his home.

JOHN KIRBY DEAD IN N. Y.— NOTICE FROM INSPECTOR

John Kirby, believed to be either a resident of New London, or known in this city, is dead in a New York hospital, according to a message received at police headquarters this evening from Chief Inspector John J. O'Brien. The message also stated that Joseph Soplazaka, 177 North Bank street, would be able to provide information as to the relatives of the dead man. Soplazaka was not found at the North Bank street address and it is understood that he is a patient at Norwich State hospital.

JOHN WEINER, BAKER, INJURED IN AUTO WRECK

An automobile driven by James Romano, public taxicab operator and in which was John Weimer, employed at many times in New London and Norwich as a baker, was wrecked in Waterford this morning. Weimer is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital, suffering from lacerations and contusions. Romano, it is understood, was under the influence of liquor and will be arrested. The state police are conducting an investigation.

Fractured Left Arm

Carl King, 26, employed by the Berlin Bridge Co., and at work at the plant of the Eastern Connecticut Light & Power company, Montville, suffered a fractured left arm this forenoon when he stumbled and fell upon a trackway on which he was at work. He is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

MRS. BRIGGS ORDERED TO GET OUT OF THE CITY

In the police court this morning, Franklin Truesdell, 32, a laborer and Mrs. Jennie Briggs, 40, who said she was unemployed, were jointly charged with adultery, but the complaint was amended to that of lascivious carriage. Both pleaded guilty and each was sentenced to jail. In the case of the woman execution of the sentence was suspended and she was ordered to take her departure from the city within 24 hours, which she promised to do. If she doesn't comply with the court order and is found, the sentence imposed today will be put into effect. Truesdell and Mrs. Briggs were arrested at 1 o'clock Sunday morning when found occupying the bedchamber of Mrs. Briggs in the rooming house, 7 Huntington street, the arrest being made by State Police Officer James Dygert. The proprietress of the rooming house said that Mrs. Briggs was a permanent lodger there, but the former could not account for Truesdell being there.

Masqueraded in Uniform

Richard Staplins, Waterford, was presented on the charge of unlawfully wearing the uniform of the United States navy. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs, but the court ordered $75 of the fine remitted. Staplins was arrested by State Police Officer Dygert early Sunday morning when the former was detected masquerading in the uniform.

BATH-HOUSE OWNERS GET STAY TILL SEPTEMBER

Their over-zealousness in a desire to obtain easy money was the cause of Rose Zimmerman, 21 Midway place; Mrs. R. Lutin, 76 Dyke street and Mrs. B. Gold, 12 Midway place, Ocean beach, being in the police court today charged with violation of the city ordinance, which prohibits a person from soliciting for any form of business in the highway. The cases were continued until September 6th. Recently proprietors of legitimate bathing houses and pavilions at the shore resort have made complaint because certain individuals, who have erected several bathhouses in the yards of their homes, rent them, interfering with the long established business of the lessees of pavilions for which a high rent is paid. A week ago Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer made it known that a continuance of the soliciting by the bathhouse owners complaint again would result in arrests and true to his word, Sergeant John Courtney was at the shore resort early in the forenoon. When the officer detected the women mingling with the visitors and offering the rental of their bathing houses, the arrests resulted

TWO NORWICH DRIVERS IN LIST OF LAW-BREAKERS

Probably the largest number of arrests in a single day this summer, was the total made by the police Sunday, for 29 drivers were apprehended for various violations of the traffic laws. In the cases of 17, they were released with a warning to conform to the laws in the future and these drivers were non-residents. Robert S. Durkee, Waterford, charged with parking in restricted area, did not present himself in court and his bond of $2 was forfeited. A like disposition was made in the cases of Joseph Syracusa, proprietor of a public service automobile, charged with blocking traffic; Cadet Hand, Danielson, blocking traffic; Mary Albert, Springfield, Mass., blocking traffic; Max Solow, Hartford, obstructing a driveway; Edwin Erickson, Hartford, parking on sidewalk; Louis Fineburg, Hartford, blocking a fire hydrant; Bernard Weimer, 20 Home street, parking too close to corner. Among the 17 drivers to commit violations and who were released with a warning were Nathan C. Knasin, 141 Central avenue, Norwich and Marsh A. Thatcher, 32 High street, Norwich. Knasin was charged with blocking traffic and Thatcher with obstructing a driveway.

Benjamin Hochman, 20 Belden street, was charged with reckless driving, having been arrested on Ocean avenue Sunday by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin. He was fined $10 and costs.

Ralph E. Morton, Pawtucket, R. I., charged with passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Ocean and Glenwood avenues, failed to appear and his bond of $15 was forfeited. Robert A. Bonner, Waterbury; Rosario Giordano, 51 Allen street, Groton and Harry Zimmer, Hartford, were charged with the same violation. Bonner and Giordano failed to show up and forfeited their respective bonds of $15 and $10. Zimmer's case was nolled for he was ordered discharged by Prosecuting Attorney Boyer.

Kenneth Jackson, New York, charged with blocking a fire hydrant, also failed to present himself in court so forfeited his bond of $5.

Charles E. Holmes, Pawtucket, R. I., was charged with failing to grant right of way and parking on the wrong side of the highway. The charges were nolled. Holmes was arrested upon complaint of Rongetti, 672 Main street by Motorcycle Officer Clarence Martin.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Have you ever wondered what goes on behind the scenes in a big department store? Well, if you have, you need wonder no longer, at least not after Wednesday of this week, for the Palace theatre is bringing here a picture which gives the whole story. No longer need you ask yourself what the pretty little counter girls are thinking about, and what goes on in the backs of the heads of the floor walkers. Now you can come and see and hear it all when the Palace opens tomorrow with the season's newest romance, "Not Damaged" starting beautiful Lois Moran and Walter Byron.

But "Not Damaged" isn't the only picture at the Palace. Beginning tomorrow this popular Warner Brothers theatre also presents "Pardon My Gun," a roaring, laughing satire from the desert country. Once you have seen "Pardon My Gun," you will laugh for many a day, for it is positively one of the funniest things that ever came out of Hollywood, and it has a cast that is one of the best that the studio could beg, borrow, buy or steal.

Lois Moran and Walter Byron in the Fox movietone romance, "Not Damaged"

But to return to "Not Damaged." This is, in a sense, a daring picture, but the risque situations are so neatly handled that everything goes off smoothly. The story is centered around Gwen Stewart, a salesgirl in a big department store who is loved by two men. One of them is Charley Jones and he hasn't much except prospects. The other is Kirk Randolph and he is heir to all that the world offers. Kirk takes her places and Charley gets jealous. Ah, you say, but in the end Gwen realizes that Charley has a heart of gold despite his poverty and that she will marry him. If you think so, you have another think coming, for this is a sophisticated piece of drama that works out to a real life climax in a most unexpected and sensational manner.

Today for the last times the Palace presents that superlative drama of prison life, "Numbered Men," starring such celebrities as Conrad Nagel, Bernice Claire, Tully Marshall, Raymond Hacket and Ralph Ince.

WATCHER ON PEAK GUARDS MEXICAN AIRPLANE ROUTE

MEXICO CITY (AP)—High on a 10,000-foot mountain peak miles from civilization, an American radio operator guards the airplane route from Mexico City over the mountains to the east coast.

From his perch the watcher, Frank Hagerty of New York notes weather conditions over the mountains and radios whether the Mexican Aviation company's planes may safely cross the peaks, or should detour or stay on the ground. The safety of 20 or more passengers daily is dependent on his observations.

Though located in the tropics, Hagerty's mountain station is so high that the winds striking his shelter always are chilly.

AMERICAN AIR DERBY PLANE LANDS ON GALLOWS HILL FLYING FIELD

Off his course and almost out of gas, Edgar B. Todd of Pueblo, Colorado, contestant in the United States air derby from Detroit, made a forced landing here on Beebe's field, Gallows hill road, about 6:20 Monday evening. He brought his plane down safely and then set about the task of replenishing his fuel supply in the hope that he could get away again before dark to make Roosevelt field on Long Island, which he was headed for when he left Buffalo Monday afternoon.

However, difficulty in reaching the right gas supply checkmated his plan to leave before dark and he was to remain overnight and get away with the first light of dawn today (Tuesday.)

Todd was flying a low wing type plane of his own design, powered with a four-cylinder inverted type motor of the Cirrus Engine Co., of Detroit. It has a wing spread of 30 feet and is capable of doing 160 miles an hour. As the airline distance from Norwich to Roosevelt field is about 80 miles, the flyer calculated that he could easily reach there Monday evening if he could get away from here with half an hour of visibility ahead of him.

Todd was number 23 when he started in the air derby from Detroit Monday morning with Buffalo as the first stop, which he said he reached in 1 hour, 26 minutes, then being number nine in the race.

Leaving Buffalo for New York he planned to pick up the Hudson river as his guide to New York, but he explained his failure to recognize the Hudson by the height at which he was flying when he crossed the river at a point which he thought was about 50 miles north of New York. He was so high up, he said, that the Hudson looked like nothing but a creek, and he kept on flying east in the expectation of coming to the river, until his motor began to sputter and gave him warning that his gas was low. Coming down to look for a landing place, he made out the name "Norwich" painted on the top of the Shannon building and then found on his map that there was an emergency landing field marked on Gallows hill. After a little circling around he located the field and came to a landing.

Todd has lost considerable time by his detour this way, but he expects to continue on in the race as it will be the elapsed time which will count at the finish, and he may be able to make up some of his lost time before the course of 5,520 miles is completed.

From New York the planes turn westward on a 600-mile lap to Cincinnati. From there they go to Little Rock, Houston, San Angelo, Texas; Douglas, Los Angeles, Ogden, Utah; Lincoln, Neb.; Chicago and back to Detroit. The schedule calls for their return to Detroit on August 2.

Winners will be determined by the shortest elapsed time between control points, the pilot with the least flying time for the total distance winning the first prize, $15,000. Second place gets $7,000 and third $3,000. Lap prizes posted by various cities on the itinerary add another $11,500.

Nine Connecticut students were among the 32 winners of the C. M. T. C. battalion swimming competition who were awarded ribbons for their prowess at regimental parade Sunday at Camp Devens, Mass. These men are now eligible to compete in the regimental swimming meet and hope to capture some of the gold medals offered to the winners.

Gerald C. Smith, Plainfield, won two first places, John R. Mooney, Hamden, won a first, second and third place ribbon and Donald Bertram, Hartford, won one first place ribbon. The others received ribbons as follows: Clifford Balcon, Waterbury, third; Vincent Carisi, Bridgeport, two seconds; Rudolph Koepf, Derby, second; Walter Horelick, Ansonia, two-thirds; Arthur Hawley, third; Gene P. Graves, Milford, second.

Swimming is one of the major athletic activities at Devens, virtually every one of the 880 youths in camp having had ample opportunity to participate in the competitions. Although a large number of the boys were qualified swimmers on arriving in camp the others have been taught to swim under the direction of Chaplain Edward T. McNally, of the 11th Coast Artillery who is in charge of swimming and when the regiment competition is run off next week some snappy exhibitions are expected.

The awarding of the ribbons Sunday was the first ceremony of its kind this season. While the C. M. T. C. regiment was lined upon the parade ground, the 32 winners were called to the front and presented to Colonel Frederick G. Knabenshue, camp commander, who congratulated the lads on their ability and expressed the hope that they might do as well or better in the final meet.

Chaplain McNally then handed the ribbons to Capt. H. B. Dawson and Capt. J. J. Kelly, athletic officers, who in turn pinned them on the students' shirts. The proud youths then returned to their posts and participated in the parade.

Thousands of visitors arrived in camp during the day and spent a happy afternoon, many with their sons or brothers, others just browsing around the camp, marveling at the changes wrought in the students after two weeks of camp life. Wind burned and sun bronzed, appetites healthy and eyes sparkling, the youths took advantage of the Sabbath relaxation to take life easy for the day, although all were required to participate in the evening parade. Unlike in the cities, the weather at camp was typical of a Camp Devens summer. While the day was warm a cooling breeze swept across the camp, producing a comfortable atmosphere for visitors' day.

During the afternoon the 11th Coast Artillery band played a concert outside the visitors' reception hall. Chaplain McNally conducted mass at 8:30 o'clock in the morning for the Catholic boys and Major Howard S. Wilkinson, corps chaplain conducted services for the Protestants at 10:00 o'clock. Both services were held in Chapel grove, the camp's picturesque grove of pine trees. Always shady, with ground lined with pine needles and the stone altar set amid a beautiful background of greens, the spot is ideal for religious services.

GARDNER LAKE SERVICE TO BE AT 2:30 HEREAFTER

The attendance at the Gardner Lake Methodist Episcopal church Sunday afternoon was 200. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter preached on a text found in Psalm 109:4 "But I give myself unto prayer" his theme was "A Walking Prayer—Toward God and With God."

The boys from Camp Tohaci sang a special selection. The praise service was in charge of Miss Aldisi Freeman, musical director at the girls' camps conducted by Milo Light and the organ was played by Charles H. Sword, director of music in the Light boys camps.

Groups of campers from Cadaho and Tohaci were in charge of Senior Counselor Wilbur Mac Lane, and the girls from camps Adajuan and Juanita came in charge of Senior Counselor Norma Aleck.

Several other camps were represented in the congregation and some auto parties helped to swell the attendance.

The pastor announced that beginning next Sunday the services will begin at 2:30 daylight time instead of 3:15 as formerly.

Perfect baking easier now
Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION has come to town

You and your neighbors will be sure of perfect results in your baking from now on. For Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, has come to town to help you with all your baking Calumet's first action—in the mixing bowl—starts the batter rising. Its second action—in the oven—sends the cake or biscuits right up and holds them there until they are perfectly baked, light and fluffy—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately. No wonder Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world!

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure. © 1930, G. F. Corp.

SIFTING AMERICAN CORP. DIRECTED BY SOVIET GOVT.

President Bogdanov, of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, Testified That His Concern Took No Part In Communistic Or Other Political Activities—Personally He Had Been Engaged In Revolutionary and Communistic Activities For Many Years—Representative Fish Criticised Ignorance Professed By Vice President Ohsol.

NEW YORK, July 22—(AP)—The president and vice president of the Amtorg Trading corporation, which spends more than $100,000,000 in the United States every year, testified today that although Amtorg, an American corporation, was directed by the Soviet government it took no part in communistic or other political activities.

In fact, Peter A. Bogdanov, the president, was so averse even to talking about politics that he could be prodded into answering certain questions only with the intimation that if he continued to refuse he would be considered in contempt of the special congressional committee questioning him.

Johan Ohsol, Amtorg vice president, the other witness of the day before the committee investigating communistic activities in the country, was ready enough to talk but his profession of ignorance concerning many of the questions brought repeated remonstrance from Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., chairman.

At the outset the committee tried to discover why Bogdanov preferred to affirm that he would tell the truth instead of taking the usual oath, which ends "so help my God." He was permitted to make the affirmation after he explained that he belonged to no religious sect and that swearing by God would be no added compulsion to him to tell the truth.

Bogdanov said he had been engaged in revolutionary and commuistic activities for many years.

Ohsol testified that Amtorg had no connection with the communists and was purely a trade organization. Questioned about the O. G. P. U., he said he had heard of it and believed the letters to mean state political administration, but did not know that it comprised the secret political police force of the Soviet. He said he knew no one connected with the O. G. P. U. and never heard of an American branch.

"Do you know a man named Gordon" Representative Fish asked. "Wasnt he head of the art department of Amtorg? Wasn't he the head of the O. G. P. U. here? And didn't he leave this country when this investigation was to be begun?"

Ohsol said he knew Gordon, but didn't know he was connected with the O. G. P. U. or whether he was in the country now. Amtorg counsel offered the information that Gordon had left the country six weeks ago.

"I know that," Fish replied. "Everyone who has studied the records knows it. The witness knows it. I'm just trying to get him to admit it. If he, a vice president and director of the company, doesn't know the head of an important department leaves the country it is fair to assume that he doesn't know much about the company and it is a waste of time to question him further."

Ohsol testified that there were 16,600 shares of stock in Amtorg and that these were all held by Bogdanov as trustee for the Bank of Foreign Trade of the Soviet Union, so that Amtorg was directed by the Soviet government through its state bank.

CHICAGO MAN WINS LAP IN ALL-AMERICAN DERBY

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 22—(AP)—Herman Hamer, of Chicago, late today went into the lead in elapsed time in the $36,500 All-American air derby, displacing Lee Gehlbach, of Little Rock, Ark., by winning the Roosevelt field-Lunken airport leg of the flight around the United States.

Hamer, trailing Gehlbach by 23 minutes when the planes took off from New York this morning, piloted his plane to a non-stop flight here, while his Little Rock rival was forced to stop for gasoline at Uniontown, Pa. As a result, Hamer now has an advantage of 13 minutes and 49 seconds in elapsed time over Gehlbach.

The planes stopped here overnight and will leave tomorrow at one minute intervals for Little Rock. Gehlbach said he hoped to be the first to reach his home city and regain the time he lost today.

Hamer's time for the New York-Cincinnati leg was five hours, one minute, 46 seconds. Gehlbach required five hours, 39 minutes, 25 seconds.

Third to complete the Cincinnati leg was Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass. He landed 12 minutes after Gehlbach and held fourth position in elapsed time.

Hamer's total elapsed flying time since leaving Detroit was 8 hours 13 minutes 9 seconds; Gehlbach 8:26:58; S. T. Stanton, Wichita, 9:13:50; Bayles 9:17:27.

A 50 mile head wind cut down the contestants time from 195 miles an hour. Hamer's official average speed was 131.643 miles an hour; Gehlbach 126.155; Stanton 117.219; Bayles 116.213.

Stanton landed fourth here. Others finished as follows: Robert T. Quinby, Moline, Illinois; J. R. Wedel, New Orleans; Charles W. Meyers, Cleveland; William A. Cahill, Cleveland.

TOURISTS ENTERTAINED BY SOVIET GOVERNMENT

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., July 22—(AP)—After four days of lavish entertainment at the hands of the Soviet government, 450 American tourists sailing on the Cunard Liner Carinthia, one of the largest American groups to visit this city since the revolution, left today for Stockholm.

The Americans, most of them wealthy New Englanders, proved a source of considerable revenue to the Soviet government, spending a total of nearly $250,000.

It was estimated they spent upwards of $50,000 alone in the purchasing of old imperial art objects, silverware and paintings. It was understood each passenger paid $1,000 a day to the Soviet tourist bureau for four days of travel and sightseeing in Leningrad and Moscow.

CHICAGO TRIB. CITY EDITOR SUES FOR $250,000 DAMAGES

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—The praecipe of a suit for $250,000 damages was filed in court today by Robert M. Lee, city editor of the Chicago Tribune, against the Illinois Publishing and Printing company, publishers of the Chicago Herald and Examiner. The suit is based on an article in connection with the Lingle murder investigation, published in today's issue of the defendant paper.

Francis X. Busch, attorney who prepared the suit, announced after filing the praecipe that his client would demand a trial by jury, and made the following statement:

"I have advised Mr. Lee that, in my opinion, the article appearing in today's Herald and Examiner is libelous. The implication is obvious that Mr. Lee knew of and countenanced the alleged criminal activities of Jake Lingle.

"Mr. Lee unqualifiedly brands these insinuations as false and has directed the institution of this suit so as to put the authors of this article upon their proof."

GRAND JURY LISTENED TO CHICAGO CRIME REPORTER

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—The grand jury listened for nearly three hours today to a St. Louis crime reporter's account of his investigations of alleged racketeering on the part of his Chicago brothers in the profession.

When Harry T. Brundidge emerged from the jury chamber after telling his story all lips were sealed.

Brundidge reiterated that he would not repeat his testimony even to his own newspaper, although Frank W. Taylor, Jr., managing editor of the St. Louis Star, was in the jury room part of the time with Brundidge. State's Attorney John A. Swanson, and his assistant, William A. Rittenhouse, who participated in the grand jury hearing, said they were forbidden by law to make public any of the proceedings and the jury foreman said it had been agreed that nothing should be made public.

Whether any Chicago newspapermen will be subpoenaed was not indicated, and Swanson has already said he has no evidence to present in connection with the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter.

"PLAYFUL" GIRLS NEARLY DROWNED EACH OTHER

MIDDLETOWN, July 22.—(AP)—Two women, who nearly drowned while playfully ducking each other at the public beach at Pameacha pond, Middletown, owed their lives to a fifteen-year-old boy and a Connecticut Power company employe.

Godfrey Sandstrom, the power company employe, resuscitated Mrs. Michaels by artificial respiration, while Miss Bula was taken to Middlesex hospital. Recall Of Mayor Of Detroit Is Assured

In Returns From 750 of 852 Precincts Vote Stood: Recall 98,667, Against 72,586.

DETROIT, July 22.—(AP)—Recall of Mayor Charles Bowles in today's election was conceded at 10:25 o'clock tonight by John Gillespie, commissioner of public works and manager of the mayor's campaign.

With 750 out of 852 precincts reported, the count stood: 98,667 for the recall and 72,586 against. The majority for the recall was 26,081.

As the result of today's election, the first recall in the city's history, the mayor becomes a candidate for the office at another election to be held within 30 days.

This election will be the third in which Bowles has campaigned for the office in nine months. He was elected last November by a majority of approximately 3,500 after a campaign in which he was supported by the Anti-Saloon league and similar organizations as a "reform candidate."

The campaign on the recall was the briefest ever held here, starting two weeks ago when the state supreme court declined to consider charges by the mayor and his supporters that the names on petitions asking for the election were fraudulent.

The recall proponents made charges that the mayor had "tolerated lawlessness;" that he had impaired efficiency by dismissal of faithful public servants; and that Gillespie is a "lobbyist and politician" and unfit for the office he holds. They also attacked the administration of the municipally owned Detroit street railway under Powles, particularly his dismissal of Frank Couzens, son of U. S. Senator James Couzens, who had opposed Bowles when the latter sought to raise fares and had attacked the method of awarding insurance contracts.

GENERAL RAILWAY STRIKE IN IRELAND AVERTED

DUBLIN, July 22—(AP) — Through government intervention, a general strike ordered for midnight on the Great Southern Railway lines, which would have paralyzed rail communication over most of the Irish free state, was averted late today.

After a nine hours' conference between the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen and representatives of the Great Southern Railway and the Irish Omnibus company, a settlement was reached.

Its terms include the immediate reinstatement of all dismissed railway employees and recognition by the Omnibus company of the Bus-drivers Union affiliated with the National Union of Railwaymen.

The immediate cause of the strike threat had been the refusal of the Omnibus company to accept the affiliation between the Drivers' and the Railwaymen's Unions. Six hundred railwaymen refused to handle goods consigned to the Omnibus company and walked out. Most were dismissed by the railway company, which is linked with the Omnibus company.

CHINESE STEAMER SEIZED AND LOOTED BY PIRATES

HONG KONG, July 22—(AP)—The Chinese Steamer Helikon, was seized and looted by pirates and 15 passengers and members of the crew were kidnaped and held for ransom last Saturday while en route from Hong Kong to Saigon.

After being in the hands of pirates for 48 hours, the ship escaped and returned here, its officers relating a tale of piracy and robbery unequaled for years along the China coast.

The pirates had posed as passengers after forcing the captain, who is British, to steer for Bias Bay, notorious South Chinese pirates lair, the buccaneers dismantled the wireless set, forced seamen to paint the yellow funnels black and remove the name of the vessel from the prow, then unloaded the cargo valued at about $18,000 Mexican. The captives were lowered in small boats and rowed ashore. At Bias Bay the skipper saw an opportunity to escape and hurriedly returned here.

Hoover Signed The London Naval Treaty

Foundation Upon Which Further Reduction In World Arms May Be Accomplished

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP)—In the historic east room of the White house, President Hoover today signed the London naval treaty.

Ratification by Great Britain and Japan and the depositing of all three signatures in London remain to be accomplished to bring into full effect the covenant limiting for the first time all categories of fighting vessels for the three great naval powers.

Earlier in the day, the chief executive had said in a statement that the treaty, which was ratified yesterday by the senate, will "secure the full defense of the United States" and will lay "the foundation upon which further constructive reduction in world arms may be accomplished in the future."

"With the ratification by the other governments," Mr. Hoover said, "the treaty will translate an emotion deep in the hearts of millions of men and women into a practical fact of government and international relations. We should by this act of willingness to join with others in limiting armament, have dismissed from the mind of the world any motion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial power or exploitation of foreign nations."

Four of the American delegates to the London conference, Vice President Curtis and two members of the senate foreign relations committee, stood at the elbow of the chief executive as he affixed his signature to the treaty which had its beginning less than a year ago in a conference between himself and Prime Minister MacDonald at the presidential camp in Virginia.

Flanking Mr. Hoover on the right and left stood Secretary Stimson and Secretary Adams, both delegates to the conference. About him were grouped the vice president, Senators Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, and Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, two other delegates to the conference; Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee and Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking democrat on the committee.

The other three delegates of this country, Ambassadors Dawes, Morrow and Gibson, were unable to be present but to them were transmitted the personal congratulations of the president.

In signing the treaty, Mr. Hoover used the same gold pen used by the American representatives in signing the covenant at London. He was dressed in white flannel trousers and a blue double-breasted coat.

FLOOD OF ALCOHOL AND NARCOTICS FROM CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., July 22—(AP)—Along a Thousand Island front where Lake Ontario flows into the St. Lawrence river, the preventive service of the department of national revenue was seeking today to stem a flood of corn alcohol and narcotics, flowing into Canada from the United States.

This season of the year smugglers find the Thousand Islands an advantageous place through which to route the contraband. Sedate, motherly looking women of mature age, posing as tourists, carry the bulk of the narcotics across the border, the agents have found. The cheap alcohol, made from corn, is ferried across in fast motor boats, made into cheap liquors and sent back to the United States.

The unusual smuggling activity is a development of the last few years, agents said.

In other days Montreal was central distributing point along the border for narcotics destined for the traffic in the United States. Dominion authorities waged determined war on the smugglers and broke up the smuggling ring. The smugglers are based now on the American side and the Dominion authorities have a new and difficult problem with which to deal.

RAIN AND DARKNESS CAUSE OF FATAL PLANE ACCIDENT

HURON, O., July 22—(AP)—Fog, rain and darkness were blamed tonight by air mail pilots for the death of William Frederick Martin, 26, of Pontiac, Mich., who crashed on a farm near here today while flying the air mail from Cleveland to Bay City, Mich.

Martin's death was the first fatal accident on that mail route which has been in operation two years. He was employed by the Thompson Aeronautical corporation.

George Beatty, on whose farm the accident occurred, said he heard the crash about 4.30 a. m. but did not realize what it was until he found the wreckage an hour later. The plane's nose was buried two and a [illegible] feet in the ground. The wings were twisted double and wrapped over the top of the cockpit so tightly that it was necessary to use automobiles to pull them apart to release Martin's body.

Martin had dumped out the gasoline to keep the plane from catching fire. His act saved the mail.

SIX WHITE MEN CALLED FOR TRIAL FOR LYNCHING

ATLANTA, Ga., July 22—(AP)—Six white men were called for trial in Fulton county superior court here today on a charge of killing Dennis Hubert, a Negro college student, who they claimed had insulted a white woman.

The slaying has brought public condemnation from the Atlanta Christian council, the Methodist ministers of Atlanta and leading civic workers.

Soon after Hubert was killed, his father's home was burned and a meeting of Negroes, called to make plans for aiding the authorities in prosecution of the slayers, was broken up with tear gas bombs.

Of the seven men charged with the slaying, Aubrey Sikes, T. F. Martin, J. G. Garvin, Tom Berryman, M. W. Harmon and Roy S. Evans were called for trial today. The other man known as "Fat" Wilson has not been arrested.

The court granted a severance of the cases and Martin was placed on trial first.

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES ABOUT 122,957,000

Preliminary Returns From 40 States and the District of Columbia Give About the Same Total As the Census Bureau Machine Did On April 1 At Midnight — Country Shows a Growth of Approximately 17,246,000 In Ten Years—Reports From Eight States Are Yet to Come.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP) — A total of about 122,957,000 persons — just a few thousands under 123,000,000—probably will be shown as the population of the United States for 1930 when the final count is announced here by W. M. Steuart, director of the census.

The 1920 population was 105,710,620. Should final figures bear out the calculation, the country would show a growth of around 17,246,000 persons in the ten years.

This approximate total has been calculated by the Associated Press on the basis of actual preliminary returns from 40 states and the District of Columbia. In these states census supervisors have reported a total of 100,807,723 persons as against 86,667,858 ten years ago, an increase of 14,139,845, or 16.31 per cent. For the decade of 1910-20 the rate of growth was 14.9 per cent.

The growth of these states, comprising almost 81 per cent of the population ten years ago, forms a close approximation of the rate of growth of the nation. On that rate the entire country's population would be 122,957,307.

Census bureau officials have made their own estimate of the country's population as of April 1, but refuse to divulge their figures. Their population estimating machine, which ticks the increase in the number of people as calculated by experts from immigration statistics, births and deaths, placed the number of people in the United States on April 1 at midnight at 122,597,009.

Reports still have to come from eight states, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arizona and Idaho. The estimated population of those states as of January 1 this year aggregates 21,644,618. That added to the 40 other states brings an aggregate of 122,452,[illegible]10 as the country's population.

The preliminary unofficial totals of population of the various states, as compiled from returns of supervisors through the country by the Associated Press, with the percentage of increase follow:

The House The Captains Built

They built my house, the captains
Who brought home China tea,
White as Zion's beauty
And looking out to sea.
They built the neat, dark cupboards
Where wives could keep their milk.
They paneled great, cool parlors
Where wives could creak in silk.

They knew the world their clippers
Went round and round again;
Their mantels were a marriage
Of India and Spain.
They knew the sins and cities;
And so they built their wives
White and quiet gables
For cool and quiet lives—

Elms to cast the shadows
On roses and bricked walks,
Wide lawns for the children
And for the hollyrocks.
Ladder-backs and feathers
Soft as clouds for sleep,
A key as big's a mountain
Their treasure-house to keep

Children, morning-glories,
Breakfast bowls, and grace
Churches are less holy
Than this holy place.
I think there is less wisdom
In all that books can tell
Than in the ancient captains
Who built my house so well.

—Robert P. Tristam Coffin, in Youth's Companion.

A Mountain Road

It slides a mile
Then rests a bit
To watch far downward
Swallows flit.

It takes by choice
A twisting way
And straddles bowlders
Grim and gray.

It stumbles round
A craggy lair
And misses falling
By a hair.

Serene it turns
A somersault
Before a scared brook
Bellows "Halt!"

Head over heels,
Serenely still
It tops the last
Remaining hill.

Then tirps aagin,
But rallies neat
And in the vale
Lands on its feet!

DANIELSON

WILLIAM SANGSTER PROMOTED TO WATERBURY DISTRICT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 22.—William Sangster, manager of the Danielson district of the Connecticut Light and Power company, formerly in this territory the Eastern Connecticut Power company, since March of 1923, has been promoted to be commercial manager of the Waterbury district. He will begin his new duties August 11. Mr. Sangster has a record of 19 years of efficient service with the Connecticut Light and Power company and its predecessors, having been with the Uncas Power company before coming to Danielson.

In Waterbury, where the Connecticut Light and Power company has recently taken over the Waterbury Gas company, Mr. Sangster will be engaged in a much larger field.

During his management of the Danielson district the service has been extended and enlarged in impressive manner. Lines have been extended to East Killingly, South Killingly and to Ballouville, to Hampton to Oneco and to other parts of the town of Sterling, as well as to other outlying communities never before enjoying the benefits and pleasures of electric service. The commercial loads also have been increased, the business expanded in every department.

Mr. Sangster's going away will be much regreted by the great numbers of friends he has made during his residence in the territory. His home is in Brooklyn.

Under a new arrangement to be made effective in early August, Thomas Ralph, who has been the power engineer in the Danielson district, will become manager of the Danielson division and the Putnam division business offices. Ralph E. Thurston, manager of the Putnam district for many years, will become distribution supervisor for the Danielson and Putnam districts and possibly other territory.

Under the new arrangement the operation department of all the territory in this part of the state will be controlled from the Norwich offices.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. M. E. Bowers.

A death at Elliott this morning was that of Mrs. Madge E. Bowers, 76, wife of Harris Bowers. Mrs. Bowers was born in Eastford May 11, 1856, a daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Lyon Fitts. She was a niece of General Nathaniel Lyon, who is buried at Phoenixville, and who was the first general officer killed in battle on the Union side during the Civil war. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Bowers leaves a daughter, Miss Rose M. Baker, a child of her first marriage, two sons, Eugene and Bert, a granddaughter, Mrs Lillian Bresset, all of Elliott; a brother, Charles Fitts, and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Thompson, of Eaglesville.

Mrs. Bowers made her home with her daughter and Miss Clara Taber, they caring for her during her last illness.

Shortly after noon today an aeroplane gracefully swooped down on a field off South street, near the East Brooklyn school. Throughout this afternoon it was an object of interest to many who came to look at it. It is regarded as forecasting the use of this particular field for building up an aviation business here, possibly the establishment of an aerial service.

The Headquarters detachment and the Medical detachment, special troops, Firty-third division, stationed at the Danielson state armory, will leave here August 2, for their annual fortnight of field service, this year at Camp Devens.

The special troops of this division are under command of Major E. L. Darbie, with headquarters here. Major Darbie will leave here for Camp Devens either July 30 or July 31. On the latter date the Headquarters company of Putnam will leave for the camp. There are in addition to Major Darbie two officers and 28 men in the detachments stationed here. The officors are Captain Harold E. Greene of Danielson and Lieut. K. K. Kinney, a medical officer, of Willimantic.

Mighty Clam Eaters.

Danielson has several men who reject the claim of a Bridgeport man to a world's championship as a clam-eater because he devoured 134 of the bivalves. This rejection is based on the assumption that they were baked clams. Danielson has some mighty clam-eaters and they are going to test out that record, feeling sure that they can readily break it. It was suggested to one of the candidates for the honors this morning that he was much like the big man that accepted a bet that he could drink an 8-gallon keg of beer without once taking it down from his mouth. He accepted the bet on one condition—that he be allowed to go out and be alone for 30 minutes. This was agreed and he had his 30 minutes alone. Coming back he put down his money, took up the keg and drained it dry. When asked afterwards why he went out, he blandly stated that he went out to try a keg to see if he really could do it.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was in Putnam this morning to interview Elmiro Lombardi, whose wife died of injuries she received when the car in which they were riding skidded and struck a tree Monday afternoon near the Gary schoolhouse on the state highway between Putnam and Pomfret.

Mr. Lombardi told Coroner Bill that he was driving at a speed between 45 and 50 miles an hour immediately prior to the accident. As he pulled over to the right of the road to pass a car approaching from the opposite direction his machine ran off the hard-surfaced part of the highway onto a soft shoulder. In trying to straighten out the car and get it back onto the highway proper the machine skidded as he applied his brakes and struck a tree.

Mr. Lombardi was suffering today from a lame shoulder and a lame left arm, but is not seriously injured, and hoped to start this afternoon for the family home in Naugatuck. Mr. Bill's investigation of the accident was completed with today's questioning of Mr. Lombardi.

Miss Elsie Johnson, a young girl employed in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dowe, Hawkins street, was reported today as no longer feeling the ill effects of having been slightly shocked by lightning while walking along Academy street, near the central fire station, last night with Miss Vilet Lyon. Miss Johnson reported a queer tingling sensation after her experience, which quite upset her for the time being.

Michael Molinski, Elmville, presented in the town court to face a charge of operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated had his case nolled.

The first over-night camp plan to be launched in nearby territory is to be worked out at Hopkins crossing, nine miles east of here on the Providence state highway. Construction of the camp is to be undertaken in the immediate future, near a filling station recently completed.

It was understood today that repair of the damaged gates of the Wauregan company will be undertaken at the earliest possible moment, that advantage may be taken of the low water conditions at this time of year.

PUTNAM

GOVERNOR TO BE GUEST AT CAMP WOODSTOCK WED.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 22. — The annual Governor's day will be held at Camp Woodstock, the Y. M. C. A. camp of Windham county, Wednesday. The camp is situated on Black pond in West Woodstock and has been operated by the Y. M. C. A. for the last seven years. Governor John H. Trumbull and several of his aides will be at camp for the day and the governor will take part in the trapshooting events. The trapshooting is the feature event of the day. This event has been won twice by Herbert Barstow of Rockville and once by Richard Beers, both of whom will participate tomorrow. To have permanent possession of the trophy one must win the event three times and it will be interesting to see whether Barstow will win it or whether some new person will get a leg on it. The trophy is the Colonel Charles Allen thirty-one inch cup donated by Colonel Charles Allen of Rockville.

Governor Trumbull has just returned from the west and it was rather doubtful whether he would be able to come to the camp tomorrow but the governor called the camp and assured them that his day with the boys was the event that he would not miss if it were humanly possible for him to get there.

The schedule for the day is: 9:30, start of the trapshooting; 10:00, athletic meet; 12:45, dinner; 1:45, trapshooting; 4:00, aquatic meet; 6:30, picnic supper; 7:30, entertainment.

Governor Trumbull will give a short address to the boys at dinner and another at the entertainment. The majority of the entertainment will be furnished by the boys who are at the camp, but, of course, a few older persons and outsiders will help them. The camp this year is in charge of L. Edwin Hill who has had charge of it for a number of years. Governor's day has been a great success in the past and it is expected to be better than ever this year. All people are invited to visit the camp on this day and a large crowd is expected.

A representative of the Decker Electrical company of New York today finished the wiring of the vault of the new Cargill Trust company. The vault is one of the latest models and also has one of the latest model burglar alarms on it. The wiring is so arranged so that at each tellers window there is a button by which he can turn the alarm in case of an attempted robbery. There are also other buttons placed in convenient parts of the building by which an alarm may be given.

Elmira Lombardi of Naugatuck, who was the driver of the car which killed his wife, Bonada, last night on the Pomfret road was reported at the hospital as being quite badly shaken up and as having a painful scalp wound. His condition, however, is not serious and it is hoped that he will be released tomorrow. His son, John, who was the third person in the car, was released last night and was taken to Woonsocket by some friends. The body of Mrs. Lombardi was removed to Woonsocket last night about eleven o'clock by one of the Woonsocket undertakers. The funeral arrangements have not yet been arranged but it is thought that the funeral will be held at the home of friends in Woonsocket.

It was stated today that Mr. Lombardi probably will not be held on any count as being criminally responsible for the death of his wife.

The examination of applicants for drivers licenses was held at the police station for the first time. Heretofore the examination was held at the Putnam Buick Co. on Canal street. From now on the examinations will be held at the police station on Tuesdays.

They were brought to the station and were questioned by the captain and Police Commissioner John Dean. Their registrations and licenses checked and Louis Peloquin, owner of the new North street open air arena, said today that his next boxing card will be staged Tuesday evening of next week. Mr. Peloquin plans to run boxing about every other Tuesday night right through the summer season.

Wednesday will be Governor's day at Camp Woodstock, the Tri-County "Y" camp at Black pond in Woodstock. There are Danielson boys in camp there. Numbers of local people plan to be at the camp Wednesday, when Governor Trumbull will be in attendance.

From New York Frank Barber wired The Bulletin this afternoon relative to the boxing show to be put on here in September for the benefit of the Day Kimball hospital Nurses' Home fund: "Carnera ordered out of country. Work-ing on Singer and Kid Chocolate for Danielson appearance on September date."

There are big fish to be caught in Alexander's lake. Anthony Jankowski, resident on Tiffany street over on the West Side, demonstrated that this morning by catching a pair of bass, one of them weighing 7 pounds and 3 ounces, the other an even five pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman and son, Gerard, have been visitors with friends at Groton Long Point.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Kennedy of North Main street were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Briggs and daughter, Alice, of Watertown. Mr. and Mrs. Briggs formerly were residents of Brooklyn.

A large group of Gold Star mothers from Webster and other towns in Worcester county went through Putnam this morning en route to New York where they will sail for the battlefields of France. This will possibly be the first and last chance for many of the mothers to see the graves of their sons who died in the World war. The mothers went through in seven automobiles, one of which was from Webster. It is not yet known whether any of the Gold Star mothers of Putnam will make the trip to France this year. This year is the year in which it will be easiest to go as the steamship lines are making reduced rates to the Gold Star mothers and the country of France is supplying guides to them when they get there. France is also doing her best to entertain the mothers and make them forget the great sacrifice that they made in 1918.

JEWETT CITY

BIG GRANNY AVERY OAK FALLS OVER WITH CRASH

Along toward morning Tuesday, somewhere about three o'clock, one of the giant "Granny Avery" oaks fell over. This great tree was one of five that grew in the lot now mainly occupied by the railroad station and the A. D. Tripp lumber company. It is five feet through at the butt and will cut into all of three cords of wood. Investigation showed that in later years this great tree had not successfully defied the rot which had sufficiently weakened its wide spreading roots. With no other apparent reason it toppled over with a great crash, carrying with it four electric wires and bending to one side a hydrant which had been placed nearby a storage warehouse.

The oldest residents in Jewett City remember this patriarch only as a great oak, its age being, who shall tell? for it has stood for centuries on the northern boundary of Granny Avery's lot. A man who went to see the fallen giant recalled how this great lot, with its pond, near where the railroad station now stands, was a famous spot for kite flying. One day his kite snagged in the upper branches. The bole was then too big to "shin," so he climbered up one of the great limbs that swept near the hill-side. He never retrieved his kite but was able to gaze abroad for miles. That was over 50 years ago, and the tree then, he said, "was as big as it is now."

Enthusiasm For National Game

Any one who might seem inclined to believe that baseball is on the wane or taking its final count, should be present at one of the Jewett City Twilight league games. The fans, by no means all of the mere male persuasion, have spells of letting go on everything, and when some favored and fortunate player knots the score to make it even all, then the fair ones hand him a cheer that is surely worthwhile. One evening recently, at the Fisk park, a party of pretty girls got after the rather good looking pitcher. They informed him in no uncertain tones what to do and just how to do it, so that it is small wonder that the opposing batsmen appeared unable to get any line on the berry at all. Then when the game is over, and the diamond is empty, the contests are all played over again, and without fear or favor each contestant is placed upon the spot.

It is predicted, if nothing unforeseen takes place, to interfere with the present construction program, that early in October the first man may cross the new Quinebaug viaduct, from the Slater avenue approach to the Sylvandale triangle. During the early fall of 1929 the state engineers began drilling in the river bed to determine the extent of the underlying ledge formation with a view to securing the anchorage for the piers and abutments. The work has suffered but little hindrance by bad weather, and absolutely none from high water. The Quinebaug, uncertain in winter time, apt to go on a rampage without warning and capable of rising 10 feet in as many hours, kept especially quiet and ran at the lowest water stage of any winter within the memory of those whose homes are situated upon its banks.

Struck By New Jersey Car

Edward Bourdia, 5, son of Edmond Bourdia, was slightly injured when struck by a New Jersey car, in front of the Grosvenordale filling station. He was accompanying his father to the bakery when the accident happened. The boy was taken to Dr. Lapalme's office, but as the doctor was out he was taken to the Day Kimball hospital. After being treated for bruises, the boy was permitted to return home.

LIFTING THE LICENSES

What will be watched with much interest is the request that has been made by the motor vehicle commissioner to all police forces of the state to take up the licenses of all operators who are arrested for operating while intoxicated, for reckless driving where drink was responsible and for evading responsibility.

This means that a new move is to be made to improve conditions in the highways and to put an end to the menaces which are contributing too many accidents and fatalities.

It is well understood that the person who has been drinking should not try to operate a motor vehicle. He may be perfectly competent when sober but conditions change when he is under the influence of liquor. He endangers not only those with him but all other users of the highway. He is not responsible and the job he undertakes calls for a person in full possession of his faculties in order to meet the common emergencies and in order not to create others. Liquor may not affect all persons in the same way but those who use it know that it doesn't add to the competency of the man at the wheel. However careful a driver a person may be when sober intoxicants frequently make him one of the most reckless.

For the protection of all highway users the drunken driver deserves every possible discouragement. That likewise holds true of the hit and run driver or the person who evades responsibility. Such efforts as have been made to keep out the types of drivers included in the commissioner's new orders have not been as successful as desired. New methods are thus required and in the authorization of the police to lift the licenses of persons arrested for such offenses it means that they are not to be permitted to go out onto the highways again until the motor vehicle department has got a thorough history of their conduct.

Inasmuch as the past practices in dealing with such offenders has not accomplished all that was desired additional penalization becomes necessary. The lifting of the licenses will not affect the treatment of the cases according to the evidence at hand but it will put an additional and effective obstacle in the way of further road dangers from them.

SAND ROADS

The Connecticut Rural Road Improvement association is formulating a finance plan that will make the improvement of dirt roads possible and the plan advanced is to have the present appropriations for highways remain the same but that all natural increases in revenue from gasoline and motor vehicle tax go toward getting Connecticut out of the mud. A study of such revenue should disclose whether there would be sufficient funds secured to make any appreciable progress on the dirt road situation.

The aim is to get the dirt roads of the state into condition where they can be used by those who live on them and those from the city who need to and want to use them will find them fit to use. The desire is for good country roads for all comers.

What are good country roads? This is a question which James N. Hall has undertaken to answer in an interesting manner in Harper's Magazine. He will get endorsement from many others when he says:

"Good roads—what is a good road in the fine sense? A cement pavement running straight as a plumb line from one state boundary to another, slashed through the green hills, graded up over the valleys, named, numbered and joined without a flaw in the suture to similar roads on either side of it? Is a good road something to turn wheels over at 60 or 70 miles an hour? An avenue lined with filling stations, soft drink emporiums and 'hot dog' stands?

"A good road is something almost as indigenous to the country it passes through as the valleys it follows, the rivers it crosses, the hills it climbs and descends. A good road winds and turns at sharp angles as an impediment to speed and to afford the traveler fullest opportunity for enjoyment of the countryside. It opens up vistas and never burrows through hills that afford them. It loves the meandering of rivers; it loves all wild or field flowers and offers them a generous strip of ground on either side to grow on. Birds may fly across it from covert to covert in perfect safety.

"A good road is assuredly meant to be traveled over to certain destinations but that must be a bleak and barren country where a good road is the shortest distance between two points; and we seem to have forgotten, in our mania for arriving, the innumerable intermediate destinations we used to enjoy. A meadow lark singing on a fence post is such a destination; the smell of clover is another; an orchard in bloom is another."

It is for the betterment of such roads that the rural road association is working. It isn't the cement highway that is being sought but the placing of a good surface upon those crossroads which can and should carry a larger volume of traffic for the benefit of those who live in the city as well as those who live in the country.

TOO MANY DROWNINGS

Medals and praise are due to those who save the lives of others who have ventured into dangerous waters, and there are many instances this year where such necessary and timely help has been given. It represents in many instances no small amount of risk on the art of the rescuer, and often it is the case that those who rush in to aid are themselves over-powered and lost.

Drownings this year have been particularly numerous. Hardly a day goes by but what several cases of drowning are reported, and it is invariably the fact that they were entirely needless. They occur at points which are known to be dangerous, because bathers disregard precautions and get beyond their depth, because they give no consideration to safety and because they have failed to learn how to take care of themselves in the water.

This is the time of the year when millions are going into the water. It is the time for giving attention to common precautions. It is a time to think of the dangers and the need of avoiding them. It is an unwise bit of reasoning which throws care to one side and relies upon the ability of some one to effect a rescue if anything happens. There are always plenty who are ready to contribute such assistance but in most instances there is no sound reason in creating conditions which make such calls necessary.

Taking chances by swimmers, divers or bathers is extremely dangerous. It is very easy for a person to disappear under the water and not be missed for some minutes. Even the person who puts up a cry for help is liable to be misunderstood, the appeal taken as a joke and no attention paid to it. The person who dives and doesn't come up may cause no alarm because of the many things which may divert the attention of the companions at the beach.

The drowning cases are all too numerous at this time of the year, all too unnecessary in most instances. The fate of the thousands that have lost their lives in such a manner seems not to make any lasting impression upon those who are more concerned with stunts and taking chances than with exercising reasonable care and profiting from the experience of others.

PURIFYING THE RIVERS

Gradually the work of bettering the conditions in the streams of Connecticut is going on. It means eliminating the pollution by reducing the raw sewage and by so treating factory wastes that the detrimental agencies will be removed. Cities which are establishing plants for the treatment of their sewage, industries which are doing the same with their liquid and poisonous wastes are cooperating to change the situation. What they have done or are doing may not be sufficient to remove all detrimental elements from the rivers but it is certainly preventing them from getting any worse. Every contribution of that character is helpful.

Cleaning up the rivers of Connecticut is by no means an easy job. Some are much worse than others. All are suffering from the practice of using them as the easiest means of disposing of wastes. It has been going on for years and increasing as population and industrial activity increase until the waters have become decidedly impure, fish life is seriously affected and the health of communities endangered.

Anything which has been accumulating for so long a time must be eliminated gradually. It means time and expense for communities and manufacturing establishments but the need of it is generally being recognized and the latest instance which is brought to attention is that of the Gilbert & Bennett Manufacturing company which is so treating its waste that pollution is stopped from that source in the Norwalk river. It was action which followed complaint because fish were dying in the river and displays an eagerness to remove any responsibility which the plant may have had for that situation.

NORRIS OPPOSITION

Out in Nebraska there is much opposition to Senator George W. Norris. There is a willingness to defeat him regardless of the means employed. Just how large a part of the people are actuated by that spirit is not known but Norris is one of those republicans who stands by the party and its platform chiefly when seeking nomination and election. At other times he is supporting democratic candidates and lending his opposition to the republican administration.

In the hopes that it would force him to seek his nomination on some other than the republican ticket a person of the same name entered the field against him. It so happened that he filed his application by mail and while it was postmarked in plenty of time it was not delivered until too late. The postmark has been accepted in the past and was this time until carried to the supreme court which held otherwise. Thus the opponent is ruled out and an unusual situation eliminated.

That doesn't do away with the pronounced opposition in Nebraska and in the republican ranks to the Norris candidacy but it ends the possibility that any such trick might be the means of defeating Norris, even though everything is considered fair in war and politics. And yet Senator Norris cannot fail to recognize that no one contributed as much to his opposition at home as himself.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Speaking of heat are you willing to back your thermometer against all comers?

Some of those tree sitters might do more good by collecting Japanese beetles.

The man on the corner says: The relief is genuine whether you asked for it or not.

Senator Walcott in supporting the treaty unquestionably represented the sentiment of Connecticut.

Along with the country, the president will welcome the fact that he has no senate on his hands.

Now will Senator Johnson go home and sulk for the rest of the year as he has done on other occasions when success did not favor his efforts?

THE WORLD AT FIFTEEN

"I expect that I should be terribly cheerful," Ernestine sighed, shuffling a number of large square envelopes in her hands sadly. "I've got invitations here to some of the spiffiest winter parties and they're awfully formal and none of the freshmen or sophomore girls at all are asked. They think it is marvelous that any of the high school bunch are invited because all the boys giving the first one went away to college this fall and the minute they get to college they sort of scorn the rest of us.

"There's something in the air, I guess, that makes them lots older. I'm simply crazy to see whether George has changed or not. He was taking me to a lot of things until just before he went east last fall and then he gave me six pains in the ear the way he acted. Sort of abstracted and high-mountainous and oblivious.

"He's one of the boys giving this first dance. Why, the reason I'm sort of low is that what good is a bunch of invitations to the swellest parties of the year if you don't get a date for each of them? Why, my goodness, you can't go to a party if you don't have a date to go with some boy! It just isn't done! Maybe Elsie Dinsmore went to parties in the family barouche with the family maid to carry her slipper bag and escort her back home —but nowadays little Elsie would spend the evening skulking around back of the palms because there wouldn't be a soul to dance with her.

"You dance with the boy who takes you unless someone else cuts in. If a girl is terribly popular they begin cutting in right away and she just whirls from one to the other of the boys until she's as dizzy as a dancing dervish. Celeste is popular that way and after two parties one right after the other she had to have a bone in her neck snapped back into place. Really. It got all twisted. Girls like myself who aren't exactly flops but don't rank with Celeste get cut in on after a dance or so and it keeps up that way the rest of the evening—just enough to save your face and give you a little change before you get bored to death.

"I don't know what I'm worrying about, however, because there isn't the slightest chance of my going to any of them.

"Of course it would be gorgeous if somebody like George took me to the first party and Tom should ask me to Grace's dance—something like that—only it would be too much to expect. Celeste has two new formals to wear and a real crystal necklace and I've just the same old taffeta and a pale chance of another new one.

"However, I got a ray of hope this evening for I caught mother with tapemeasure at my old one. Only if she gets me one with a back in it I'll die. Haven't you noticed all the newspaper pictures of the women at the opera? No more backs than a forest scene on the stage if you get what I mean. You have to stick your under things on with adhesive tape—isn't that cute?

"I'm so scared that I'd go even with Runt if he asked me because I can't imagine anything more disgraceful than having an invitation to such a party and having to stay home because no boy asked to take you. There certainly are a few things to be said about the way mother says parties were run when she was my age. You had program cards and the hostess had to see they were filled up and you didn't have to worry. You were all set before you arrived. Still, our way is more individual, I think.

"Wouldn't you think that perhaps George might have taken me if he had stayed at home? He has written three times since he went to college but of course that doesn't mean anything. I haven't the remotest idea that he would even consider taking me and then, of course, it is partly his party and it would be terribly important for him to pick the right sort of girl to dance with, you see.

"Somebody like Celeste who is certain to have the swankiest dress there and everything—and then, too, she uses mascara and lipstick and that helps awfully. My mother is absolutely like a rock when I argue this, but then of course I can borrow the other girls' when I get to the party so it comes out all right after all. But I guess there isn't going to be any party for me so I might as well——"

She paused, stricken dumb. Among the invitation envelopes she held was an unopened letter addressed in a scraggling hand that seemed to fascinate her. Feverishly she tore it open, scanned it and then with a wild shriek plumped down in the easy chair.

"Don't ever tell me prayer isn't answered," she gasped in awe. "Do you know who that is from? George—and he wants me to go to his party with him! I've got to rush right home and argue with mother about the back of that new party dress, only I know it won't be any use, doggone it!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22—This habit of writing memoirs now has reached the ranks of the Negro messengers in Washington official life.

One veteran, Charles Browne, described by Sir Esme Howard, former British ambassador, as "the invaluable pillar of support of the British embassy under every British ambassador," already has come into production.

His book is an impersonal narration of events in the British embassy during his 42 years of service.

But Browne's senior by many years, the dean of all messengers in Washington, Eddie Savoy, who has held his post at the secretary of state's door since the days of Secretary Fish, still is in the throes of authorship.

Long Service

Sir Esme's foreword to Browne's book says the author "has always been regarded by us all as a real friend." And that goes for generations of British embassy personnel.

The dignified and courtly messenger has ben an invaluable unit of the staff so long that he's by way of being an embassy institution.

Back in the days of Ambassador Geddes, Browne was awarded a diplomatic decoration on the ambassador's recommendation. When it arrived from London, the entire embassy staff was formally parade to witness the ceremony.

Geddes pinned the token of government appreciation in place himself, then stepped back thinking that the very pleasing gesture was concluded.

But he was wrong. The urge of authorship even then was stirring in Browne. He dug into a pocket, produced a manuscript and for 20 minutes proceeded to read it, somewhat to the amused chagrin of Geddes and his staff.

Saving Story

The next time Ambassador Geddes called at the state department, he was received at the elevator as usual by Eddie Savoy. But there was a very special warmth and feeling about the greeting that gnarled and bent veteran gave him this day. The ambassador loved to tell about it.

For Eddie took it upon himself to express his appreciation of the honor just done his embassy colleague, "that young fellow Browne."

Ask Eddie for his version now and he would wave you away. He wants to save it for his book.

And when that book comes out, it may have an international audience.

There will be folks in every country who once served in Washington who would like to know just what sort of an impression they made on Eddie Savoy, who manages to get just the right shade of recognition of the visitor's diplomatic rank into every ushering job he does.

YOUR HEALTH

Living to be One Hundred

By Stanley H. Osborn, M. D. Hartford.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

This is not written to inform you of the methods to follow in order to live to be one hundred years of age. I do not know that anyone cares to live to that rip old age, for it may be termed an over-ripe age considering that the average age span of human life is more than thirty years younger. But judging from the conversations one hears in nearly every gathering of people, all are trying to seek some method of living the full span of life in this world and to do so without creaks and groans and aches and pains.

It is amusing, yet pathetic, that nearly all people who are striving to be physically well do so by carrying out one project, such as playing golf, tennis, walking, or limiting the food intake, and count on that single method to guarantee health. For the facts are not so simple as that.

Of the forms of exercise mentioned and innumerable other forms of exercise that could be named, it may be said they are all good—provided the exercise is not considered a cure-all. We need exercise, and certain diseases are increasing because of a lack of ordinary animal physical activity that we should engage in. The usual amount of exercise the persons in a household formerly engaged in, such as caring for the furnace, removing ashes, shovelling snow, washing clothes, cleaning lamp chimneys, caring for the back yard garden, and puttering about the house, seems to be slowly disappearing with the times, and as these activities are discontinued too often nothing takes their place. Even stair exercises are disappearing with the marked increase in flats, apartments, bungalows and elevators. Thus we are experiencing in the case of organic diseases, particularly the so-called middle age ailments such as heart diseases, including diseases of the blood circulation system, kidney diseases, diabetes, cancer and others, an increase that is truly alarming to those who are dealing with statistics in human life—alarming because we have no definite means for correction that the public seems to enjoy.

Intelligent diet is also important, although it is not a cure-all either. But only half of the population has been watching weight and food intake recently and unfortunately for them, they watched it not always from the standpoint of fashion.

To live in a good physical condition depends on each individual person. He must eat, sleep and exercise sufficiently, but not to excess. He must work and play but not overdo. He must wear proper clothing for the varying climate. Possibly the best advice can be summed up by the statement that he should be moderate in these things without overlooking any of them.

And lastly, your physician can do much if you will let him, (1) by giving him an opportunity now and then, at least once a year, to give you a physical examination seeking any physical defects that may be starting and, (2) then following his advice. The same is true of dental care for the teeth.

Moderation and medical supervision are therefore my prescription for possible long life and probable healthy life.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Egret Goes His Way

For freedom there can never be
A substitute, we all agree.
—Old Mother Nature.

Egret was feeling better every day. That is to say, his wing was feeling better where it had been wounded. Each day he tried lifting it a little more. Farmer Brown's Boy saw this and was glad. Yet he was sorry, too. He had grown fond of the beautiful white bird, and he didn't like to think of the time when he would see it no more. But, of course, Egret must go. Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't the slightest idea of keeping Egret a prisoner.

"He isn't a prisoner," explained Farmer Brown's Boy to Mother Brown. "People in hospitals are not prisoners. They are just patients. That is what Egret is, a patient. And when he is well he will be set free."

"Don't you think it would be nice to keep him as a pet?" asked Mother Brown. "He is such a handsome fellow, and so unusual, that I should think you would like to keep him as a pet. You could clip one of his wings, so that he couldn't fly."

Farmer Brown's Boy sighed. "I'd like to. But it wouldn't be fair to Egret. You know, to be happy Herons want to be where it is marshy and swampy and where there is plenty of water. Egret couldn't be truly happy up here. No, I shall let him go as soon as I am sure that his wing is strong and he is quite able to take care of himself."

Meanwhile, as often as possible Farmer Brown's Boy took Egret down to the Smiling Pool to catch his own meals. And he did! He proved himself a good fisherman. It was indeed a spry minnow or frog that got away after once coming within reach of Egret. While he was waiting for fish or frog to come, Egret would stand motionless, looking off into space. Yes, sir, that is what he would do. And Farmer Brown's Boy, noticing this, would feel sure that Egret was dreaming of his freedom. He was dreaming of the days when those great, broad wings of his carried him wherever he wanted to go, and he was wondering if ever again he would take long journeys on them. He loved these visits to the Smiling Pool, but at the same time they made him homesick.

Then came a day when Farmer Brown's Boy untied the string from the leg of Egret. Egret didn't know it. He didn't know that when Farmer Brown's Boy set him down on the edge of the Smiling Pool he was as free as ever he had been. He began fishing as usual. Farmer Brown's Boy withdrew a short distance. It suddenly came to Egret that he was walking more freely than usual. Still, he thought nothing of it. After a while he tried his wings, as he had so often tried them of late. Always before there had been a gentle tug at one leg where the string was fastened. This time there was no tug. Egret went up, up. That wounded wing was strong now.

With long legs stretched out behind him, his neck folded back so that his head rested between his shoulders, the great white bird mounted into the air. Perhaps you can guess how he felt. Farmer Brown's Boy could. Up, up, went Egret and over toward the Big River. Then he turned, swung about in a circle and came back over Farmer Brown's Boy. It was as if he had returned to say good by. Perhaps he had. Who knows? Anyway, Farmer Brown's Boy was quite sure that he had.

Egret circled around the Smiling Pool, then once more headed for the Big River, and this time he kept right on going. Farmer Brown's Boy watched him disappear above the tree tops. Then, with a little sigh, he turned and made his way home.

"I'm sorry and I'm glad," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "And, oh, how I do hope that no killer with a dreadful gun will ever have a chance to shoot Egret again."

OCEAN BEACH ATTACHMENT WITH CLAIM OF FRAUD

In a suit brought in the superior court and returnable in September, attachments for $7,000 have been made upon the Ocean Beach property of the Commodore Realty company for the Atlas Realty company of Hartford. The Hartford company has a suit for $6,000 against the Commodore Realty company, Joseph Sigal and his two sons, Harry and Charles.

The Atlas company claims that Joseph Sigal transferred title to the Bentley avenue property as a means of preventing the Atlas company from collecting on a plaintiff's debt arising from foreclosure proceedings brought against Sigal some time ago.

At that time, it is alleged, the Atlas company foreclosed on the properties at 119, 121 and 123 Bentley avenue and they were sold for $5,500, $5,560 and $6,050 respectively. The foreclosure suit was for the purpose of recovering on mortgages held on the property by the Atlas company besides mortgages of $5,000 on each of the properties held by banks.

It is now claimed by the Atlas company that through the sale of this property the proceeds were so small that the Atlas company suffered a loss of $4,379. Subsequently, it is claimed by the Atlas company, Joseph Sigal organized the Commodore Realty company and transferred title to the property now in question to this company.

This action, it is claimed by the Atlas company, was taken to hinder and defraud the Atlas company from collecting the plaintiff's debt of $4,379.

DIVORCE GRANTED WITH CUSTODY OF CHILD

In the uncontested divorce suit of Ruth Prodell Moran of this city against Joseph F. Moran of Waterbury in which intolerable cruelty was alleged since Jan. 1, 1927, Judge Allyn L. Brown has granted a divorce to the petitioner with the custody of a minor child. The judge's decision was handed down Tuesday and filed with Clerk John H. Walter of the superior court. The couple was married Nov. 30, 1916.

This is a case which presented the unusual feature of the husband being in court when his wife's divorce suit was being tried and the judge inviting him to make a statement if he cared to do so. Mr. Moran went on the stand and was questioned by Judge Brown. In the course of his replies Moran declared that he would be satisfied if a divorce were granted as he and his wife did not seem to be able to get along together at all.

SEIZES AUTOMOBILE OF PERSISTENT PARKER IN $1,000 TRESPASS SUIT

Something novel in the legal and automobile field was initiated Tuesday by Attorney William H. Shields, president of the New London County Bar association when he brought suit a trespass suit for $1,000 damages against a persistent parker in front of his property on Church street and had a deputy sheriff attach and take possession of the automobile in the case.

The defendants named in the case are John F. Donahue of 10 Goldberg avenue, operator of the car, and his sister, Mrs. Hannah T. Sullivan, owner of the machine.

The attachment on the automobile was made about noon Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff George Hozie, while the machine was parked in front of the Shields property. As soon as the car had been attached by the deputy sheriff, Mr. Shields notified Mr. Donahue by telephone to the Schwartz Bros. store, where Mr. Donahue is employed, that an officer was taking charge of the car. Mr. Donahue hurried over to see what was going on and after some argument with Mr. Shields, while the deputy sheriff was inside using the telephone, got into the machine and drove it off to police headquarters, but was followed by Mr. Shields and the deputy sheriff in the latter's machine. At headquarters Mr. Donahue was informed that the police could not interfere in a civil suit and Deputy Sheriff Hozie took charge of the machine and put it in Swan's garage under the attachment.

The suit is returnable to the superior court in September, the writ being signed by Attorney Charles V. James who with State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, is counsel for Mr. Shields.

The complaint in the writ reads as follows:

"The defendants, John F. Donahue and Hannah T. Sullivan, are now and for a long time have been the possessors, owners and operators in said Norwich of a large passenger automobile.

"The plaintiff, William H. Shields, is now and for a long time heretofore has been the owner in fee in the possession and occupancy of the land with the buildings thereon standing that is situated on the northerly side of Church street, a public highway in said Norwich, which property is known and numbered 52, 54, and 58 Church street.

"During all the year 1930, the said plaintiff has been and still is the owner in fee of that parcel of land that lies between the curbing of the sidewalk of said street and the center line of said street that lies south of and parallel with said curbing, subject only to the rights of passage over the same by the public as such public highway.

"Many times heretofore in the year 1930, the defendants have placed, kept and stored the said automobile on the said land of the plaintiff that lies between the said curbing and said center line of the highway for long periods of time, both day and night, wrongfully, unlawfully, and defiantly, against the will and protests of the said plaintiff owner and the repeated requests of the owner that they, the defendants, remove the said automobile from the said places of location and storage, which protests and requests were wholly at all times disregarded by the defendants.

"Many times during the said year 1930, the defendants have wilfully, wrongfully, unlawfully and defiantly, against the will and protests of the plaintiff and contrary to the repeated requests and protests and objections to them made constantly by the plaintiff, continued all the said acts of trespass herein complained of upon the said land and property.

"The defendants furthermore threaten to continue hereafter all the said acts complained of by the plaintiff."

It is the contention on the part of Attorney Shields that the acts of trespass consist in parking the machine for long periods and against his protest in that part of the street which lies between the curb and the center line of the highway to which he claims his property line runs. According to Mr. Shields, the Donahue automobile has been regularly placed in front of his property for long periods of time and on a certain Saturday was placed there at 8 o'clock in the morning and was still there at 9 o'clock at night. Members of the Schwartz Bros. firm, have also, according to Mr. Shields, been in the habit of parking their machines in front of his property but have complied with his request to desist from this practice, but Mr. Donahue has insisted that he had a right to park there in spite of the objections made to him by the owner of the property.

CLAMPING THE LID ON LAW BREAKING MOTORISTS

Out of the 11 auto drivers slated to appear before Philip E. Devnew, an inspector of the state motor vehicle department, Tuesday morning, at hearings in the common pleas room in the court house, only four of them had their licenses returned, one failed to appear and the remaining six were refused return of their licenses. The recent ruling of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel, relative to the suspension of licenses of drunken drivers, reckless drivers, and others, is believed to have accounted for this action.

Only one Norwich man, Leo T. LaCombe, 21, of No. 111 Orchard street, appeared before the inspector, who refused to reinstate him and suspended his license for a year, one of the longest suspensions ever given out to a driver who figured in a fatal accident and was absolved by the coroner of any criminal responsibility. LaCombe was the driver of a motorcycle which figured in an accident on the Norwich-New London turnpike several months ago which resulted in the death of Robert Cleaves of North Main street. La Combe was fined in the city court on a charge of reckless driving, which was substituted for a technical charge of manslaughter after the finding of Coroner Edward G. McKay which was in his favor.

Warren L. Maynard of Fishers Island, N. Y., arrested here recently on a charge of drunken driving, failed to be reinstated in this state and his license was withheld.

The license of Leo Willette of R. F. D., Danielson, was also withheld and he was refused reinstatement. He had his license taken from him for operating under the influence of liquor.

John DeRosier of Uncasville, license suspended for overloading a truck, Philip Orenstein of Montville, figured in a fatal accident, and Joseph A. Sadoway of Moosup, overloading, had their licenses returned to them.

In the case of Maurice J. McGuinness of 5 Cherry street, Westerly, a printer, the inspector ordered him to return his license to the state department. McGuinness is alleged to have left the scene of an accident, in which his machine figured, without stopping to ascertain the damage occasioned. At the time of the accident he had had his license about a month. He will not be able to get his license back in this state until he straightens out the trouble with the Rhode Island authorities, who were the complainants.

The inspector reserved decision in the case of Henry Hassila of R. F. D., Box 13, Canterbury, who was convicted of operating a machine while under the influence of liquor and had his license taken away.

Stephen J. Meade of 32 Richard street, New Britain, who was found to be responsible for an accident in which a car operated by Rufus W. Beeman of Yantic figured, was ordered to furnish proof of financial responsibility.

Robert N. Meigs of Plainfield, who lost his license for drunken driving, failed to put in an appearance, and Toivo Adam Lybeck of Moosup, convicted on the same charge, was reinstated.

FALCONE UNDER BONDS FOR FEDERAL COURT PRESENTATION

At a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson at his office in the Thayer building Tuesday morning Dominic Falcone of North Main street, alleged proprietor of a "speakeasy" at No. 35 North Main street, was ordered held under bonds of $1,000 for presentation in the United States district court. His bartender, William Mallinson, 64, of Greeneville, was discharged.

Mallinson was arrested on July 10 after the place on North Main street was raided by federal prohibition agents, who seized 45 cases of beer and a quart and a pint of alleged liquor. Falcone, who is alleged to be the proprietor of the place, gave himself up the following day. He is out on bonds, which were furnished.

RAYMOND B. CASE HOME WITH HEALTH RESTORED

Raymond B. Case, a member of the faculty of Norwich Free Academy arrived Tuesday at the home of his aunts Misses Louisa and Josephine Case, on Warren street. Mr. Case was one of the Norwich young men who did overseas service during the World war.

VARYING OPINIONS ON SENATOR BINGHAM'S NOTE

Various reactions were aroused in the executive committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce when Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut replied to a telegram from the chamber urging that the United States senate ratify the London naval treaty. Senator Bingham questioned how many of the committee had read the document.

"Rather curt," was the way President Henry Trumbull described the note.

James T. Moran of New Haven, president of the Southern New England Telephone Co., said: "It seems that the senator has got one on us."

The following letter had been sent to Senators Bingham and Walcott: "The executive committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce is of the opinion that the London naval treaty should be ratified by the senate of the United States." This was the group sentiment of the committee. It was also telegraphed to President Hoover.

Senator Bingham mailed replies to members of the committee. That received by one of the committee members follows:

"I note that the executive committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce has unanimously favored the immediate ratification of the London naval treaty, which we are now engaged in studying. The document is rather involved and technical and I cannot help wondering how many members of the committee had read it at the time the action was taken. Would you mind telling me whether you have read it and if so whether you think Article 21 sufficiently protects the interests of the United States?"

The letters to the other members are identified. Several members are writing or have sent their replies.

Although Mr. Trumbull did not care for the tenor of the senator's letter, Frank Cheney, Jr., of Cheney Brothers, South Manchester; J. K. Punderford of New Haven, president of the Connecticut company, and Mr. Moran said that, in their opinion, the note was open and friendly.

"Senator Bingham is apparently trying to get counsel from his constituents," said Mr. Moran. "He is taking his job seriously, as he should. "On receiving such an expression of opinion, he was, therefore, entitled to find out the results of the studies of each one. Senator Bingham is a scholarly man, and the reply is a natural one for him to make," continued Mr. Moran.

Several of those on the executive committee of the chamber have written Senator Bingham pointing out that they attempted no interpretation of the treaty provisions, but simply indorsed it in principle.

Those on the committee are as follows: Henry Trumbull, president; James T. Moran, and John B. Byrne, vice presidents; Frank Cheney, Jr., F. H. Johnston, Arthur R. Kimball, Albert H. Lavery, J. K. Punderford, Ernest E. Rogers and John F. Rolfe.

TWO RAIDS FOR LIQUOR PRODUCE NO RESULTS

A squad of federal men headed by Prohibition Agent Harry W. Avery, assisted by local police descended upon two suspected liquor places Tuesday afternoon, but their efforts were fruitless as no liquor was discovered in either. The places raided were Joe Bedard's at No. 63 West Main street, and Mrs. Catherine Frascelli's at No. 26 Cliff street, corner of Elm street.

The local police assisting were Officers Patrick Murphy and Daniel O'Neil.

10:05— Go to Mitchell dairies to see 25 acres sweet clover and orchard grass pasture seeded in 1929. The 25 acres made a return of $48 in 1929. Up to July 10 the field has pastured 80 head of milking stock for 34 days. There are many farms in the county where similar results could be obtained.

10:40—Leave for Norwich.

11:00—Stop at farm of W. B. Lathrop, East Great Plain. Inspection of 5 acres of alfalfa ready for second cutting; 5 acres of sweet clover, newly seeded alfalfa and permanent pasture improvement. This is an interesting place showing what can be done within the time of two years.

11:45—Leave for Mohegan park.

12:00—Stop at Mohegan park for basket lunch. Talk by J. S. Owens, extension crops specialist, on "The Value of Alfalfa as a Dairyman's By Crop."

1:00—Leave for Taftville.

1:10—Stop at farm of Pisarko brothers. See three acres alfalfa being harvested and twelve acres more nearly ready. Three acres of sweet clover which has pastured a dozen cows since May 15; permanent pasture improvement and seven acres of alfalfa being seeded down. A lot to see on one place.

2:00—Leave for Franklin.

2:15—Stop at Avery farms; see permanent pasture fertilization with and without complete fertilizer and seven acres of alfalfa ready to cut for the second time. A talk by B. A. Brown in charge of Storrs pasture experiment on "Pasture Fertilization."

3:00—Leave for Hyde's corners.

3:15—Stop at farm of J. H. Hyde; see alfalfa and pasture fertilization. Mr. Hyde has used much lime and superphosphate on his pastures, also a complete fertilizer.

A talk by Prof. G. H. White, head of dairy department at Connecticut Agricultural college on "The Feed Replacement Value of Good Pasture."

The farm bureau is extending a cordial invitation for all interested to join the tour, which will provide a profitable day.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSES KEPT BUSY IN JUNE

The following is the report made for June on the work of the public health nursing department of the United Workers:

Summer heat may affect many things, but the unselfish work of the public health nursing department of the United Workers is certainly not one of these. June was far from being a cool and invigorating month, yet during that time the nurses admitted 154 new patients to swell the number of patients under care to 1667 and made 1398 visits in treating that number. The wedding month was, furthermore, a banner season for attendance at the various clinics, 27 being present at the tuberculosis clinics, 217 at the Rock Nook children's clinic, and 246 at the well babies' conference.

It is during these summer months that the nurses are devoting special study and consideration to the children who will enter school in September. Mothers are advised to have the family physician give the children a complete physical examination and, if defects are found, to have them corrected. In an effort to impress lastingly and more potently than ever on the minds of parents the prime importance of protecting their children against smallpox and diphtheria, the latter particularly, before they enter school, the following excerpt is quoted: "Diptheria is particularly fatal to children from three to five years of age, and ranks third among the fatal diseases from one to three years. So great is the toll in these years that considerably over half of all deaths from diphtheria occur among children between the ages of six months and five years. These little ones can easily be protected by the family physician, or at a public health station, or a dispensary.

"Parents who hesitate to have babies treated lest they be too young should be advised that babies rarely show even the slightest reaction to the protective treatment. If every child between the ages six months and five years were immunized, diphtheria would soon be practically wiped out."

DEDICATING NEW BUILDING AT NEWINGTON HOME

It has been seven years since work began on the new building at the Newington Home for Crippled Children, and now the building is completed, ready for the dedication Friday, July 25. The central part and one wing has been occupied since Jan. 24, 1924, and now the left end of the building, known as the "boys' wing," is built, the auditorium is equipped, the therapeutic pool is ready to play its part in the regeneration of paralyzed muscles, and out of doors the grading is done and flowers are blooming beside the driveway.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York is to be the speaker at the dedication exercises at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

There will be much of interest to see in the new building. Visitors may see the therapeutic pool, the dormitories, the sitting rooms, the social service department and the new deck on the recently-completed wing.

Modified Cottage System

The building is built really on a sort of modified cottage system—actually a series of cottages under one roof. The system of a group of more or less isolated buildings placed about a central one is felt to be the most modern and the most effective in many instances, but in Newington it would not be satisfactory because the hospital cases would be isolated and cut off from the close contact they have now with the other children. In the scheme which has been evolved, each division—nursery, juniors, intermediates and seniors—has its own dormitory, bath and sitting room, each with its own house mother, the girls in one wing and the boys in the other.

At one end, for example, is the section devoted to the senior boys. Their sitting room, on one side of the hall, is furnished with the sort of furniture that appeals to the young man—large chairs and table, leather upholstery, book cases, a piano about which the boys may harmonize.

Across the hall, the bath shows a touch of color in the doors, which are a lively blue, and the dormitory with its 14 beds has windows on three sides—the room designed to project from the main building toward the back so that it may get as much light and air and sunshine as possible. Each dormitory projects in this same fashion, giving the maximum surface area.

Library Equipment

The funds for the library equipment were given to a large extent by the preparatory schools of Connecticut. Dr. Remsen B. Ogilby has an especial interest in the sitting room which the juniors and intermediates share, and has been getting funds to furnish it in the way small boys like. The little green beds and other furnishings of the intermediates' dormitory were furnished by the men and girls of the Pratt and Whitney company plant.

The dining room is at the end of the corridor and in the central part of the basement is the boiler room. Then there is the big laundry, where huge washing machines, extractors and driers make clothes ready for the big ironing machines, and keep the whole plant supplied with one of its most important necessities. Besides that there is a small room at the end of the corridor, where the senior girls may wash and iron and cook and learn to do all the things that they must know about housekeeping.

Therapeutic Pool

The therapeutic pool is on this same level, and nearby is the gymnasium, which looks like and has the atmosphere of a real honest-to-goodness ordinary gym, but which has the difference that every piece of apparatus is especially devised for the special use to which it is put.

On one side are the social service rooms, where out-patients are received. There is the office, with a ramp approach, that stretcher cases may be brought in with ease, and farther along in the suite the examining rooms and bath. In another part of the buildings there is even a little dormitory where out-patients may spend the night, if necessary, and which may, if occasion arises, be used for a case or two of mumps, or something else mildly contagious among the regular patients.

The room lined with black bricks that it may be turned into a dark room for developing is now in use to store X-ray photographs. But there is the new X-ray room—with no X-ray apparatus! That is, at present, one of the outstanding needs of the home.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Lewis L. Rogers.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Rogers widow of Lewis L. Rogers, formerly of Wauwecus Hill, was held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager, Franklin street. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, who also read the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. Friends acted as bearers. The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends and the floral forms were beautiful.

Is Mother of Eight

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."—Mrs. Oreance Godfrey, 103 Cumberland Street, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

ITALIANS NOSE OUT SMOKE SHOP 1 TO 0 IN GAME PLAYED IN RAIN

Some 200 of the City league followers sat through the rain at the campus last night and saw the Italian club win an abbreviated ball game from the Smoke Shop by a 1 to 0 score. The affair lasted but three and a half innings but inasmuch as an official league contest is of seven inning duration it will count in the league standing.

Baseball games have often been finished in the rain or even partly played while the heavens emptied buckets of aqua pura but it's been a long time since one was started, played, and finished in a downpour. Fully five minutes before starting time the rain began to fall but still and all the fans continued to come. Rather than disappoint the gathering, the league officials ordered the contest played and the umpires, clad in raincoats, took their positions on the field. Despite the fact that the rain picked up the fans stuck around and watched every play between the raindrops.

The contest itself was well played, there being but two errors in spite of the weather. One, however, was largely responsible for the Smokers downfall. In the early third, with one away, Pheno Tombari pasted one of Weisgraber's offerings to the centerfield fence for two bases and while Yerrington was being thrown out, Gibbs to Couillard, he went to third. Dorsey was the next Italian hitter, and it was while he was taking his cuts that the run came in. Weisgraber put one over to the Italian and both the batter and catcher let it go. The ball rolled to the backstop and Tombari romped home.

Lucier was on the hill for the Italian club and he hurled nice ball, allowing but three hits while he was striking out three. Weisgraber gave four hits and whiffed one. The leading hitter was Pheno Tombari, who had a double and a single. The score:

Citizens Vs. Ideals Tonight

Tonight, at the campus the Polish Citizens, runners up to the Thermos Bottlers, meet the Ideals in the third scheduled City league affair of the current week. The Cits have lost but two games this season and right now are the only ones in the circuit within striking distance of Bill Hastedt's pets. Anxious to keep their distance of the leaders for when the two clubs come together next week, the Polish boys look to the Ideal affair as one of their most important

Despite the fact that his club has triumphed but once this year, Tony Bernard, pilot of the Ideals, is confident that the Cits will be set back once again this evening. He plans to start Buck Shahan on the hill and is certain that the former Greeneville boy will speedball the runners-up until they are dizzy. Boots Greene or his brother, Johnny, will work for the Citizens.

DAVIS CUP PLAYERS PUT IN STIFF PRACTICE SESSION

PARIS, July 22-(AP)--Hard boiled tennis of the slambang, six-shooting variety was indulged in today by both the American and French Davis cup teams in the last strenuous practice matches before the challenge round test on Friday.

Big Bill Tilden, bad ankle and all, played Young George Lott, his singles mate, and beat him two out of three sets, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4. Henri Cochet, ace of the cup defending squad, came back to form and wiped up the courts with Christian Boussus, youthful Frenchman.

Both number ones, Tilden and Cochet, took chances in stroking which, while producing a maximum of errors, provided some of the most amazing placements the world of tennis has seen.

"What a pity there is so much at stake in the Davis cup that the players cannot afford to take such chances," was the regret of about a thousand spectators who had paid to watch the practice. Amateur tennis now is taking a leaf out of the professional book, charging 10 francs—40 cents—for the privilege of witnessing the training.

The committee and selection work was completed today for the challenge round as the teams were definitely formed and for the first time since the United States defeated Italy in the inter-zone final the players had their innings. Beautiful weather greeted them for the first time in ten days and they revelled in it.

Besides the Tilden-Lott and Cochet-Boussus matches, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, the American doubles combination, played five hard sets against the professionals Martin Plaa and Karel Kozeluh. Johnny Doeg and Gregory Mangin staged a battle royal on one of the side courts and the only nominated Davis cup player on either team who was idle today was Jacques Brugnon, who thought he had "had enough tennis since April."

On the showing today Tilden and Cochet, as in other years, again stood out and the real battle for the cup appears once more to be a fight between them.

"Which ever way the Tilden-Cochet match goes probably will go the Davis cup," was the comment of the experts assembled. Tomorrow an easy day of light training is scheduled.

COLLINS PITCHES PHILLIES TO WIN OVER PIRATES

PHILADELPHIA, July 22—(AP)—Phil Collins pitched and batted the Phils to a 11 to 5 triumph over the Pirates today.

The ace of Shotton's hurling staff hit successive home runs in the fourth and fifth innings. The first came with one man on and the second with the bases empty. The twirler also had a single and accounted for four of his team's runs. The Pirates could do nothing with his delivery until the closing minutes, while he had the victory well in hand.

Pinky Whitney hit a home run inside the park in the sixth frame, the first time the trick has been turned in some years. Four pitchers performed for the Pirates. French, who started was pounded heavily and was forced to the showers in the fourth inning. The score:

THURSTON ALLOWS CARDS THREE HITS AND NO RUNS

BROOKLYN, July 22—(AP)— Hollis Thurston, one-time American league hurler, made his second start for Brooklyn and won his first victory, outpitching Wild Bill Hallahan in a close game. Thurston allowed the St. Louis Cardinals only three hits to triumph, 1 to 0.

Hallahan allowed five hits before he gave way for a pinch batsman in the eighth and Lindsey finished the game. An error by Frank Frisch led to the only run of the game. Frisch fumbled Frederick's grounder and the Brooklyn leadoff man scored on Bressler's infield single to Frisch, on which Orsatti failed to cover first.

Chick Hafey made two of the three hits off Thurston.

NEW YORK, July 22—(AP)—The Giants sent the Chicago Cubs back into second place in the National league standing today by winning the second game of a double header to get an even break for the day while Brooklyn was gaining the decision over St. Louis. The Cubs won the first game, 5 to 4, and the Giants captured the seven innng second, 6 to 1. Rain stopped the second game.

Ethan Allen's home run was the most important blow of the Giant victory. It came in the third inning with the bases full and drove Bud Teachout from the mound. Bush and Nelson followed him while Bill Walker held the Cubs to six hits in seven innings.

Charley Root held the Giants in check through the first game until the end was in sight. He weakened in the final inning, allowing Frank Hogan to hit a home run and two others to single, and Teachout had to retire the last man. The Cubs pounded Pete Donohue and Fred Fitzsimmons for 15 hits, scoring four of their runs in the last three innings.

EDITH CROSS ELIMINATED IN THE QUARTER-FINALS

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 22—(AP)—Edith Cross, of San Francisco, third ranking woman tennis player and defending champion in the Essex Country club's invitation tournament, today was eliminated by the inspired play of Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, in a quarter final match by scores of 7-5, 6-3.

The California girl, who reached Boston from England late Sunday night with Sarah Palfrey and Mary Greef, her Wightman cup teammates, played her poorest tennis against Miss Hilleary. It was evident that she had not recovered from her long sea trip for many times during the match she was caught on the wrong side of the court and was forced to stand helpless as Miss Hilleary lashed placements to the empty side.

"PADDY" HARMON, VETERAN CHICAGO SPORTSMAN, KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—Patrick T. (Paddy) Harmon, who rose from a corner newspaper boy to builder of the $7,000,000 Chicago Stadium, largest indoor sports arena in America, was killed today, victim of an automobile accident in which his speeding sedan turned over five times and plunged into a ditch.

Harmon, for 25 years one of Chicago's leading sports and amusement promoters, was returning from his summer home in Crystal Lake, Ill., accompanied by his wife and a guest, Dr. E. T. Brand, when his automobile hit a rough spot in the highway near Des Plaines, a suburb. The speeding machine, with Harmon at the wheel, plunged off the road and landed 25 feet away, pinning its occupants beneath it.

Harmon, internally injured, died in a hospital three hours later, his wife, Mrs. May Harmon, is in a serious condition, but Dr. Brand was less seriously hurt. From his hospital bed Dr. Brand directed a frantic attempt to save Harmon's wife by dispatching a highway policeman to a medical supply house in Chicago for a drug that might have stopped the internal hemorrhages.

Harmon, whose promotional genius resulted in the erection of the Chicago stadium, was ousted from the presidency less than six months after it was opened, because the board of directors decided his management was responsible for several failures of sports events, which had been counted upon to produce profits.

After his dismissal from the stadium last November, Harmon was a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff of Cook county, but was defeated.

Although he was best known as a successful sports promoter, Harmon won thousands of friends through his activities each Christmas as Santa Claus to the poor children of the West Side. He came from humble surroundings and after attaining success and a measure of wealth, his greatest joy was to care for youngsters whose start in life was typical of his own. Year after year, he fed and provided presents for as many as 10,000 youngsters.

Harmon started his promotional career at the age of 16 by opening a Sunday night dancing establishment. Then he became a pioneer in roller skating rings, popularizing that sport. In 1912 he promoted the first six-day bicycle race ever held in Chicago, and continued to stage the six day grinds annually.

When Harmon conceived the dream of the stadium, it required seven years to achieve his objective. He was frequently hampered but nevertheless drove his project to completion.

With the completion of the building Harmon's troubles began. The huge structure was opened in gala fashion with a championship match between Tommy Loughran, then light heavyweight titleholder, and Mickey Walker, March 16, 1929. The night of the opening the temporary roof caught fire, and Harmon himself climbed up among the cat walks with a hose to help extinguish the blaze. The fight was a financial failure. Other failures followed, and the directors, seeing that Harmon was unable to guide the project into success, began their campaign to oust him. Harmon withdrew, but retained his place on the board of directors in addition to holding a large block of stock.

Harmon was born in Chicago in the old gas house district, May 24, 1877.

His last words before he died were a mumbled plea to be buried in the stadium.

CISSELL'S ERROR AIDS BOSTON IN BEATING CHISOX

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—Three timely hits and an error by Bill Cissell with a double play in sight cost the White Sox a ball game here this afternoon to the Boston Red Sox by a 4 to 3 score.

Dutch Henry almost got away with his third victory of the season when the little roller came to Cissell and went through his legs. A double play would have sent Boston to the field again with the score tied.

BROWNS BEAT SENATORS FOR THIRD STRAIGHT

ST. LOUIS, July 22—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, only team in the American league to have won more games than it has lost from the Senators in the current season, this afternoon handed the second place Washington club its third straight defeat of the series, 3 to 1.

It was the second consecutive day the Browns managed to shove across a victory, although they were outhit, the Senators making nine safeties to seven for St. Louis. Coffman, opposed by Jones and Burke, hurled brilliantly throughout.

By winning today the Browns advanced to sixth place, exchanging places with the White Sox.

YANKEES DROP TWO GAMES TO CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 22—(AP)—The "presentation jinx" turned against the New York Yankees today and gave the Indians both games of a double-header. The scores were 6 to 5 and 10 to 8.

Before the game a delegation of Manager Bob Shawkey's admirers from his home town of Brookville, Pa., presented him with some flowers. During the two games, Bob the Gob saw six of his pitchers sadly battered, saw his infielders make eight errors and finally was chased from the field for arguing with Umpires Campbell and McGowan as the Yanks lost their second game.

Willis Hudlin pitched a fine game in the opener but had trouble due to four Cleveland errors. The Indians finally won out in the ninth scoring two runs on an error, Myatt's double and two singles. The second contest was a close slugging match in which each team used four pitchers. Earl Averill gained the decision for Cleveland with two home runs. The second broke an 8-8 tie in the eighth inning. The score:

ELKS-ROTARY GAME IS POSTPONED BECAUSE OF RAIN

Rain last night, caused the postponement of the Elks-Rotary game in the Junior league. Both teams were on hand ready to play but as it was raining considerably at 6:30 it was deemed best to call it off. The two teams will meet this coming Friday.

Tonight's game in the Junior circuit will be between the Y. M. C. A. and the Italian Young Men's club. Both teams appear to be evenly matched so a good game should result. Probable batteries are Rusillo and Stephano for the "Y", and Connell or Burelle and Angelone for the Italian club. The game is scheduled to start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

EVANS TIES FOR LEAD IN WESTERN AMATEUR

CHICAGO, July 22—(AP)—Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., the Bobby Jones of yesterday, came back for more golfing renown today by wedging into a two-way tie with another Chicagoan, Johnny Lehman, in the fight for the western amateur championship medal.

His big war clubs, on a strike almost regularly since 1923, when he won his twelfth and last golf crown of any reputation, clicked so brilliantly today that he carded a pretty 72, one over par on the stubborn championship Beverly course, and pulled up from behind to tie Lehman with a total of 147 strokes. But for a hooked shot into a trap on the final green, where he took one over par, he would have stood out in front alone tonight with the medal on his chest.

Evan's score was a celebrating gesture for his fortieth birthday anniversary and in his own words it "made me feel like I was back in my game once more again after a long lay-off".

Beverly, regarded as one of the toughest courses ever to sport a championship, tamed contenders for the crown now worn by the youthful Don Moe of Portland, Ore., so thoroughly again today that 158 strokes, 16 swings over perfect figures, were good enough to qualify without a play-off. Ten more tied at 159 and even that was low enough for those with enough steam left to win the three places left via the play-off route. Most of the favorites came through handily, however, including the two Britons, Cyril Tolley and T. Philip Perkins, who qualified with 152 and 154 totals, respectively.

PIQUETTE AND BEAUREGARD MATCHED FOR LOCAL BOUT

Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn of the Shyma Boxing club announced Tuesday night that he had signed Lou Piquette of Bridgeport and Al Beauregard, New England bantamweight champion, for one of the eight-round star bouts on the Shyma club card for Aug. 5th. Piquette and Beauregard were matched for a bout last winter but Piquette was injured in training and the bout did not go through.

There will be two other eight-round star bouts as well as a six-round preliminary and a four-round curtain raiser. Unless there is a satisfactory crowd at this show the Shyma club will suspend operations until the indoor season. In the two open air bouts that the club has put on the promoters have taken a financial licking but are game to make one more try.

Joe Lewis proved to be the fastest thing in the field and won each heat as he pleased.

BATTERED MAN WAS NOT JOHNNY FARRELL

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)— William R. Hochster, president of the Quaker Ridge Golf club, said today that a man who walked into night court last night, bruised and dishevelled, and alleged he had been attacked in the lobby of a midtown hotel, was not Johnny Farrell, the golf professional, although he gave that name and occupation.

WESTERLY

FINED FOR PEDDLING FRUIT WITHOUT LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, July 22—Many defendants appeared on Tuesday morning sessions of third district court, Judge Oliver H. Williams, in Westerly and Stonington town court, Judge William A. Wilcox, and much court business was disposed of in both courts.

Peter Kayckos of 21 Tilley street, New London, fruit dealer, was before the Westerly court session having been arrested on Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock by Police Officer Leroy H. Norman. He pleaded guilty to the complaint brought by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charging him with the sale of fruits, oranges and bananas to the First National stores in Westerly without first having obtained a license from the general treasurer of Rhode Island. A second complaint, on which he also pleaded guilty, was the same sale without first obtaining a license from the town of Westerly. Judge Williams explained the law, which he declared known to the defendant despite his plea of ignorance, that the second license was required, although no charge was made for the latter when the state license was secured.

Prosecutor John Ferguson told the court that Kayckos was a persistent violator of the law and that trouble was experienced with him a year ago when he did not obtain a license until in November, and that he also endeavored to get by at times when he thought the police were not alert. Chief Brown added that three warnings had been given him already this year. Judge Williams stated his belief that camouflage was used to deceive through malicious intent and not through ignorance of the law. The resident of New London and previously of Meriden was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $20 and costs of $2.80 on the state complaint and on the town charge the costs of $2.80 with the admonition to be a law abiding citizen in the future.

Five young men, employed in various capacities at the Misquamicut Golf club, Watch Hill, arrested by Officer Norman at 1:45 a. m. Tuesday morning at the beach, were charged with revelling. The defendants were Thomas McKeveny, 17; Felix Besson, 20; Otto Birkert, 23; Grenville Frey, 20; and Thomas Martin, 28.

Prosecutor Ferguson informed the court that all were in an auto party returning to their place of employment about 1:45 a. m. when they made considerable noise and were followed by the officer. At one place a chauffeur reported two large stones rolled into the highway and at another place a sign had been thrown upon a lawn and there was no evidence that the men had been drinking. The prosecutor declared himself at a loss to explain their conduct except that "During the hot weather the defendants in taking a chilly ocean bath had their energies so renewed that they took means to express them in this way."

All were found guilty and sentenced to pay fines of $10 each and costs which were paid and the men returned to the club where an anxious steward awaited their return for a busy day's work when he was short handed and feared jail terms confronted them.

Thedore Cronea of Stonington apprehended by Pawcatuck Police Patrolman George L. Seidel, for illegal parking in Pawcatuck, failed to make his Stonington court appearance. On direction of Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher his bond of $5 was declared forfeited, it being the actual costs for such motor law infraction.

Walter Snyder, 24, of 13 Franklin street, Lynn, Mass., given a court summons by Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks when on July 19th the defendant near the brow of the hill on the Westerly-Stonington road forced George Wilcox of 8 Washington street, Westerly, to apply brakes suddenly to avoid crash, pleaded guilty to reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs which totaled $37.95 and were paid.

Vincent Grandinetti, 30, of Central avenue, Lynn, Mass., pleaded guilty to reckless driving when he received a court summons from Officer Whitmarsh for cutting in and out of heavy traffic on July 13th at the brow of Moss hill into Pawcatuck on the Boston Post road from Stonington to Westerly. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs which amounted to $8.45 and were paid.

Earl Smith, 27, of Poquonnock Bridge pleaded guilty to the operation of a motorcycle tandem on July 20th without an operator's license. He was on the machine with a companion, Budding, who had a license and which he stated he first thought was sufficient for him, although he had had a Rhode Island license some ten years ago and five years ago had been in a Waterford court for failure to have a license. He was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $26 and costs of $12.93 for which he accompanied Officer Whitmarsh to the barracks until the fine and costs were secured.

Eddie Baveroes, 18, 17 School street, Stonington, had as his guardian in court, Manuel Terchare, of Stonington, and a plea of guilty to charge of operating automobile without license was entered. Being found guilty he was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs totaling $37.95.

Louis R. Hazard, 32 of Stonington, the operator of the Ford truck, in which the garbage of Stonington fire district, above the railroad tracks is collected was before the court on three counts, no rear reflector, no rear mirror and failure to notify Connecticut authorities of a change of address. Dr. James R. Weeks, present in court, addressed the judge in behalf of the accused saying that he considered the offenses charged as violated by the fire district who had the truck and that fines and costs should be obtained from the district and not the underpaid and hardworking employee. Prosecutor Hammacher recommended leniency and Judge Wilcox imposed fines of $5 on each count and directed they be omitted with the payment of $12.20 costs which he said he expected the district to pay.

The shooting which is said to have arisen over domestic troubles, occurred at about 8:15 o'clock this morning, according to the police, when Quinn went to the mill and engaged in an argument with Blackwood.

With the receipt of the news of the supposed fatal shooting came a report that Quinn was in a Chrysler or Ford auto and on the Boston Post road. Patrolman Robert M. POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

When Grandma Was a Little Girl Like Me

She said there was a great' big orchard,
An' everywhere, as far as you could see,
Just grass an' trees all full of fruit a' growin'—
When grandma was a little girl like me.

She said there was lots of little bunnies,
And she told just how tame they used to be
Eatin' lettuce leaves and clover from her fingers—
When grandma was a little girl like me.

An' pigs, she said, an' cats, an' little chickens,
An' a norful dog 'at barked tremenjously,
An' a cunning little calf down in the pasture—
When grandma was a little girl like me.

She had some grea' big bruvvers an' a sister,
An' a baby, just a teeny tonty wee,
A little bit o' bit o' baby,
'Cause grandma wasn't a only child—like me.

An' 'en she telled us a'l about 'e attic
Where all 'e little children used to play,
An' lots o' room to run around an' holler
When it rained outside the whole long, living day.

It must 'a' been just lovely there to grandma's;
The city's just as different as can be;
I guess it was a good deal more like heaven
When grandma was a little girl like me.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES

Of interest to members of the Wide Awake circle is the following proclamation issued by His Excellency Frank G. Allen, governor of Massachusetts, at the time of "Be Kind to Animals Anniversary," which was this year observed on Sunday, April 27:

To teach our children the "principles of humanity and universal benevolence" is required not only by conscience but also by the laws of our Commonwealth, and benevolence could scarcely be termed universal if it did not include kindness to dumb animals. We may well be proud of the fact that Massachusetts not only in legislation but also in custom and practice has been a pioneer in honoring the claims upon human beings for kindness, justice and mercy to every living creature.

It was nearly three hundred years ago, and therefore it is of special significance to us who are celebrating this year the Tercentenary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay colony, that the general court adopted what was known as the Massachusetts Body of Liberties. This decree contained a provision which ordered "that no man shall exercise any Tyranny or Cruelty towards any Bruit Creatures which are usually kept for the use of Man." This was undoubtedly the first law for the protection of animals in this country and probably in the world.

To instill in our children the ideals of mercy, gentleness and justice, to inculcate in our youth a sacred regard for not only the rights but the comfort of every living creature, contributes greatly to the development of good citizenship. It is, therefore, a wise custom which has been adopted in this Commonwealth of setting aside each year a special time to give emphasis to the cause of humane education, and in accordance with this custom, I, Frank G. Allen, governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do proclaim the week of April 21 to 26, 1930, as Be Kind to Animals Anniversary and to appoint Sunday, April 27, as Humane Sunday.

Furthermore, I request that the people of this state give special attention in every possible way, through the press, in their religious services and especially in the schools, to the obligation and duty which we owe to our animal friends to protect them from hurt or harm.

Given, at the executive chamber, in Boston, this seventeenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-fourth.

By His Excellency the Governor,
FRANK G. ALLEN,
FREDERIC W. COOK, Secretary of the Commonwealth,
God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Snaps Picture of Bird

Dear Uncle Jed: I've read some of the very interesting stories in the Wide Awake section of The Bulletin, so I thought I would write to you about a little incident that happened to me.

One day last week I decided to take a hike. I walked about half a mile and came to where two roads went in opposite directions, one to the left and one to the right. The one to the left looked the most inviting. I took that. I walked for about five minutes, then I came to a clearing.

I looked up and there on a rock sat the most beautiful bird I had ever seen. As I had my camera with me I snapped a picture of it. A twig crackled under my feet and scared the bird away. I was disappointed but glad that I at least had a picture of it.

To my friends this snapshot seemed better than any bird picture they had ever seen.

Buys Birthday Present

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you a story, hoping you and the Wide Awake members will enjoy it. The name of it is, My First Earnings.

My girl friend and I went blueberrying last week. We started off at 8 o'clock, when it was nice and cool. We decided to take a lunch with us.

We walked about half a mile, and found more berries than we could pick. So we got busy filling our pails. It was getting hot so we knew it was noon. We sat down and ate our sandwiches and drank the lemonade mother had made purposely for us. But we did not waste any time, because our pails were nearly full. I filled mine, which held six quarts, and my girl friend filled her pail. Then we started home.

No sooner had we reached the village when a lady asked us if we would sell our berries at 20 cents a quart. I figured it would give me some money to buy my father a birthday gift. So I sold mine which gave me $1.20.

I got a big box of cigars on my way home. Next morning I was repaid for my work by the smile on my father's face. He said he was proud of his daughter who was only twelve years old, who could earn her own money.

Lives on Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to the Wide Awakes before, but I enjoy the letters very much. I am going to tell you about my little pet pony, Bubbles. She is red and white. My little sister and I have a little basket pony cart. We drive the cows over to our other pasture about one mile each way every morning and drive them home again over the same route at night, so the hired help can do the milking. I also help dad in the hayfield driving our old horse whose name is Dan. He's a wonderful pet and is 23 years old.

I have lived on a farm all of my life.

I hope you have enjoyed my little story.

Visits Elderly Lady

Dear Uncle Jed: One rainy afternoon while my girl friend and I were reading the paper, we saw the stories on the Wide Awake page.

We decided to read them for two weeks. After the second week was over we went for a walk for something to write to you about.

We left early in the afternoon, armed with walking sticks. We walked about two miles. Here we came to a cross road. The one to the right contained the most shade. We then came to an old house. As we were passing the gate an elderly lady saw us. She appeared very feeble.

She was gathering eggs and we helped her. She invited us in. We enjoyed the hour we spent with her.

We have made a few more trips there.

We were disappointed to find that she was going to live with a sister in a town some miles away.

Didn't Like the Cheese.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about my vacation. The first pleasure I had was going to the Sunday school picnic, down at Kitemaug. We went by boat and came back the same way. I had a very nice time.

Next I went to Gardner Lake and I learned to row a boat and went in swimming twice. We went in an autobus and had clam chowder for dinner and lots of good things with lots of pie. They had some awful smelling cheese. Some liked it, but I didn't. My mother buried hers.

We came home by moonlight and sang songs. It was 9 o'clock before we got home. I will write again sometime.

RALPH JONES, Age 10.

My Calf.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have wirtten to you. It is about my calf. My calf's name is May. The color of her is tan. She is a very nice calf. I like her very much. One day she went in the woods and got lost. I started to look for her. But at last she came home. I was very happy to see her.

Her Pets.

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to write you a little story. I am a little girl. We have two wonderful cow dogs who are also my playmates and pets. One is named Chase, 7 years old, and the other Sheppy, who is one year old. They help drive the cows. They play hide-and-seek. We also have barn pets, mother cats and kittens, who ride in my doll carriage.

MERLE NATALIE JONES, Age 7.

The Circus.

Dear Uncle Jed: I really thought my father would never come. He was to take me to the circus. At 12.15 p. m. he came. We ate a small lunch and then got ready. We took the 12.45 car to New London. When we reached the parade in New London, we took a car for the circus grounds. A five minutes' walk after leaving the car brought us to the circus grounds. My father bought the tickets and we went into the big tent. There were numerous animals. We went into the show tent after looking at the animals. The show was splendid. The grand parade was beautiful. Of all the show I liked the figures made by the performers and horses. The clowns were very funny. They told a great many jokes and laughed at them. I was sorry when it was over. We also went to the side show and saw queer people, after which we went home.

VIRGINIA MEECH, Age 12.
Norwich.

The Pirch Trees.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write about the birch tree. There are several kinds of birch. The white birch grows very plenty and the wood is used for spools and also for fuel.

The black birch is used for lumber. They use it for horse stables. This is better than ash for them, for they don't wear.

There is slippery, yellow and silver birch and another kind called paper birch. The bark is thick and you can peel it off in sheets one after another. Years ago they did not have paper, as we do now, and they used this paper birch to write letters on.

Our Class Outing

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been a long time since I have written to you, but the reason for that was nothing exciting occurred. I will now tell you of the glorious time our class had at the beach.

As per custom the graduating class was to have an outing. The question which arose among us was, "Where will it be?" We could choose between Ocean beach and Capitol park, Hartford. Our choice turned out to be the beach, partly because it would not take as long to reach there and partly because there would be bathing.

On the appointed day at 9 o'clock we started in high spirits on the trip. Our shouting and joking on the way down brought many folks to their doors to see what was happening. As soon as we reached our destination everyone went about to seek something of interest to do. My girl friend and I were walking around when we came to a creek off the ocean. Numerous boats were tied along the shore and they looked very inviting. We inquired about the hiring of the boats and after a little trouble we managed to find the man from whom we hired one for half an hour. We had great fun rowing but before we knew it the man called us in and told us we had been rowing for an hour and a quarter. Upon hearing this we were so surprised we nearly tipped the boat over.

At noon we ate our lunch in a pleasant park near the ocean. In the afternoon we had great fun and at 7 o'clock we were called to go home. A tired but happy lot of boys and girls made the journey home. We reached home and most of us went straight to our enticing beds to dream of the happy day which had been spent at the beach.

Changes His Mind

Dear Uncle Jed. It is not a pleasant thing to say, but grandfather was rather stingy. Although we were troubled with mice, he would not keep a cat. He was fond of saying, "Cats don't earn their salt."

Since the mice were not molested, they grew very bold. That very night grandmother put some cakes in the pantry to cool. While they were cooling the mice managed to get into the pantry. The next morning only some very mussy-looking crumbs remained. When grandfather saw what had happened he said, "It is better to feed a cat than a million mice." He got a cat and he has less mice now.

THREE-FIFTHS OF MONDAY'S LOSSES REGAINED IN THE MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, July 22.— (AP)— The stock market swept aside all opposition from the short interest today and resumed the advance that had been interrupted by the recent reaction.

The list showed distinct strength in its resistance to further bear selling moving up three points on the average under the guidance of encouraged bull operators. Three fifths of Monday's losses were regained in the aggregate.

Commodities firmed in response to weather news. Bonds were dull and steady. Money remained at familiar levels, although some dealers made a reduction in the short maturities of time accommodations. Bull buying was in larger volume, reflecting the cut in the New York Federal Reserve bank's bill rate.

Stocks soon served notice that the bears were in for a battle. The opening was irregularly lower, but there was a marked undertone of strength in important places and the early declines were mostly fractional. Bullish confidence was restored by this demonstration and by afternoon the market was swinging upward, interrupted by only one interval of hesitation. The close was strong at the day's tops. Turnover was slightly more than 2,900,000 shares, indicating that the advances had been made largely on professional maneuvers

There were few weak spots in the stock list for speculative sentiment for the advance was measurably stimulated by the support that was forthcoming on the heels of the reactions last Saturday and yesterday. Wall street heard that although the banks generally were taking no part in the move toward higher levels, at least one large institution was accommodating a prominent group of professional operators.

Three active issues made new highs for the year. The move in Auto Strop was accompanied by unconfirmed reports that the company was being sought by Gillette. Briggs and Wrigley were bid up briskly to record 1930 prices.

Aggressive pool operations were resumed in Vanadium and American Can, up 4 3-4 each, Radio up 3 3-4, General Electric up 2 1-8. General Motors up 1 1-4, and others. J. I. Case closed 9 points higher and gains of 2 to 6 points were made by American Telephone, American Tobacco "B." A. M. Byers' directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents. Despite reports that the rate would be cut, improved more than a point. Bethlehem Steel dipped nearly 4 points under bear selling, but recovered half of its loss.

Wheat closed fractionally higher on the re-appearance of better export business and a decrease in contract stock. Corn was up 2 7-8 to 3 1-2 cents, reflecting weather news. Cotton closed steady after irregular fluctuations, showing net variations of one point lower to 4 higher.

Foreign currencies were largely firm, the demand rate on the German mark touched a new 1930 high. Sterling also advanced, but closed unchanged. The Spanish peseta weakened.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, July 22— (AP) — Treasury receipts for July 19 were $7,617,111.91; expenditures $13,882,734.54; balance $207,583,617.09.

The New York Federal Reserve bank's daily gold statement today showed imports of $2,000,000 in gold from Uruguay. The Guaranty Trust company recently announced that it was to import such an amount.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)— Substantial advances in some of the utilities, apparently influenced by short covering, provided some color to a sluggish curb market toward the close today. The more active stocks generally closed higher. Total sales were only 450,800 shares.

There has been a growing short interest in the utility shares of late. Short selling has been prompted by a feeling in some quarters that these shares could no longer be supported at their high earnings ratios. The brisk recovery on the big board, however, seemed to prompt active covering in this market.

Electric Bond and Share was an active feature, rising more than 3 points to 82 3-4. American Super Power was also active, rallying a point, but closing only half higher. American Gas closed up 2. Niagara Hudson rallied fractionally, and Middle West sold off a point only to rebound.

Cities Service gained a point, closing at 29. The oil stocks generally were dull, Cosden rallied 2 3-4 and Gulf and Vacuum gained about a point. Standard of Indiana eased fractionally. MacMillan Petroleum appeared at 17, off 12 points from the last recorded sale.

There were a few sharp breaks among the rather inactive industrials and specialties. Universal Insurance, which had not appeared on the tape for some time, sold at 45 as a 5,000 share block was liquidated, a drop of 24 points and a new low. McCord Radiator dropped more than 5 points, and Zonite sagged to another new low. Driver Harris lost 3. Ford of Canada, American Tobacco new, and Anchor Post were firm features of this group, gaining a point or two.

The investing and holding company issues were highly irregular. Among the few to show any degree of activity was United Founders, which dropped 3-4 to a new low at 15 1-2, and closed at 16. Since its listing on this market early in the year, this stock has sold as high as 44. Transamerica and Goldman Sachs were also fairly active and each rallied a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 22.— (AP) — Corn prices went soaring today to the highest point reached in many weeks. Purchasing of future deliveries of corn took on large proportions, with numerous traders who were short of corn to fill contracts becoming urgent buyers. Forecasts that suggested a renewal of extreme heat over the corn belt aroused fears of big crop damage, especially as corn growth is now at a critical stage, and there was also uneasiness on account of supplies of corn available at present being much more meager than usual.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous at nearly the day's top level, 1 3-4a3 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Wheat, influenced by the action of corn, closed at 1-2a-7-8c net advance, with oats 1-2a3-4c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Despite setbacks in hog values, provisions were slightly firmer on account of upturns in cereals.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—A strong demand developed today for foreign bonds in the listed market and their activity provided the principal feature of the quiet trading. The domestic section showed no change in trend, continuing irregularly higher. The buoyancy of treasury issues was outstanding in the firm United States government group.

The easier tone of some standard rails, notably Atchison 4s, Southern Railway 4s, New York Central 4s, were exceptions from the firm trend shown by carrier liens. Canadian Pacific 4s reached a new high for the year, and Union Pacific 4s, St. Paul 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, of 1965, Morris and Essex 4 1-2s were strong.

Utility issues attracted little attention, some selling at slightly lower prices. American Telephone 5s of 1965 were firm and Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s touched a new high. Consolidated Gas 5 1-2s, Cincinnati Gas and Electric 4s were easy. West Pennsylvania Power 5s of 1956 were strong, gaining 3-4 to touch a new 1930 high.

Stock privilege issues made a little progress during the day in sympathy with stocks. American Telephone 4 1-2s gained nearly a point. Railroad convertibles advanced fractionally. Amusement issues were firm, Pathe warrant 7s gaining 3 points.

Buying of foreign governments was a conspicuous feature. French and German issues found particular favor, and French 7s, one of the standard issues of the group, reached a new high for the year. French municipals joined the upward movement. German 7s gained 1-4 of a point, while German 5 1-2s held unchanged. German General Electric 6s moved upward. Frankfort City 6 1-2s gained one point, and German Central Agricultural bank issues were unusually active.

Treasury 4s made a gain of 1-8 of a point, and other treasury issues were marked up by good fractions, while Liberty issues were steady.

Offerings tomorrow include $6,000,000 Oklahoma Gas and Electric company 5 per cent gold bonds.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 22.— (P) — A strong demand developed today for foreign bonds in the listed market, and their activity provided the principal feature of the quiet trading. The domestic section showed no change in trend, continuing irregularly higher. The buoyancy of treasury issues was outstanding in the firm United States government group.

The easier tone of some standard rails, notably Atchison 4s, Southern Railway 4s, New York Central 4s, were exceptions from the firm trend shown by carrier liens. Canadian Pacific 4s reached a new high for the year, and Union Pacific 4s, St. Paul 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s, of 1965, Morris and Essex 4 1-2s were strong.

Utility issues attracted little attention, some selling at slightly lower prices. American Telephone 5s of 1965 were firm and Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s touched a new high. Consolidated Gas 5 1-2s, Cincinnati Gas and Electric 4s were easy. West Pennsylvania Power 5s of 1956 were strong, gaining 3-4 to touch a new 1930 high.

Stock privilege issues made a little progress during the day in sympathy with stocks. American Telephone 4 1-2s gained nearly a point. Railroad convertibles advanced fractionally. Amusement issues were firm, Pathe warrant 7s gaining 2 points.

Buying of foreign governments was a conspicuous feature. French and German issues found particular favor, and French 7s, one of the standard issues of the group, reached a new high for the year. French municipals joined the upward movement. German 7s gained 1-4 of a point, while German 5 1-2s held unchanged. German General Electric 6s, moved upward, Frankfort City 6 1-2s gained one point, and German Central Agricultural bank issues were unusually active.

Treasury 4s made a gain of 1-8 of a point, and other treasury issues were marked up by good fractions, while Liberty issues were steady.

Offerings tomorrow include $6,000,000 Oklahoma Gas and Electric company 5 per cent gold bonds.

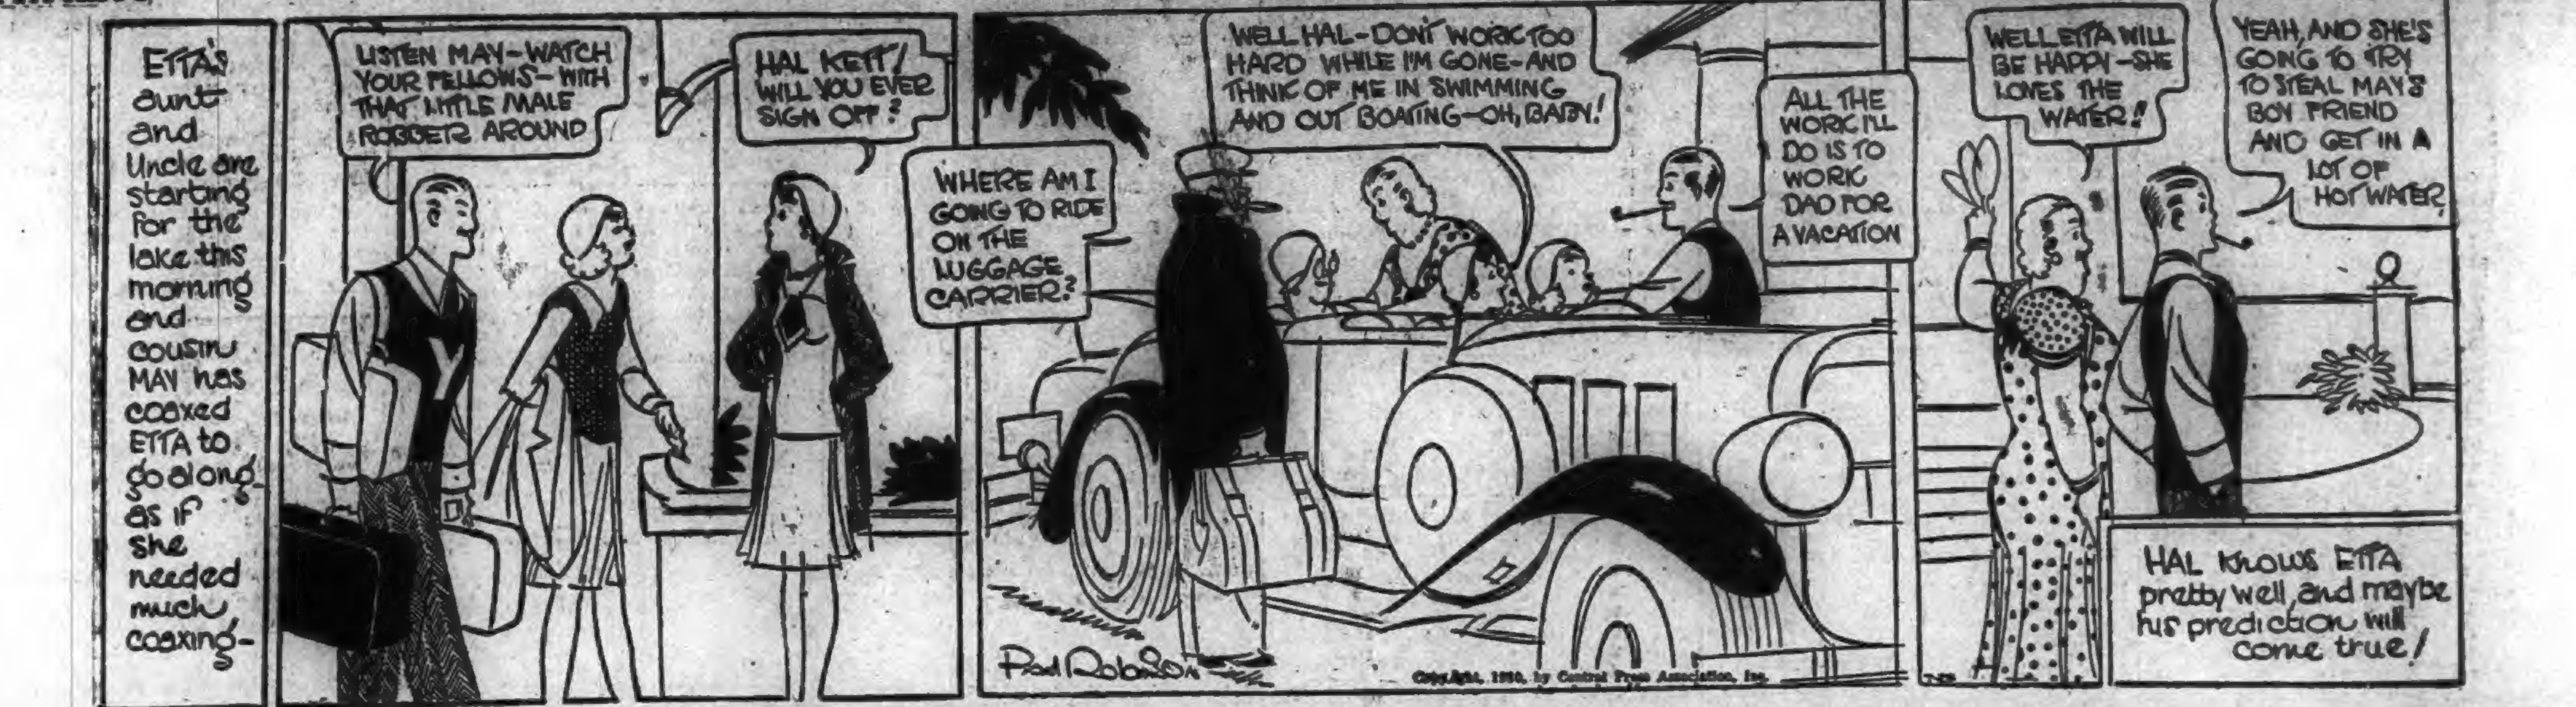
ETTA KETT

Maybe Yes and Maybe No

—By PAUL ROBINSON



Etta's aunt and Uncle are starting for the lake this morning and cousin May has coaxed Etta to go along as if she needed much coaxing-
LISTEN MAY—WATCH YOUR FELLOWS—WITH THAT LITTLE MALE ROBBER AROUND
HAL KETT! WILL YOU EVER SIGN OFF?
WHERE AM I GOING TO RIDE ON THE LUGGAGE CARRIER?
WELL HAL—DON'T WORK TOO HARD WHILE I'M GONE—AND THINK OF ME IN SWIMMING AND OUT BOATING—OH, BABY!
ALL THE WORK I'LL DO IS TO WORK DAD FOR A VACATION
WELL ETTA WILL BE HAPPY—SHE LOVES THE WATER!
YEAH, AND SHE'S GOING TO TRY TO STEAL MAY'S BOY FRIEND AND GET IN A LOT OF HOT WATER
HAL KNOWS ETTA pretty well, and maybe his prediction will come true!
